

• T H R O U G H • T H E • Y E A R • W I T H • T H E • P O E T S •

• E D I T E D • B Y •
• O S C A R • F A Y • A D A M S •

LIBRARY
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
SAN DIEGO

h

504

11970

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

Through the Year with the Poets

EDITED BY
OSCAR FAY ADAMS.

Now Ready.

WINTER.

DECEMBER.

JANUARY.

FEBRUARY.

3 Vols. in neat box, $2.25.

SPRING.

MARCH.

APRIL.

MAY.

3 Vols. in neat box, $2.25.

In Preparation.

SUMMER.

JUNE.

JULY.

AUGUST.

3 Vols. in neat box, $2.25.

AUTUMN.

SEPTEMBER.

OCTOBER.

NOVEMBER.

3 Vols. in neat box, $2.25.

Separate Volumes, 75 cents each.

D. LOTHROP AND COMPANY, PUBLISHERS,
BOSTON.

NOVEMBER

EDITED BY

OSCAR FAY ADAMS

FOR now the wind-beat twigs had lost their hold
Of the faint yellow leaves, and thin and light
The forest grew, and colder night by night,
Or soaked with rain, and swept with bitter wind,
Or with white creeping mist made deaf and blind.

WILLIAM MORRIS.

The Life and Death of Jason.

BOSTON

D. LOTHROP AND COMPANY

FRANKLIN AND HAWLEY STREETS

COPYRIGHT, 1886, BY
D. LOTHROP AND COMPANY.

ELECTROTYPED
BY C. J. PETERS AND SON, BOSTON.

To

WILLIAM MORTON FULLERTON,

THIS VOLUME IS AFFECTIONATELY
INSCRIBED BY THE EDITOR.

PREFACE.

THE glory of Autumn has gone with October, and the soft haze of Indian Summer blurs the unfamiliar outlines of the leafless trees. In a few days the amber skies will turn to grey, fogs and mists will steal over the fields and the waters at morning and evening, and the nights will grow longer and colder. At last, almost before we know it, the threshold of winter will be past, and the retreating footprints of November will be lost in the early snows.

The exact position of the Indian Summer in the calendar has been long disputed, but the weight of authority inclines toward early November as its proper place. The editor has therefore included in November the verse of this soft twilight of the year, which is such a dearly-prized feature of the later American Autumn, and which finds its English counterpart in the Summer of Saint Martin.

A masterly sonnet by Mr. Samuel Longfellow, entitled "Indian Summer," has been generously given to the editor for use in this volume of Through the Year with the Poets; and Mr. Frank Dempster Sherman, in a very musical poem, which is likewise an original contribution, and which bears the same title, "Indian Summer," admirably realizes for us the charm of this sweet season. The other original poems in November are "Summer's Visit to Autumn," by Mr. William Morton Fullerton, and its antiphon, Mr. Andrew Bice Saxton's "Winter to Autumn"; "A November Grave," by Mr. James Benjamin Kenyon; "In November," by Mr. Bliss Carman; and Mr. Ernest Whitney's gracefully turned lines upon "The Midnight of the Year."

With the ending of this volume the editor's task comes also to an end, and with not a little regret he realizes that he is to meet his readers from month to month no more. The duty of arranging the nearly seventeen hundred poems which are included in Through the Year with the Poets has been to him a very pleasant one; he ventures to hope that the results of his labor have given pleasure to his readers as well. In this series he has endeavored to combine freshness of material with appropriateness of allusion; and to this end recent authors have been freely drawn from, and minor as well as major poets been laid under contribution. It may seem, indeed, that certain writers are here represented more frequently than others whose claims are at least apparently equal; but it must be remembered that considerations of copyright have prevented the editor from selecting as many poems as he would like from the verse of a number of writers, and in the works of some others whose names would have added interest to his pages he found little or no material exactly adapted to his purpose. That the now completed series is not without its shortcomings he is well aware, but he trusts that its title to be regarded as a comparatively full anthology of the poetry of the year may not be without foundation. During the progress of the work he has received valuable suggestions from many persons whom he may not here name, and in particular from Col. T. W. Higginson and Mr. Wm. J. Rolfe, whose time and private libraries have been kindly placed at his disposal. To Mr. Clinton Scollard he is indebted for many hours of labor spent in his service, as freely as they were generously given; and to the many poets who have added to the worth of his series by their original contributions he is most sincerely grateful. The publishers in this place for the last time renew their thanks to their brother publishers, whose courtesy has been of such material assistance from the beginning of the work unto its close.

FELTON HALL,
CAMBRIDGE, MASS., October 19, 1886.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
NOVEMBER	Mrs. Elizabeth D. Stoddard, 1
AUTUMN IDLENESS.	Dante Gabriel Rossetti . . . 2
A LOST SUMMER	Mrs. Ethelinda Beers . . . 2
MAPLE LEAVES	Thomas Bailey Aldrich . . . 3
FADING-LEAF AND FALLEN- LEAF	Richard Garnett 3
INDIAN SUMMER	Benjamin F. Taylor . . . 4
NOVEMBER	Maurice Thompson . . . 4
INDIAN SUMMER	Mrs. Frances L. Mace . . . 5
NOVEMBER	Maurice F. Egan 6
THE INDIAN SUMMER	Mrs. Harriet E. King . . . 7
NOVEMBER	Mortimer Collins 9
INDIAN SUMMER	Mrs. Alice W. Rollins . . . 10
NOVEMBER	Hartley Coleridge 13
IN NOVEMBER	A. Mary F. Robinson . . . 13
AN INDIAN SUMMER REV- ERIE	James Russell Lowell . . . 14
* INDIAN SUMMER	Frank D. Sherman . . . 15
THE INDIAN SUMMER	Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney . 16
NOVEMBER	Lucy Larcom 18
INDIAN SUMMER	Stephen H. Thayer 20

* Written for this volume.

A JUNE DAY IN NOVEMBER,	Letitia C. Vannah	22
INDIAN SUMMER	Mrs. Kate L. Sherwood	24
THE CHANGE	Ernest Whitney	24
NOVEMBER	Edmund Spenser	26
FOREST LEAVES IN AUTUMN,	John Keble	27
INDIAN SUMMER	Thomas Mackellar	28
AUTUMN	Thomas Hood	29
NOVEMBER	Thos. Wentworth Higginson,	29
THE INDIAN SUMMER . . .	John G. C. Brainard	30
AUTUMN	George Barnett Smith	31
INDIAN SUMMER	John H. Bryant	32
A MORNING OF LATE AU-
TUMN	Edward Dowden	34
NOT WINTER YET	Henry Timrod	34
THE INDIAN SUMMER . . .	Lucy Larcom	35
A NOVEMBER LANDSCAPE .	Mrs. Sarah H. Whitman	37
NOVEMBER IN THE MARSHES,	Charles Dawson Shanly	37
* INDIAN SUMMER	Samuel Longfellow	39
AUTUMN FLOWERS	Mrs. Caroline Southey	40
INDIAN SUMMER	L. Frank Tooker	41
FADED LEAVES	Alice Cary	42
INDIAN SUMMER	Mrs. Ellen P. Allerton	43
NOVEMBER	Henry Gay Hewlett	44
INDIAN SUMMER	Andrew B. Saxton	45
AUTUMN PEACE	Paul Hamilton Hayne	45
NOVEMBER	Richard H. Stoddard	46
INDIAN SUMMER	Walter Learned	47
NOVEMBER WIND	Christina G. Rossetti	48
THE HUNTER'S MOON . . .	John G. Whittier	48

* Written for this volume.

INDIAN SUMMER	Alfred Billings Street . .	49
NOVEMBER	Elisha N. Gunnison . . .	50
AUTUMN HOURS	Mrs. Hannah J. Lewis . .	52
INDIAN SUMMER	James Power Irvine . . .	54
AUTUMN SONG	Robert Kelley Weeks . . .	55
IN NOVEMBER	James Berry Bense . . .	55
A NOVEMBER DANDELION .	Clinton Scollard	57
NOVEMBER	Mrs. Celia Thaxter . . .	58
INDIAN SUMMER	Augustus R. Grote . . .	59
INDIAN SUMMER	Henry B. Hirst	59
NOVEMBER	James Riley	60
INDIAN SUMMER	Charles Fenno Hoffman .	62
AN INDIAN SUMMER ROSE,	Mrs. Sara Oberholtzer . .	62
INDIAN SUMMER	Thomas Buchanan Read .	63
IN THE WOODS	Albert Loughton	63
INDIAN SUMMER	Mrs. Mulock Craik . . .	65
KYRIELLE	Clinton Scollard	66
INDIAN SUMMER	Edna Dean Proctor . . .	67
THE DEPARTURE OF SUM-
MER	Thomas Hood	68
IN NOVEMBER	Robert U. Johnson . . .	69
NOVEMBER	Austin Dobson	70
THE FALL OF LEAVES . .	George Houghton	70
FALLEN LEAVES	Will Wallace Harney . . .	71
IN NOVEMBER	Mrs. Susan K. Phillips . .	72
THE DEATH OF THE FLOW-
ERS	William Cullen Bryant . .	73
NOVEMBER SUNSHINE AND
THE HOUSEFLIES	Charles Tennyson-Turner .	75
AUTUMN EVEN-SONG . . .	George Meredith	76

NOVEMBER	Paul Hamilton Hayne	77
AUTUMN SONG	Gerald Massey	77
NOVEMBER	C. L. Cleaveland	78
THE NOVEMBER FOG OF
LONDON	Henry Luttrell	80
NOVEMBER	Thomas Hood	81
AUTUMN IS ENDED	J. Hazard Hartzell	82
NOVEMBER TREES	Christopher P. Cranch	83
A SUNSET IN NOVEMBER	Robert Kelley Weeks	84
THE DYING YEAR	Mrs. C. C. Liddell	86
AUTUMN IN CORNWALL	Algernon C. Swinburne	87
A NOVEMBER PASTORAL	Bayard Taylor	89
NOVEMBER	John A. Dorgan	90
TO THE FRINGED GENTIAN,	William Cullen Bryant	90
ON THE BEACH IN NOVEM-
BER	Edward C. Lefroy	91
THE PARTING OF SUMMER	Charles L. Hildreth	92
THE LAST WALK IN AU-
TUMN	John G. Whittier	93
NOVEMBER	William Cullen Bryant	95
NOVEMBER	John Addington Symonds	95
A SONG OF AUTUMN	Arthur Hugh Clough	96
THE LAST GENTIAN	Thomas William Parsons	96
TO THE CHRYSANTHEMUM	William Cox Bennett	97
BELATED	Mrs. Augusta Webster	98
AUTUMN'S SIGHING	Thomas Buchanan Read	99
NOVEMBER WIND	Alfred Tennyson	100
NOVEMBER	William Morris	101
* SUMMER'S VISIT TO AU-
TUMN	William Morton Fullerton	102

FALLEN LEAVES	John James Piatt	104
NOVEMBER	Sarah C. Woolsey	105
A SONG FOR NOVEMBER	Clinton Scollard	106
THE AUTUMN IS OLD	Thomas Hood	109
NOVEMBER	Mrs. Akers Allen	110
* WINTER TO AUTUMN	Andrew B. Saxton	111
RAIN IN NOVEMBER	George Houghton	112
IN LATE AUTUMN	Charles Denys Conway . .	112
NOVEMBER	Stephen H. Thayer	113
THE RAINY DAY	Henry W. Longfellow . .	114
HAZEL BLOSSOMS	John G. Whittier	114
NOVEMBER	Mrs. Mary E. Blake	116
IN NOVEMBER	William Morris	117
THE LATE AUTUMN IS DY-
ING	H. T. Mackenzie Bell . . .	118
AUTUMN—A DIRGE	Percy Bysshe Shelley . . .	119
NOVEMBER	William Shakespeare . . .	120
A DIRGE	Samuel Minturn Peck . . .	120
WHERE THE ROSES GREW.	Mrs. Akers Allen	121
NOVEMBER ROSES	Richard Moncton Milnes . .	123
SO LATE IN AUTUMN	Christina G. Rossetti . . .	124
IN NOVEMBER	William Prescott Foster . .	124
WHEN SUN AND FROST
HAVE WROUGHT THEIR
SPELL	Ernest W. Shurtleff	125
A FROZEN NOVEMBER ROSE,	Henry S. Cornwell	125
IN NOVEMBER	Clinton Scollard	126
IN LATE AUTUMN	Alfred Austin	128
IN NOVEMBER	Walter Scott	128

* Written for this volume.

A NOVEMBER GOODNIGHT .	Mrs. Ethelinda Beers . .	130
NOVEMBER	Henry W. Longfellow . .	131
A NOVEMBER DAY	James Berry Bense . .	132
A NOVEMBER EVE	Edward Capern	132
AN OLD YEAR SONG . . .	Oliver Wendell Holmes .	133
* IN NOVEMBER	Bliss Carman	135
A SQUARE IN NOVEMBER .	A. Mary F. Robinson . .	135
AT AUTUMN'S END . . .	Robert Dwyer Joyce . . .	136
NOVEMBER	William Lisle Bowles . .	137
THE PLEASANT TIME IS
WELL-NIGH DONE . . .	William Morris	138
NEAR AUTUMN'S END . .	Algernon C. Swinburne .	138
HERBSTLIED	Percy E. Pinkerton . . .	139
NOVEMBER VIOLETS . . .	Sylvester Baxter	140
NOVEMBER	James Newton Matthews .	140
A NOVEMBER PICTURE . .	Paul Hamilton Hayne . .	141
* A NOVEMBER GRAVE . .	James B. Kenyon	142
"AUTOMNE"	Mrs. Chandler Moulton .	142
NOVEMBER	Edwin Arnold	143
AUTUMN DAYS	Jones Very	144
* THE MIDNIGHT OF THE
YEAR	Ernest Whitney	144
AT THE END OF AUTUMN .	Maurice F. Egan	145
THE CLOSING SCENE . . .	Thomas Buchanan Read .	145

* Written for this volume.

INDEX OF AUTHORS.

	PAGE
ALDRICH, THOMAS BAILEY.
Born in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, November 11, 1837.
Maple Leaves	3
ALLEN, MRS. ELIZABETH ANN [CHASE] [AKERS].
Born in Strong, Maine, October 9, 1832.
November	110
Where the Roses Grew	121
ALLERTON, MRS. ELLEN [PALMER].
Born in Centreville, New York, October 17, 1835.
Indian Summer	43
ARNOLD, EDWIN.
Born in Rochester, England, June 10, 1832.
November	143
AUSTIN, ALFRED.
Born in Headingly, near Leeds, England, May 30, 1835.
In Late Autumn	128

BAXTER, SYLVESTER.

Born in West Yarmouth, Massachusetts, February 6, 1850.

November Violets 140

BEERS, MRS. ETHELINDA [ELLIOTT].

Born in Goshen, New Jersey, 1827.

Died in ———, 1879.

A Lost Summer 2

A November Goodnight 130

BELL, H. T. MACKENZIE.

Born in Great Britain, 18—.

The Late Autumn is Dying 118

BENNETT, WILLIAM COX.

Born in Greenwich, England, 1820.

To the Chrysanthemum 97

BENSEL, JAMES BERRY.

Born in New York City, August 2, 1856.

Died in New York City, February 3, 1886.

A November Day 132

In November 55

BLAKE, MRS. MARY ELIZABETH [MCGRATH].

Born in Dungarven, County Waterford, Ireland, September 1, 1840.

November 116

BOWLES, WILLIAM LISLE.

Born in Kings Sutton, England, September 24, 1762.

Died in Salisbury, England, April 7, 1850.

November 137

BRAINARD, JOHN GARDINER CALKINS.

Born in New London, Connecticut, October 21, 1796.

Died in New London, Connecticut, September 26, 1828.

The Indian Summer 30

BRYANT, JOHN HOWARD.

Born in Cummington, Massachusetts, July 22, 1807.

Indian Summer 32

BRYANT, WILLIAM CULLEN.

Born in Cummington, Massachusetts, November 3, 1794.

Died in New York City, June 12, 1878.

November 95

The Death of the Flowers 73

To the Fringed Gentian 90

CAPER, EDWARD.

Born in Tiverton, Devonshire, England, January 29, 1819.

A November Eve 132

CARMAN, BLISS.

Born in Fredericton, New Brunswick, April 15, 1861.

In November 135

CARY, ALICE.

Born near Cincinnati, Ohio, April 26, 1820.

Died in New York City, February 12, 1871.

Faded Leaves 42

CLEAVELAND, C. L.

Born in the United States (?), 18—.

November 78

CLOUGH, ARTHUR HUGH.

Born in Liverpool, England, January 1, 1819.

Died in Florence, Italy, November 13, 1861.

A Song of Autumn 96

COLERIDGE, HARTLEY.

Born in Clevedon, near Bristol, England, 1796.

Died in Ambleside, England, January 19, 1849.

November 13

COLLINS, MORTIMER.

Born in Plymouth, England, June 29, 1827.

Died in Richmond, England, July 28, 1876.

November 9

CONWAY, CHARLES DENYS.

Born in Great Britain, 18—.

In Late Autumn 112

CORNWELL, HENRY SYLVESTER.

Born in Charlestown, New Hampshire, 1831.

Died in New London, Connecticut, June 15, 1886.

A Frozen November Rose 125

CRAIK, MRS. DINAH MARIA [MULOCK].

Born in Stoke-upon-Trent, England, 1826.

Indian Summer 65

CRANCH, CHRISTOPHER PEARSE.

Born in Alexandria, Virginia, March 8, 1813.

November Trees 83

DOBSON, HENRY AUSTIN.

Born in Plymouth, England, January 18, 1840.

November 70

DORGAN, JOHN AYLMER.

Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, January 12, 1836.

Died in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, January 1, 1867.

November 90

DOWDEN, EDWARD.

Born in Dublin, Ireland, May 3, 1843.

A Morning of Late Autumn 34

EGAN, MAURICE FRANCIS.

Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, May 24, 1852.

At the End of Autumn 145

November 6

FAWCETT, EDGAR.

Born in New York City, May 26, 1847.

Indian Summer 54

FOSTER, WILLIAM PRESCOTT.

Born in Weld, Maine, August 20, 1856.

In November 124

FULLERTON, WILLIAM MORTON.

Born in Norwich, Connecticut, September 18, 1865.

Summer's Visit to Autumn 102

GARNETT, RICHARD.

Born in Lichfield, England, February 27, 1835.

Fading-Leaf and Fallen-Leaf 3

GROTE, AUGUSTUS RADCLIFFE.

Born in the United States [?], 18—.

Indian Summer 59

GUNNISON, ELISHA NORMAN.

Born in Charlestown, Massachusetts, May 15, 1837.

Died in York, Pennsylvania, February 18, 1880.

November 50

HARNEY, WILL WALLACE.

Born in Bloomington, Iowa, June 20, 1831.

Fallen Leaves 71

HARTZELL, J. HAZARD.

Born in Buffalo Township, Washington County, Pennsylvania, 18—.

Autumn is Ended 82

HAYNE, PAUL HAMILTON.

Born in Charleston, South Carolina, January 1, 1831.

Died in Grovetown, Columbia County, Georgia, July 6, 1886.

A November Picture 141

Autumn Peace 45

November 77

HEWLETT, HENRY GAY.

Born in London, England, April 4, 1832.

November 44

HIGGINSON, THOMAS WENTWORTH.

Born in Cambridge, Massachusetts, December 22, 1823.

November 29

HILDRETH, CHARLES LOTIN.

Born in New York City, August 28, 1853.

The Parting of Summer 92

HIRST, HENRY B.

Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, August 23, 1813.

Died in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, March 31, 1874.

Indian Summer 59

HOFFMAN, CHARLES FENNO.

Born in New York City, 1806.

Died in Harrisburgh, Pennsylvania, June 7, 1884.

Indian Summer 62

HOLMES, OLIVER WENDELL.

Born in Cambridge, Massachusetts, August 29, 1809.

An Old Year Song 133

HOOD, THOMAS.

Born in London, England, May 23, 1798.

Died in London, England, May 3, 1845.

Autumn 29

November 81

The Autumn is Old 109

The Departure of Summer 68

HOUGHTON, GEORGE WASHINGTON WRIGHT.

Born in Cambridge, Massachusetts, August 12, 1850.

Rain in November 112

The Fall of Leaves 70

IRVINE, JAMES POWER.

Born in Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, May 15, 1845.

Indian Summer 53

JOHNSON, ROBERT UNDERWOOD.

Born in Washington, District of Columbia, January 12, 1853.

In November 69

JOYCE, ROBERT DWYER.

Born in Glenostreen, Limerick County, Ireland, September, 1836.

Died in Dublin, Ireland, October 23, 1883.

At Autumn's End 136

KEBLE, JOHN.

Born in Fairford, Gloucestershire, England, April 25, 1792.

Died in Bournemouth, England, March 29, 1866.

Forest Leaves in Autumn 27

KENYON, JAMES BENJAMIN.

Born in Frankfort, Herkimer County, New York, April 26, 1858.

A November Grave 142

KING, MRS. HARRIET ELEANOR [HAMILTON].

Born in England, 1840.

The Indian Summer 7

LAIGHTON, ALBERT.

Born in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, 1829.

In the Woods 63

LARCOM, LUCY.

Born in Beverly Farms, Massachusetts, 1826.

November 18

The Indian Summer 35

LEARNED, WALTER.

Born in New London, Connecticut, June 22, 1847.

Indian Summer 47

LEFROY, EDWARD CRACROFT.

Born in London, England, March 29, 1855.

On the Beach in November 91

LEWIS, MRS. HANNAH JANE [WOODMAN].

Born in Boston, Massachusetts, October 4, 1816.

Died in Boston, Massachusetts, January 30, 1885.

Autumn Hours 52

LIDDELL, MRS. CHRISTINA CATHERINE [FRASER-TYTTLER].

Born in Narsick, India, February 14, 1848.

The Dying Year 86

LONGFELLOW, HENRY WADSWORTH.

Born in Portland, Maine, February 27, 1807.

Died in Cambridge, Massachusetts, March 24, 1882.

November 131

The Rainy Day 114

LONGFELLOW, SAMUEL.

Born in Portland, Maine, June 18, 1819.

Indian Summer 39

LOWELL, JAMES RUSSELL.

Born in Cambridge, Massachusetts, February 22, 1819.

An Indian Summer Reverie 14

LUTTRELL, HENRY.

Born in Great Britain, 1770.

Died in Great Britain, 1851.

The November Fog of London 80

MACE, MRS. FRANCES [LAUGHTON].

Born in Orono, Maine, January 15, 1836.

Indian Summer 5

MACKELLAR, THOMAS.

Born in New York City, August 12, 1812.

Indian Summer 28

MASSEY, GERALD.

Born in Hertfordshire, England, May 29, 1828.

Autumn Song 77

MATTHEWS, JAMES NEWTON.

Born near Greencastle, Indiana, May 27, 1852.

November 140

MEREDITH, GEORGE.

Born in Hampshire, England, 1828.

Autumn Even-Song 76

MILNES, RICHARD MONCTON.

Born in Frystone Hall, Yorkshire, England, June 19, 1809.

Died in Vichy, France, August 11, 1885.

November Roses 123

MORRIS, WILLIAM.

Born near London, England, March, 1834.

In Late Autumn Title-page

In November 117

November 101

The Pleasant Time is Well-Nigh Done 138

MOULTON, MRS. LOUISE [CHANDLER].

Born in Pomfret, Connecticut, April 10, 1835.

"Automne" 142

OBERHOLTZER, MRS. SARA LOUISA [VICKERS].

Born in Uwchlan, Chester County, Pennsylvania, May 20, 1841.

An Indian Summer Rose 62

PARSONS, THOMAS WILLIAM.

Born in Boston, Massachusetts, August 18, 1819.

The Last Gentian 96

PECK, SAMUEL MINTURN.

Born in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, November 4, 1854.

A Dirge 120

PHILLIPS, MRS. SUSAN KELLY [HOLDSWORTH].

Born in Aldborough, Yorkshire, England, 1831.

In November 72

PIATT, JOHN JAMES.

Born in Milton, Indiana, March 31, 1835.

Fallen Leaves 104

PINKERTON, PERCY E.

Born in London, England, June 19, 1855.

Herbstlied 139

PROCTOR, EDNA DEAN.

Born in Henniker, New Hampshire, 18—.

Indian Summer 67

READ, THOMAS BUCHANAN.

Born near Chester, Pennsylvania, March 12, 1822.

Died in New York City, May 11, 1872.

Autumn's Sighing 99

Indian Summer 63

The Closing Scene 145

RILEY, JAMES.

Born near Ballyshannon, Ireland, August 15, 1848.

November 60

ROBINSON, AGNES MARY FRANCES.

Born in Leamington, Warwickshire, England, February 27, 1857.

A Square in November	135
In November	13

ROLLINS, MRS. ALICE MARLAND [WELLINGTON].

Born in Boston, Massachusetts, June 12, 1847.

Indian Summer	10
-------------------------	----

ROSSETTI, CHRISTINA GEORGINA.

Born in London, England, December 5, 1830.

November Wind	48
So Late in Autumn	124

ROSSETTI, DANTE GABRIEL.

Born in London, England, May 12, 1828.

Died in Birchington, near Margate, England, April 9, 1882.

Autumn Idleness	2
---------------------------	---

SAXTON, ANDREW BICE.

Born in Middlefield, New York, April 5, 1856.

Indian Summer	45
Winter to Autumn	111

SCOLLARD, CLINTON.

Born in Clinton, New York, September 18, 1860.

A November Dandelion	57
A Song for November	106
In November	126
Kyrielle	66

SCOTT, SIR WALTER.

Born in Edinburgh, August 15, 1771.

Died at Abbotsford, September 21, 1832.

In November	128
-----------------------	-----

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM.

Born in Stratford-on-Avon, April 23, 1564.

Died in Stratford-on-Avon, April 23, 1616.

November 120

SHANLY, CHARLES DAWSON.

Born in Ireland, circa 1825.

Died in Jacksonville, Florida, April 15, 1875.

November in the Marshes 37

SHELLEY, PERCY BYSSHE.

Born in Field Place, near Horsham, Surrey, England, August 4, 1792.

Drowned in the Bay of Spezzia, Italy, July 8, 1822.

Autumn — A Dirge 119

SHERMAN, FRANK DEMPSTER.

Born in Peekskill, New York, May 6, 1860.

Indian Summer 15

SHERWOOD, MRS. KATHARINE MARGARET [BROWNLEE].

Born in Bedford Springs, Pennsylvania, September 24, 1841.

Indian Summer 24

SHURTLEFF, ERNEST WARBURTON.

Born in Boston, Massachusetts, April 4, 1862.

When Sun and Frost Have Wrought their Spell . 125

SIGOURNEY, MRS. LYDIA HOWARD [HUNTLEY].

Born in Norwich, Connecticut, September 1, 1791.

Died in Hartford, Connecticut, June 10, 1865.

The Indian Summer 16

SMITH, GEORGE BARNETT.

Born in Ovenden, Yorkshire, May 17, 1841.

Autumn 31

SOUTHEY, MRS. CAROLINE ANN [BOWLES].

Born in Buckland, England, December 6, 1787.

Died in Buckland, England, July 20, 1854.

Autumn Flowers 40

SPENSER, EDMUND.

Born in London, England, circa 1553.

Died in London, England, January 15, 1599.

November 26

STODDARD, MRS. ELIZABETH DREW [BARSTOW].

Born in Mattapoisett, Massachusetts, 1823.

November 1

STODDARD, RICHARD HENRY.

Born in Hingham, Massachusetts, July, 1825.

November 46

STREET, ALFRED BILLINGS.

Born in Poughkeepsie, New York, December*18, 1811.

Died in Albany, New York, June 2, 1881.

Indian Summer 49

SWINBURNE, ALGERNON CHARLES.

Born in London, England, April 5, 1837.

Autumn in Cornwall 87

Near Autumn's End 138

SYMONDS, JOHN ADDINGTON.

Born in Bristol, England, October 5, 1840.

November 95

TAYLOR, BAYARD.

Born in Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, January 11, 1825.

Died in Berlin, Germany, December 19, 1878.

A November Pastoral 89

TAYLOR, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

Born in Lowville, New York, 1822.

Indian Summer 4

TENNYSON, ALFRED.

Born in Somersby, Lincolnshire, England, August 5, 1809.

November Wind 100

TENNYSON-TURNER, CHARLES.

Born in Somersby, Lincolnshire, England, July 4, 1808.

Died in Cheltenham, England, April 25, 1879.

November Sunshine and the Houseflies . . . 75

THAYER, STEPHEN HENRY.

Born in New Ipswich, New Hampshire, December 16, 1839.

Indian Summer 20

November 113

THAXTER, MRS. CELIA [LAUGHTON].

Born in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, June 29, 1835.

November 58

THOMPSON, JAMES MAURICE.

Born in Fairfield, Indiana, September 9, 1844.

November 4

TIMROD, HENRY.

Born in Charleston, South Carolina, December 8, 1829.

Died in Columbia, South Carolina, October 6, 1867.

Not Winter Yet 34

TOOKER, L. FRANK.

Born in the United States, 18—.

Indian Summer 41

VANNAH, LETITIA CATHARINE.

Born in Gardiner, Maine, October 27, 1855.

A June Day in November 22

VERY, JONES.

Born in Salem, Massachusetts, August 28, 1813.

Died in Salem, Massachusetts, May 8, 1880.

Autumn Days 144

WEBSTER, MRS. AUGUSTA [DAVIES].

Born in Poole, Dorsetshire, England, 1840.

Belated 98

WEEKS, ROBERT KELLEY.

Born in New York City, September 21, 1840.

Died in New York City, April 13, 1876.

A Sunset in November 84

Autumn Song 55

WHITMAN, MRS. SARAH HELEN [POWER].

Born in Providence, Rhode Island, January 19, 1803.

Died in Providence, Rhode Island, June 27, 1878.

A November Landscape 37

WHITNEY, ERNEST.

Born in Cornwall, Connecticut, February 2, 1858.

The Change 24

The Midnight of the Year 144

WHITTIER, JOHN GREENLEAF.

Born in Haverhill, Massachusetts, December 17, 1807.

Hazel Blossoms	114
The Hunter's Moon	48
The Last Walk in Autumn	93

WILLSON, BYRON FORCEYTHE.

Born in Little Genesee, New York, April 10, 1837.

Died in Alfred, New York, February 2, 1867.

Autumn Song	xxxiv
-----------------------	-------

WOOLSEY, SARAH CHAUNCEY.

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, 18—.

November	105
--------------------	-----

NOVEMBER.

AUTUMN SONG.

*In Spring the Poet is glad,
And in Summer the Poet is gay;
But in Autumn the Poet is sad,
And has something sad to say:*

*For the Wind moans in the Wood,
And the Leaf drops from the Tree;
And the cold Rain falls on the graves of the Good,
And the cold Mist comes up from the Sea:*

*And the Autumn songs of the Poet's soul
Are set to the passionate grief
Of Winds that sigh and Bells that toll
The Dirge of the Falling Leaf.*

BYRON FORCEYTHE WILLSON.

NOVEMBER.

NOVEMBER.

MUCH have I spoken of the faded leaf ;
Long have I listened to the wailing wind,
And watched it plowing through the heavy clouds ;
For autumn charms my melancholy mind.

When autumn comes the poets sing a dirge :
The year must perish : all the flowers are dead ;
The sheaves are gathered, and the mottled quail
Runs in the stubble, but the lark has fled.

Still, autumn ushers in the Christmas cheer,
The hollyberries and the ivy-tree :
They weave a chaplet for the Old Year's bier ;
These waiting mourners do not sing for me !

I find sweet peace in depths of autumn woods,
Where grow the ragged ferns and roughened moss ;
The naked, silent trees have taught me this, —
The loss of beauty is not always loss !

MRS. ELIZABETH DREW [BARSTOW] STODDARD.

AUTUMN IDLENESS.

THIS sunlight shames November where he grieves
 In dead red leaves, and will not let him shun
 The day, though bough with bough be overrun.
 But with a blessing every glade receives
 High salutation ; while from hillock-eaves
 The deer gaze calling, dappled white and dun ;
 As if being foresters of old, the sun
 Had marked them with the shade of forest leaves.
 Here dawn to-day unveiled her magic glass ;
 Here noon now gives the thirst and takes the dew ;
 Till eve bring rest when other good things pass,
 And here the lost hours the lost hours renew
 While I still lead my shadow o'er the grass,
 Nor know, for longing, that which I should do.

DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI.

A LOST SUMMER.

HAS anyone seen a lost summer,
 Strayed, stolen, or otherwise gone,
 First missed when the leaves of September,
 Turned, showed us a frost-graven dawn ?
 And now she has hidden in frolic
 Beneath the low-lying, bright leaves.
 Has anyone seen a lost summer
 Afield with the banded cornsheaves ?

.

MRS. ETHELINDA [ELLIOTT] BEERS.

MAPLE LEAVES.

OCTOBER turned my maple's leaves to gold ;
The most are gone now ; here and there one lingers :
Soon these will slip from out the twigs' weak hold,
Like coins between a dying miser's fingers.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH.

FADING-LEAF AND FALLEN-LEAF.

SAID Fading-Leaf to Fallen-Leaf,
"I toss alone on a forsaken tree,
It rocks and cracks with every gust that rocks
Its straining bulk : say ! how is it with thee ?"

Said Fallen-Leaf to Fading-Leaf,
"A heavy foot went by, an hour ago :
Crushed into clay, I stain the way ;
The loud wind calls me, and I cannot go."

Said Fading-Leaf to Fallen-Leaf,
"Death lessons Life, a ghost is ever wise :
Teach me a way to live till May
Laughs fair with fragrant lips and loving eyes !"

Said Fallen-Leaf to Fading-Leaf,
"Hast loved fair eyes and lips of gentle breath ?
Fade then, and fall ! thou hast had all
That Life can give ; ask somewhat now of Death !"

RICHARD GARNETT.

INDIAN SUMMER.

· THEN past the yellow regiments of corn
There came an Indian maiden, autumn-born,
And June returned and held her by the hand,
And led Time's smiling Ruth through all the land;
A veil of golden air was o'er her flung,
The south wind whispered and the robins sung.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

NOVEMBER.

A HINT of slumber in the wind,
A dreamful stir of blades and stalks,
As tenderly the twilight flows
Down all my garden walks.

My robes of work are thrown aside,
The odor of the grass is sweet;
The pleasure of a day well spent
Bathes me from head to feet.

Calmly I wait the dreary change, —
The season cutting sharp and sheer
Through the wan bowers of death that fringe
The border of the year.

And while I muse, the fated earth
Into a colder current dips, —
Feels winter's scourge with summer's kiss
Still warm upon her lips.

JAMES MAURICE THOMPSON.

INDIAN SUMMER.

WHEN the hunter's moon is waning,
And hangs like a crimson bow,
And the frosty fields of morning
Are white with phantom snow ;
Who then is the beautiful spirit,
That wanders, smiles and grieves
Along the desolate hillsides,
And over the drifted leaves ?

She has strayed from the far-off dwelling
Of forgotten Indian braves,
And stolen wistfully earthward
Over the path of graves ;
She has left the cloudy gateway
Of the hunting grounds ajar,
To follow the trail of the summer
Toward the morning star.

There's a rustle of soft, slow footsteps,
The toss of a purple plume,
And the glimmer of golden arrows
Athwart the hazy gloom.
'Tis the smoke of the happy wigwams
That reddens our wintry sky,
The scent of unfading forests
That is dreamily floating by.

O shadow sister of summer !
Astray from the world of dreams,
Thou wraith of the bloom departed,
Thou echo of springtide streams,
Thou moonlight and starlight vision
Of a day that will come no more,
Would that our love might win thee
To dwell on this stormy shore !

But the roaming Indian goddess
Stays not for our tender sighs ;
She has heard the call of her hunters
Beyond the sunset skies.
By her beaming arrows stricken
The last leaves fluttering fall,
With a sigh and a smile she has vanished,
And darkness is over all.

MRS. FRANCES [LAUGHTON] MACE.

NOVEMBER.

THE crimson, and the russet, and the gold,
The palest green that gives a hint of spring,
And nameless colors that swift breezes fling
From waving trees : tall dahlias crisped by cold
Vie with the sunrise, as some men when old
Are brightest, or as swans, when dying, sing,
Or a sweet strain the fickle zephyrs bring
Stopped short before its burden is all told.

O fair November, lesson us, we pray ;
O sweet, sad season, teach us ere you go ;
O teach us, ere your mellow lights have passed,
The secret in the fading of your day ;
That when life's end approaches, we may know
The way to make our fairest, brightest, last !

MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN.

THE INDIAN SUMMER.

.
Now after hoping long and vain,
The summer has come back again,
With angel eyes and brow serene,
To show us what she might have been.

.
She comes to take farewell to-day,
So beautiful, we can but say
"With us a little longer stay !"
But doom is on her brow.

All lovingly and lingeringly
Flooded in golden ecstasy
Flows the great river's heart, as he
Through the clear silence, mellow-warm,
Knows the approaching of her form, —
Her robes around her dim ;
Faint floating veils the light shines through
Tinged airily with mountain blue
As she comes down to him.

Down soft and slow through sunlit space,
She hovers o'er him face to face,
Her warm arms spreading to embrace ;
Her spirit eyes are close to him,
Her sweet eyes that will soon be dim ;
He feels her lips a moment prest,
Her golden hair upon his breast,
And an unutterable rest

 Circling through all his spirit thrills,
And into motion quietest
 The gliding current stills.

A golden haze on Cheviot lies,
 And it is midday now, — he knows
That when this day in sunset dies
 She will go from him ; and the snows
Will bury her upon the hills,
 And winter winds howl over her,
So this last day for him she fills
 For ever lovelier.

The soft wind and the yellow leaves
Are having their last dance together,
Up and down, an oriole feather.
“O life and love, and summer weather !
Is this our parting ?” Even so ;
A little gust of wind, and lo,

A flight of golden butterflies
 In slow and airy quiver
 Winged downwards, and each dead leaf lies
 Floated along the river.
 And over them the lost wind sighs,
 They lying calm for ever.

MRS. HARRIET ELEANOR [HAMILTON] KING.

NOVEMBER.

NOVEMBER, month of mornings misty-bright
 With golden light ;
 Month when the many-tinted leaf
 Lies thick upon the moss below ;
 While to and fro
 The breezes moan, as if in grief.

November, who dost swell the mountain streams
 To break the dreams
 Of the long summer's silent sway ;
 And rousest the tumultuous floods
 Through glens and woods
 To thunder all the sullen day.

The wandering swallows at thy bidding fly
 Athwart the sky,
 And dare to pass the whirling seas,
 Nor pause until their pinions flutter
 Where wavelets utter
 Low songs among the Cyclades.

.

November, thou hast wreaths of evergreen,
Fair brows to screen,
Mingled with berries ruddy-hued ;
And the old ivy, plant divine,
Young locks to twine,
Though summer's glory is subdued.

The poet praises June's bright glance of glee,
And July free,
Dancing, flower-laden, o'er the plain ;
The myriad blossoms wonder-bright,
Which cast delight
O'er the wide land and clasping main.

But me thy humid sky doth gladden more,
The streamlet's roar,
The shadows floating far away,
Strange sounds that, in thy milder moods,
Fill all the woods, —
The very music of decay.

MORTIMER COLLINS.

INDIAN SUMMER.

LINGER, O Day !
Let not thy purple haze
Fade utterly away.
The Indian Summer lays
Her tender touch upon the emerald hills ;
Exquisite thrills

Of delicate gladness fill the blue-veined air.
 More restful even than rest,
The passionate sweetness that is everywhere.
 Soft splendors in the west
Touch with the charm of coming changefulness
 The yielding hills.
 O linger, Day !
 Let not the dear
Delicious languor of thy dreamfulness
 Vanish away.
 Serene and clear,
The brooding stillness of the delicate air,
Dreamier than the dreamiest depths of sleep,
 Falls softly everywhere.
 Still let me keep
 One little hour longer tryst with thee,
 O Day of days !
 Lean down to me, .
In tender beauty of thy amethyst haze.
 Upon the vine
Rich, clinging clusters of the ripening grape
 Hang silent in the sun ;
 But in each one
Beats with full throb the quickening purple wine
Whose pulse shall round the perfect fruit to shape.
 Too dreamy even to dream,
I hear the murmuring bee and gliding stream ;
 The singing silence of the afternoon
Lulling my drowsy senses, till they swoon

Into still deeper rest ;
While soul released from sense,
Passionate and intense,
With quick, exultant quiver in its wings,
Prophetic longing for diviner things,
Escapes the unthinking breast ;
Pierces rejoicing through the shining mist,
But shrinks before the keen, cold ether, kissed
By burning stars : delirious foretaste
Of joys the soul — too eager in its haste
To grasp ere won by the diviner right
Of birth through death — is far too weak to bear !
Bathed in earth's lesser light,
Slipping down slowly through the shining air,
Once more it steals into the dreaming breast,
Praying again to be its patient guest ;
And as my senses wake,
The beautiful glad soul again to take,
The twilight falls ;
A lonely woodthrush calls
The Day away.
Thou needst not linger, Day !
My soul and I
Would hold high converse of diviner things
Than blossom underneath thy tender sky.
Unfold thy wings !
Wrap softly round thyself thy delicate haze,
And gliding down the slowly darkening ways,
Vanish away !

MRS. ALICE MARLAND [WELLINGTON] ROLLINS.

NOVEMBER.

THE mellow year is hasting to its close ;
The little birds have almost sung their last,
Their small notes twitter in the dreary blast,
That shrill-piped harbinger of early snows ;
The patient beauty of the scentless rose,
Oft with the morn's hoar crystal quaintly glassed,
Hangs a pale mourner for the summer past,
And makes a little summer where it grows ;
In the chill sunbeam of the faint brief day
The dusky waters shudder as they shine ;
The russet leaves obstruct the straggling way
Of oozy brooks, which no deep banks define,
And the gaunt woods, in ragged, scant array,
Wrap their old limbs with sombre ivy-twine.

HARTLEY COLERIDGE.

IN NOVEMBER.

THE bracken withers day by day,
The furze is out of bloom.
Over the common the heather is grey,
And there's no gold left on the broom ;
And the least wind flutters a golden fleck
From the three tall aspens that grow in the beck.

AGNES MARY FRANCES ROBINSON.

Man and Wife.

AN INDIAN SUMMER REVERIE.

WHAT visionary tints the year puts on,
When falling leaves falter through the motionless air
Or numbly cling and shiver to be gone !
How shimmer the low flats and pastures bare,
As with her nectar Hebe Autumn fills
The bowl between me and those distant hills,
And smiles and shakes abroad her misty, tremulous hair !

.

Far distant sounds the hidden chickadee
Close at my side ; far distant sound the leaves ;
The fields seem fields of dream, where memory
Wanders like gleaning Ruth ; and as the sheaves
Of wheat and barley wavered in the eye
Of Boaz as the maiden's glow went by,
So tremble and seem remote all things the sense receives.

The cock's shrill trump that tells of scattered corn,
Passed breezily on by all his flapping mates,
Faint and more faint, from barn to barn is borne,
Southward, perhaps to far Magellan's straits ;
Dimly I catch the throb of distant flails ;
Silently overhead the henhawk sails,
With watchful, measuring eye, and for his quarry waits.

The sobered robin, hunger-silent now,
Seeks cedarberries blue, his autumn cheer;
The squirrel, on the shingly shagbark's bough,
Now saws, now lists with downward eye and ear,
Then drops his nut, and, with a chipping bound,
Whirls to his winding fastness underground;
The clouds like swans drift down the streaming atmosphere.

O'er yon bare knoll the pointed cedar shadows
Drowse on the crisp, grey moss; the plowman's call
Creeps faint as smoke from black, fresh-furrowed meadows;
The single crow a single caw lets fall;
And all around me every bush and tree
Says autumn's here and winter soon will be,
Who snows his soft, white sleep and silence over all.

.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

INDIAN SUMMER.

Across the billowy meadow grasses
The summer passes with languid tread,
And where she journeys the path is burning
And leaves are turning to brown and red.

She goes in silence across the valley
Where low winds rally around her track,
And touch her garments and murmur, "Maiden,
With roses laden, come back, — come back!"

She does not heed them, — she does not listen;
Her soft eyes glisten with welling tears;
Her heart grows heavy for not replying
To verdure dying, to prayers she hears,

Until, in pity, she turns and lingers
To kiss the fingers fast growing cold,
And all the earth for a moment's pleasure
Yields up her treasure of yellow gold!

FRANK DEMPSTER SHERMAN.

THE INDIAN SUMMER.

WHEN was the red man's summer?

When the rose
Hung its first banner out? When the grey rock,
Or the brown heath, the radiant kalmia clothed?
Or when the loiterer by the reedy brooks
Started to see the proud lobelia glow
Like living flame? When through the forest gleamed
The rhododendron, or the fragrant breath
Of the magnolia swept deliciously
O'er the half laden nerve?

No. When the groves
In fleeting colors wrote their own decay,
And leaves fell eddying on the sharpened blast
That sang their dirge; when o'er their rustling bed
The red deer sprang, or fled the shrill-voiced quail,
Heavy of wing and fearful; when, with heart
Foreboding or depressed, the white man marked
The signs of coming winter, then began
The Indian's joyous season. Then the haze,
Soft and illusive as a fairy dream,
Lapped all the landscape in its silvery fold.
The quiet rivers that were wont to hide
'Neath shelving banks, beheld their course betrayed
By the white mist that o'er their foreheads crept,
While wrapped in morning dreams, the sea and sky
Slept 'neath one curtain, as if both were merged
In the same element. Slowly the sun,
And all reluctantly, the spell dissolved,
And then it took upon its parting wing
A rainbow glory.

Gorgeous was the time,
Yet brief as gorgeous. Beautiful to thee,
Our brother hunter, but to us replete
With musing thoughts in melancholy train.
Our joys, alas! too oft were woe to thee,
Yet ah, poor Indian! whom we fain would drive
Both from our hearts, and from thy fathers' lands,
The perfect year doth bear thee on its crown,
And when we would forget, repeat thy name.

MRS. LYDIA HOWARD [HUNTLEY] SIGOURNEY.

NOVEMBER.

WHO said November's face was grim ?

Who said her voice was harsh and sad ?

I heard her sing in wood-paths dim,

I met her on the shore, so glad,

So smiling, I could kiss her feet !

There never was a month so sweet.

October's splendid robes that hid

The beauty of the white-limbed trees,

Have dropped in tatters ; yet amid

Those perfect forms the gazer sees

A proud wood-monarch here and there,

Garments of wine-dipped crimson wear.

In precious flakes the autumnal gold

Is clinging to the forest's fringe :

Yon bare twig to the sun will hold

Each separate leaf, to show the tinge

Of glorious rose-light reddening through

Its jewels, beautiful as few.

Where short-lived wild flowers bloomed and died,

The slanting sunbeams fall across

Vine broideries, woven from side to side

Above mosaics of tinted moss.

So does the Eternal Artist's skill

Hide beauty under beauty still.

And if no note of bee or bird
Through the rapt stillness of the woods
Or the sea's murmurous trance be heard,
A Presence in these solitudes
Upon the spirit seems to press
The dew of God's dear silences.

And if, out of some inner heaven,
With soft relenting comes a day
Whereto the heart of June is given,
All subtle scents and spicery
Through forest crypts and arches steal,
With power unnumbered hurts to heal.

Through yonder rended veil of green
That used to shut the sky from me,
New glimpses of vast blue are seen ;
I never guessed that so much sea
Bordered my little plot of ground,
And held me clasped so close around.

This is the month of sunrise skies
Intense with molten mist and flame ;
Out of the purple deeps arise
Colors no painter yet could name :
Gold-lilies and the cardinal flower
Were pale against this gorgeous hour

Still lovelier when athwart the east
The level beam of sunset falls :
The tints of wild flowers long deceased
Glow then upon the horizon walls ;
Shades of the rose and violet
Close to their dear world lingering yet.

What idleness, to moan and fret
For any season fair, gone by !
Life's secret is not guessed at yet ;
Veil under veil its wonders lie.
Through grief and loss made glorious
The soul of past joy lives in us.

More welcome than voluptuous gales
This keen, crisp air, as conscience clear ;
November breathes no flattering tales ;
The plain truth-teller of the year ;
Who wins her heart, and he alone,
Knows she has sweetness all her own.

LUCY LARCOM.

INDIAN SUMMER.

A DREAMY haze of light ; a fair deceiver ;
A ghost of summer's solstice, whose feigned smile
Half counterfeits the real ; ah, false retriever !
Yet art a sweet consoler in thy guile.

What gentle warmth, what odors from the valleys
Drug the duped senses with their luring stealth !
The fancy drinks again from May's sweet chalice,
And revels in its fairy land of wealth.

It is the autumn's dotage, mid-November,
When skies, seductive, seem to woo the earth ;
When e'en the flowers, if living, would remember
The softer airs that swayed them at their birth.

The flowers, alas ! their perfumes have departed :
Along the streamlet's marge and upland path
Vainly I search for them, till, lonely-hearted,
I pluck, despondingly, the aftermath.

Within the barren depths of woodland yonder
I seem to hear the bluebirds caroling,
And silently through reedy thickets wander,
To find there but the mockeries of spring.

The thrushes, where are they, whose notes resounded
When all the air was vocal in the June ?
Their echoes then from hill to vale rebounded,
But now are banished out of time and tune.

The strolling piper blows a shrilly whistle ;
The hunter calls his dogs from hedge and quail ;
The maiden plucks the last-blown downy thistle,
And homeward, singing, tracks the beaten trail.

The banners of the forest fields have faded,
 And rustle in the lowly ways beneath ;
 The sleepy solitudes that once they shaded,
 Now, desolate, cherish them like some dead wreath.

And still the waning sunlit glories linger
 To fire the dying embers with their gleam,
 Until death touches all with ominous finger,
 And frowns with frozen visage on the dream.

.

STEPHEN HENRY THAYER.

A JUNE DAY IN NOVEMBER.

THE wondrous fairness of the day
 Is dying, sweet, for aye, for aye, —

Dying, and we cannot keep it here
 For all your pleading look or tear.

The glory fades from shore and river,
 And we grow still, your dear lips quiver ;

As many thoughts as there'll be stars
 Are there beyond the crimson bars,

Longing for words to set them free
 Ere darkness hides your face from me.

How strange that June should come again,
And bring such joy, then leave such pain

Now as she dies, and bleak November
Creeps back again. I shall remember

As long as life with me shall stay
The beauty of this summer day.

I oft shall see as I see now
The fairness of your low, sweet brow,

Your soulful eyes, your golden hair,
The dying sunlight lingering there,

Making a halo round your head, —
And, oh, your mouth so richly red !

Your image in the water there
Is going with the light ; the air

Is chilly, sweet ; we cannot stay
Dreaming forever, though one day

Was fair, and sad, and sweet — all three —
To you, my loved one, and to me.

The stars are up, the night comes fast ;
Our day is dead, — forever past !

LETITIA CATHARINE VANNAH.

INDIAN SUMMER.

HER harvests gathered and her wines distilled,
And all fair robes laid by for festal spring,
The year sits down her argosies to build
That shall from orient climes sweet traffic bring.

With wistful smiles she sets them all afloat,
Beneath blue skies soft veiled with gathering mist —

Like tears that rise in mother-eyes that note
The dear girl-face some beckoning love has kissed —

And says: "Go forth where rarest lilies bloom!
Bear spice and perfume from the nether seas!
When silent grows the winter's crashing loom
Return with all the joy of buds and bees!"

MRS. KATHARINE MARGARET [BROWNLEE] SHIERWOOD.

THE CHANGE.

ACROSS the valley where the wood
Grew thick with oak and maple,
Over the mountain side where stood
The pine in winter sable,

Where'er the spreading forest hung
Its branches rough and hoary,
The hangings of the month were flung,
A wreath of autumn glory.

No boisterous wind with vandal clutch
Tore out one fleck of color,
No rains fell with polluting touch
To turn the paintings duller.

For weeks the days were warm and still,
And filled with yellow hazes,
The midnights silent, clear and chill
And bright with starry mazes.

Through these long galleries of art
From picture on to picture,
We strolled, reluctant to depart,
While yet the tints grew richer.

For still the beauty brighter grew,
The landscape ever fairer ;
Each morning brought a deeper hue,
Each evening left a rarer.

At length one night across the land
A boding sunset splendor
With golden threads the valley spanned,
Like harpstrings, long and slender.

And in the night the wind and cloud
Rallied as legions rally,
And a fierce tempest, strong and loud,
Swept through the lonely valley.

And when the grey and dismal light
Came struggling in at morning,
No brilliant thing was left in sight
Save here and there, adorning

Some naked bough, a crimson leaf
Was in the tempest shaken,
Giving the final touch of grief
To the sad scene forsaken.

ERNEST WHITNEY.

NOVEMBER.

NEXT was November ; he full gross and fat
As fed with lard, and that right well might seem,
For he had been a fattening hogs of late,
That yet his brows with sweat did reek and steam ;
And yet the season was full sharp and breem :
In planting eke he took no small delight.
Whereon he rode not easy was to deem,
For it a dreadful Centaur was in sight,
The seed of Saturn and fair Vais, Chiron hight.

EDMUND SPENSER.

The Faërie Queene.

FOREST LEAVES IN AUTUMN.

RED o'er the forest peers the setting sun,
The line of yellow light dies fast away
That crowned the eastern copse ; and chill and dun
Falls on the moor the brief November day.

Now the tired hunter winds a parting note,
And Echo bids goodnight from every glade ;
Yet wait awhile, and see the calm leaves float
Each to his rest beneath their parent shade.

How like decaying life they seem to glide !
And yet no second spring have they in store,
But where they fall, forgotten to abide,
Is all their portion, and they ask no more.

Soon o'er their heads blithe April airs shall sing,
A thousand wild-flowers round them shall unfold,
The green buds glisten in the dews of spring,
And all be vernal rapture as of old.

Unconscious, they in waste oblivion lie,
In all the world of busy life around
No thought of them ; in all the bounteous sky
No drop, for them, of kindly influence found.

JOHN KEBLE.
The Christian Year.

INDIAN SUMMER.

THESE days of balmy breathings say
 The spirit of the south
 Is lingering on her homeward way,
 Sweets dropping from her mouth :
 Her presence field and forest fills,
 And tunes to music all the rills.

The brilliant leaves adorn the trees,
 Within whose cooling shade
 The aged men inhaled the breeze
 And many an urchin played.
 The trees whose dying loveliness
 Is brighter than their summer dress.

The boughs are tenantless of birds :
 The squirrel's chirp is heard
 Where concerts of melodious words
 The woods and orchards stirred :
 Light-hearted warblers ! wise betimes,
 They've hied away to sunnier climes.

.

THOMAS MACKELLAR.

AUTUMN.

THE autumn skies are flushed with gold,
And fair and bright the rivers run ;
These are but streams of winter cold
And painted mists that quench the sun.

In secret boughs no sweet birds sing,
In secret boughs no bird can shroud ;
These are but leaves that take to wing,
And wintry winds that pipe so loud.

'Tis not trees' shade, but cloudy glooms
That on the cheerless valleys fall ;
The flowers are in their grassy tombs,
And tears of dew are on them all.

THOMAS HOOD.

NOVEMBER.

THE fitful flaws sail over the river
For ever away, for ever away ;
The scattering oak leaves whirl and quiver,
Tossed by the wind away.

The bare boughs wave to the bare wild sky,
Grey against solemn grey :
The dim waves break on the dim shore nigh,
And the shore and the waves are grey.

Take my heart in your mighty arms,
Wrapt in a mantle grey;
Bind it, O spirits, with awful charms,
And bear it away, away.

THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON.

THE INDIAN SUMMER.

WHAT is there saddening in the autumn leaves?
Have they that "green and yellow melancholy"
That the sweet poet spake of? — Had he seen
Our variegated woods, when first the frost
Turns into beauty all October's charms,
When the dread fever quits us, when the storms
Of the wild Equinox, with all its wet,
Have left the land, as the first deluge left it,
With a bright bow of many colors hung
Upon the forest tops — he had not sighed.

The moon stays longest for the hunter now;
The trees cast down their fruitage, and the blithe
And busy squirrel hoards his winter store;
While man enjoys the breeze that sweeps along
The bright blue sky above him, and that bends
Magnificently all the forest's pride,
Or whispers through the evergreens, and asks,
"What is there saddening in the autumn leaves?"

JOHN GARDINER CALKINS BRAHARD.

AUTUMN.

THE rooks are calling, calling, calling,
The rooks are calling from the tree ;
The withered leaves are falling, falling,
And the winds sigh heavily :
And the human soul at this rotting hour,
With the drooping flower,
Doth inward groan,
And to its fellow maketh grievous moan.

Yet not with man and flower alone
Hath this year's time
Lost all its golden prime,
And saddened into languor and decay ;
But, one by one,
Heaven's choristers have gone,
And taken all their song away, away.

I saw the fruitage shaken, shaken,
I saw the fruitage shaken from the tree ;
And, when the boughs knew all their riches taken,
They bent in agony,
And now, for very grief,
Scarce a leaf
Doth upward turn its face of yellowing hue
To sun or dew.

But all these earth-bowed trees, though dying, dying,
Bear summed within them seed for other years ;
Then take, my soul, the burden of their sighing,
And stay these blinding tears.
We live, bear fruit, and fade on earth,
Till the even of life's story,
And only in yon land whence we had birth
Inherit undecaying glory !

GEORGE BARNETT SMITH.

INDIAN SUMMER.

THAT soft autumnal time
Is gone, that sheds upon the naked scene
Charms only known in this our northern clime,
Bright seasons far between.

The woodland foliage now
Is gathered by the wild November blast ;
Even the thick leaves upon the oaken bough
Are fallen, to the last.

The mighty vines that round
The forest trunks their slender branches bind,
Their crimson foliage shaken to the ground,
Swing naked to the wind.

Some living green remains,
By the clear brook that shines along the lawn,
But the sere grass stands white o'er all the plains,
And the bright flowers are gone.

But these, these are thy charms, —

Mild airs, and tempered light upon the lea,
And the year holds no time within his arms,
That doth resemble thee.

The sunny noon is thine,

Soft, golden, noiseless as the dead of night,
And hues that in the flushed horizon shine,
At eve and early light.

The year's last, loveliest smile,

Thou com'st to fill with hope the human heart,
And strengthen it to bear the storms awhile,
Till winter's frowns depart.

O'er the wide plains that lie

A desolate scene, the fires of autumn spread.
And on the blue walls of the starry sky,
A strange, wild glimmer shed.

Far in a sheltered nook,

I've met, in these calm days, a smiling flower,
A lonely aster, trembling by a brook,
At noon's warm, quiet hour.

And something told my mind

That should old age to childhood call me back,
Some sunny days and flowers I still might find
Along life's weary track.

JOHN HOWARD BRYANT.

A MORNING OF LATE AUTUMN.

THIS is the year's despair: some wind, last night,
Uttered too soon the irrevocable word,
And the leaves heard it and the low clouds heard;
So a wan morning dawned, of sterile light,
The few flowers hid their faces out of sight,
The cattle drowsed, and one disconsolate bird
Chirped a weak note; last came this mist, and blurred
The hills, and fed upon the fields like blight.
Ah, why so swift despair! There yet will be
Warm noons, the honeyed leaving of the year,
Hours of rich musing, ripest autumn's core,
And late heaped fruit, and falling hedgeberry,
Blossoms in cottage crofts, and yet, once more,
A song not less than June's, fervent and clear.

EDWARD DOWDEN.

NOT WINTER YET.

It is not winter yet, but that sweet time
In autumn when the first cool days are past;
A week ago, the leaves were hoar with rime,
And some have dropped before the north wind's blast;
But the mild hours are back, and at midnight,
The day hath all the genial warmth of noon.

HENRY TIMROD.

A Vision of Poesy.

THE INDIAN SUMMER.

'Tis the time
When the chime
Of the seasons' choral band is ringing out.
Smoky brightness fills the air,
For the light winds everywhere
Censers full of flowery embers swing about.
There is sweetness that oppresses,
As a tender parting blesses ;
There's a softened glow of beauty,
As when Love is wreathing Duty ;
There are melodies that seem
Weaving past and future into one fair dream.

To her bier
Comes the year, —
Not with weeping and distress, as mortals do ;
But, to guide her way to it,
All the trees have torches lit.
Crimson maples are ablaze, the woodlands through ;
Gay witch-hazels in the river
Watch their own bright tapers quiver ;
Flickering burn the birches yellow ;
Walnuts glimmer, brown and mellow ;
Dark, sad pines stand breathless by,
Mourners sole, and mourning that they cannot die.

Through the trees
Tolls the breeze ;
Tolls, then rings a merry peal, and tolls again.
Dead leaves, shaken by the sound,
Slowly float and drop around :
So does memory lull or echo thoughts of pain.
Dead leaves lie upon earth's bosom,
Side by side with many a blossom ;
Gentians, fringed with azure glory,
Sky-flakes, dropped on meadows hoary ;
Asters, thick and bright as sparks
Struck by seraph oarsmen from their starry barks.

O to die
When the sky
Smiles behind the Indian Summer's hazy veil !
Thus to glorify decay,
Going in life's best array,
Unto groves where death is a forgotten tale !
Falls a shadow on the spirit ?
Heavenly hopes are springing near it.
Earth, a happy child, rejoices,
Keeping time with angel voices :
When such autumn days are done,
There's a crown behind thy rays, thou setting sun.

LUCY LARCOM.

A NOVEMBER LANDSCAPE.

How like a rich and gorgeous picture hung
In memory's storied hall, seems that fair scene
O'er which long years their mellowing tints have flung.

The wayside flowers had faded one by one,
Hoar were the hills, the meadows drear and dun,
When homeward, wending, 'neath the dusky screen
Of the autumnal woods at close of day,
As o'er a pineclad height my pathway lay,
Lo! at a sudden turn, the vale below
Lay far outspread, all flushed with purple light;
Grey rocks and umbered woods gave back the glow
Of the last daybeams fading into night;
While down the glen where fair Moshaussuck flows,
With all its kindling lamps the distant city rose.

MRS. SARAH HELEN [POWER] WHITMAN.

NOVEMBER IN THE MARSHES.

OLD Frost, the silversmith, has come :
His crisping touch is on the weeds ;
The lingering flowers must now succumb,
And sing their death-song to the reeds ;
The purple phlox that bends its head
With mournful gaze the marsh-pool o'er,
To-morrow may lie limp and dead,
Its feathery tufts to flaunt no more.

The reeds that were so tall and slim,
And grew so straight awhile ago,
Will bow their heads before the grim
Old monitor that warns of snow.
Already has the goldenrod
Its jewels cast unto the breeze,
And the cottonweed with blackened pod
Weeps mutely near the willow trees.

Yet o'er the marsh a glory flies
As, shimmering in the misty gleam,
The gossamer's filmy meshes rise
Like motes that dance in a sunbeam;
And to the mind this fancy comes,
That haply o'er those silver threads
Some telegraphic elf-news hums
Its way to insect hearts and heads.

Through the wide reaches frequent rings
The sharp crack of the fowler's gun;
From the marsh-pond the wildduck springs,
The plover's wings flash in the sun;
Unto the city gunner's shot
Small warblers in the sedges fall.
"All's meat that comes unto his pot,"
The little brown marsh-wren and all.

O'er these low meadows hangs a spell
That holds a strange, poetic charm:
I hear it in the far cowbell,
As vagrant cattle seek the farm.

E'en in these bleak November days
There's gladness for the heart that heeds.
The marsh to me no gloom conveys,
Though the grey frost be on the weeds.

CHARLES DAWSON SHANLY.

INDIAN SUMMER.

SUMMER is gone ; but summer days return ;
The winds and frosts have stripped the woodlands bare,
Save for some clinging foliage here and there.
Now as if, pitiful, her heart did yearn,
Nature, the loving Mother, lifts her urn,
And pours the stream of life to her spent child ;
The desert air grows strangely soft and mild,
And in his veins the long-fled ardors burn.
So, when are past the mid-years of our lives,
And, sad or glad, we feel our work is done,
There comes to us with sudden swift returns
The glow, the thrill, that show life still survives,
That—though through softening mists—still shines
the sun,
And in our souls the Indian Summer burns.

SAMUEL LONGFELLOW.

AUTUMN FLOWERS.

THESE few pale autumn flowers,
How beautiful they are !
Than all that went before,
Than all the summer store,
How lovelier far !

And why ? — They are the last !
The last ! the last ! the last !
O by that little word
How many thoughts are stirred
That whisper of the past !

Pale flowers ! pale perishing flowers !
Ye're types of precious things ;
Types of those bitter moments,
That flit, like life's enjoyments,
On rapid, rapid wings ;

Last hours with parting dear ones
(That Time the fastest spends),
Last tears in silence shed,
Last words half utterèd,
Last looks of dying friends.

Who but would fain compress
A life into a day, —
The last day spent with one
Who, ere the morrow's sun,
Must leave us, and for aye ?

O precious, precious moments !
Pale flowers ! ye're types of those ;
The saddest, sweetest, dearest,
Because, like those, the nearest
To an eternal close.

Pale flowers ! pale perishing flowers !
I woo your gentle breath ;
I leave the summer rose
For younger, blither brows ;
Tell me of change and death !

MRS. CAROLINE ANN [BOWLES] SOUTHEY.

INDIAN SUMMER.

WHAT heights of rest are in these silences !
What thirst of plains the sunlight seems to slake !
The meadows bask. No bitter north winds wake
The treetops from their fruitless dream of ease.
The slow brooks murmur like a swarm of bees,
And some shy creature in the tangled brake
Darts and is still, and trooping sparrows make
A moment's chatter in the cedar trees,
Then on far skies they quickly seem to cease,
Or, wheeling, drop behind some stubbled mound.
But all day long the brooks find no release,
And lift their wandering undertones of sound.
This is the year's full flower, the crown of peace,
The sunlight's harvest, and the south wind's bound.

L. FRANK TOOKER.
In the Century Magazine.

FADED LEAVES.

THE hills are bright with maples yet,
But down the level land
The beech leaves rustle in the wind
As dry and brown as sand.

The clouds in bars of rusty red
Along the hilltops glow,
And in the still, sharp air, the frost
Is like a dream of snow.

The berries of the brier-rose
Have lost their rounded pride :
The bitter-sweet chrysanthemums
Are drooping heavy-eyed.

The cricket grows more friendly now,
The dormouse sly and wise,
Hiding away in the disgrace
Of Nature, from men's eyes.

The pigeons in black wavering lines
Are swinging toward the sun ;
And all the wide and withered fields
Proclaim the summer done.

.

ALICE CARY.

INDIAN SUMMER.

AGAIN the leaves come fluttering down,
Slowly, silently, one by one,
Scarlet and crimson, and gold and brown,
Willing to fall, for their work is done.

And once again comes the dreamy haze,
Draping the hills with its filmy blue,
And veiling the sun, whose tender rays
With mellowed light come shimmering through.

Softly it rests on the sleeping lake —
This filmy veil — and the distant shore,
Fringed with tangles of bush and brake,
Shows a dim blue line and nothing more.

The winds are asleep, save now and then
Some wandering breeze comes stealing by,
Softly rises, then sinks again,
And dies away like an infant's sigh.

You feel the spell of these dreamy days,
I know, — for your heart is in tune with mine.
You love the stillness, the tender haze ;
I know, — for your thoughts with my own entwine.

But this dreamy calm, this solemn hush,
The sleeping winds, and the mellow glow,
Only foretell the tempest's rush,
The icy blast, and the whirling snow.

We — you and I — must bow to the frost,
When our locks are white with its hoary kiss ;
Our last rose scattered, its petals lost,
May our Indian Summer be calm, — like this.

MRS. ELLEN [PALMER] ALLERTON.

NOVEMBER.

LIKE a young novice forced the world to shun
And don white weeds, November, day by day,
With a mist-mantle doth her face o'erlay
And lurk in exile from the joyous sun :
Yet, as in musing on the name of nun,
The maiden's mind recoils and soars away
In dreams of radiant hope, which one by one
Fleeting in tears, she turns to fast and pray ;
So will the month some precious hours retain
Of crimson, russet, golden light to stain
Her beeches, oaks and elms, but fills the room
Of that fair pageant with dissolving rain.
Nun-like at last, she garbs herself in gloom
And takes the stern vows of a wintry doon.

HENRY GAY HEWLETT.

An English Year.

INDIAN SUMMER.

AFTER October's biting frosts it seems
That summer days return. The partridge whirrs
A noisy wing to ambush in the firs ;
And for a while the sun re-tricks his beams.
It is an autumn that of springtime dreams.
The warm breeze comes again, and softly stirs
The silent treetops, and the empty burrs,
Which, loosened, drop into the leaf-clogged streams.
Ah ! dear, this tardy sunshine, and the last.
So we shall find — our summer being past,
And hoar-frost with us — for a little breath
So fair a country, such a genial air ;
And shall forget our woes, and unaware
Step over to the border-land of Death !

ANDREW BICE SAXTON.

In the Century Magazine.

AUTUMN PEACE.

THERE is a golden season in our year,
Between October's hale and lusty cheer,
And the hoar frost of winter's empire drear ;

Which, like a fairy flood of mystic tides,
Whereon divine tranquility abides,
The kingdom of the sovereign months divides ;

The wailing winds their requiems cease,
Ere winter's sturdier storms have gained release,
And heaven and earth alike are bright with peace.

PAUL HAMILTON HAYNE.

The Two Summers.

NOVEMBER.

THE wild November comes at last
Beneath a veil of rain ;
The night-wind blows its folds aside,
Her face is full of pain.

The latest of her race, she takes
The autumn's vacant throne :
She has but one short moon to live,
And she must live alone.

A barren realm of withered fields :
Bleak woods of fallen leaves :
The palest morns that ever dawned :
The dreariest of eves :

It is no wonder that she comes,
Poor month ! with tears of pain :
For what can one so hopeless do
But weep, and weep again !

RICHARD HENRY STODDARD.

INDIAN SUMMER.

As some decrepit citizen reviews
In dreaming reverie, his boyhood o'er,
Fondly remembering joys that once were his,
And sighing for the days that are no more ;

So, in these autumn days, the failing year
Dreams of his youth, forever passed away ;
Stops for a while his blustering career,
To spend in quiet retrospect the day.

He dreams of summer, and again the air
Grows soft and calm, again the sky grows bright,
Again, through dreamy mist, the distant hills
Lose their rough outlines in a mellow light.

He dreams of summer's flowers, and through the fields
Where buttercups and daisies marked the sod,
Where golden dandelions and bluebells grew,
Blossom the aster and the goldenrod.

So soft he dreams, so gently comes his breath,
That where close-reefed she sped before the gale,
The swelling tide just rocks the fisher's boat
That slowly drifts with idly-flapping sail.

Dear autumn days, so calm, so sweet,
Like a bright, welcome memory you seem ;
So full of tremulous and hazy light,
So soft, so radiant, so like a dream !

WALTER LEARNED.

NOVEMBER WIND.

IN slack wind of November
The fog forms and shifts ;
All the world comes out again
When the fog lifts.
Loosened from their sapless twigs
Leaves drop with every gust ;
Drifting, rustling out of sight
In the damp or dust.

CHRISTINA GEORGINA ROSSETTI.

A Year's Windfalls.

THE HUNTER'S MOON.

FROM gold to grey
Our mild sweet day
Of Indian Summer fades too soon ;
But tenderly
Above the sea
Hangs, white and calm, the hunter's moon.

In its pale fire
The village spire
Shows like the Zodiac's spectral lance ;
The painted walls
Whereon it falls
Transfigured stand in marble trance !

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

The Eve of Election.

INDIAN SUMMER.

How quietly the year,
Beneath this soft-eyed season's gentle sway,
Falls in its full maturity away

On winter's frozen bier !
Like sunset gathering to its twilight close,
Or old age sinking to its last repose.

When first broke morning's light,
Volumes of fog a feathery ocean rolled,
The woods loomed glimmering from the misty fold,
Dimly the mountain's height
Seemed struggling in the thick and mantling screen.
And the bird sang and streamlet played unseen.

The mist has cleared away ;
O'erhead the mild sun glows, a reddened ball,
And on the earth his placid glances fall,
While tranquil, meek, and grey,
The sky spreads, shaded with its fleece of cloud,
And azure glimpses breaking from the shroud.

The hill slopes soft and calm,
The fields still basking in the noontide light,
All seem my wandering footsteps to invite ;
And with the south wind's balm
Fanning in pure fresh kisses on my brow,
My path is mid their haunts of quiet now.

.

Along the forest way
I tread ; the soft wind from the pine creeps down
And rustles in the beechen thicket brown,
Then whirls in eddying play
The withered leaves strewn idly, rattling fast,
As showering falls the ripened sylvan mast.

The deer glides shadowy by ;
The rabbit springs before me winged with dread ;
The squirrel leaves the strewed nuts where it fed
With a low, chirping cry,
And the quick flicker like a chequered speck,
Climbs the mossed oak and taps with darting neck.

The air, how calm and still !
Each gentle sound comes sweetly to my ear ;
The falling nut, the bee-wing's music near,
The purling of the rill,
The chirp of bird, the sighing of the breeze,
And the far axe-blow echoing through the trees.

.

ALFRED BILLINGS STREET.

NOVEMBER.

THE touch of chill November
Falls on the waiting land ;
The oak trees and the larches
With shivering branches stand ;
And winter's desolation
Is felt on every hand.

The dead stems mourn their flowers ;
The bare trees mourn their leaves ;
The voice of coming winter
Sobbingly sighs and grieves ;
And the drear November sunset
Its lengthened shadow weaves.

There breaks not on the silence
The twitter of a bird ;
Within the forest arches
No summer song is heard,
And only by the north wind
The leafless limbs are stirred.

O birds ! O leaves ! O flowers !
O fading things and brief !
Our human lives are falling
As falls the autumn leaf,
And in our drear November
Our hearts are bowed with grief.

And yet the winter's bondage,
The ice, the frost, the snow,
Shall melt again and vanish
When spring's warm breezes blow,
And under winter's covering
The flower of Hope shall grow.

ELISHA NORMAN GUNNISON.

AUTUMN HOURS.

DAYS of the dying year,
Ye have rare beauty in your paler sun
And kindling leaf that falls on mosses sere,
Noiselessly dropping with your mission done.

Only the later bird
Winnows the air, neglectful of its song,
Dropping amid the branches all unheard,
Or through deserted pathways hops along.

Not weary yet for rest,
For its long winter sleep, the squirrel springs
From trunk to swaying branch, in pleasant quest
Of its late harvest where the nut still clings.

And the white frost comes down
Through the chill air, and clothes the yet green grass
With a weird mantle, till the glowing crown
Of the uprisen sun bids the frail beauty pass.

The air takes on its tone
Of mingled grief and sweetness, as if now
Above dead flowers the field is all its own,
From the far hillside to dismantled bough.

Oh, linger yet awhile
With sweet remembrances, with chastened light,
While thought can bask in summer's genial smile,
Nor fold its wings like flowers at coming blight.

MRS. HANNAH JANE [WOODMAN] LEWIS.

INDIAN SUMMER.

At last the toil-encumbered days are over,
And airs of noon are mellow as the morn ;
The blooms are brown upon the seeding clover,
And brown the silks that plume the ripening corn.

All sounds are hushed of reaping and of mowing ;
The winds are low ; the waters lie uncurled ;
Nor thistledown nor gossamer is flowing,
So lulled in languid indolence the world.

And vineyards wide and farms along the valley
Are mute amid the vintage and the sheaves,
Save round the barns the noise of rout and rally
Among the tenant-masons of the eaves.

Afar the upland glades are flecked in dapples
By flocks of lambs a-gambol from the fold ;
And orchards bend beneath their weight of apples,
And groves are bright in scarlet and in gold.

But hark ! I hear the pheasant's muffled drumming,
The turtle's murmur from a distant dell,
A drowsy bee in mazy tangles humming,
The far, faint, tinkling tenor of a bell.

And now, from yonder beech-trunk, sheer and sterile,
The rat-tat-tat of the woodpecker's bill,
The sharp staccato barking of the squirrel,
A dropping nut, and all again is still.

JAMES POWER IRVINE.
In the Century Magazine.

INDIAN SUMMER.

DULLED to a drowsy fire, one hardly sees
The sun in heaven, where this broad, smoky round
Lies ever brooding at the horizon's bound ;
And through the gaunt knolls, on monotonous leas,
Or through the damp wood's troops of naked trees,
Rustling the brittle ruin along their ground,
Like sighs from souls of perished hours, resound
The melancholy melodies of the breeze !
So ghostly and strange a look the blurred world wears,
Viewed from this flowerless garden's dreary squares,
That now, while these weird vaporous days exist,
It would not seem a marvel if where we walk,
We met, dim-glimmering on its thorny stalk,
Some pale intangible rose with leaves of mist !

EDGAR FAWCETT.

AUTUMN SONG.

WHAT have rustling leaves to say,
Fit to make us sad or glad?
*Ere the wind blew us away,
Much delight in life we had.*

*Now we both of us are sad,
Both of us would death defer, —
You, because you are not glad,
We, because we always were.*

This is what the brown leaves say,
With a sadness less than mine :
Dear, if I should die to-day,
Give me something to resign.

ROBERT KELLEY WEEKS.

IN NOVEMBER.

DRY leaves across the roadway blown,
And cornstalks in the brown fields strown;
A few dull yellow blooms that stand
As sentinels at either hand,
And barren sticks of sedgy broom
Where two or three late locusts boom.
Chill winds sweep down the mountain way,
The skies are leaden-like and grey;
A squirrel on an old stone wall
Takes easy cognizance of all;

The vane upon a distant tower
Twists, turns a hundred ways an hour ;
And on the beach the waves roll in
With sullen roar and stubborn din.
The dead vine rattles, and the breeze
Goes moaning through the swaying trees.

A stiff blast steadies yonder vane,
And from the east the driving rain
Comes dashing on the windowpane.

Let down the shades and light the fire
That leaps to flame like young desire,
While from the logs bird-voices ring,
The echoes of some bygone spring,
When hopes and mayflowers bloomed indeed
That now have gone alike to seed.
There comes the sound of childish feet
And childish laughter loud and sweet,
And little hands stretch eager palms
To beg the firelight's golden alms.
The red lips part in sunny smiles,
And brown eyes, blue eyes, try their wiles
To win the freedom of a knee
Where each holds potent sovereignty.
Then let the winds blow wild outside,
The clouds grow black and rise the tide,
And winter come when storms are free
To roam at will o'er land and sea, —
My little babes keep spring for me.

JAMES BERRY BENSEL

A NOVEMBER DANDELION.

BRIGHT wanderer from the court of spring,
Within these fading realms of frost
Where not a songbird plumes its wing,
Thou seemest lost!

Thy comrades 'neath the sapphire dome
Made royal riot throughout May,
And then, like ghosts, as white as foam,
They flew away.

Alas ! that thou shouldst hope to find
Such joyance now that skies are drear,
When, like an outcast in the wind,
Weeps the old year!

Born out of time, thou canst but go,
Like some forlorn, deserted thing,
Down to thy death beneath the snow,
A wraith of spring!

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

NOVEMBER.

THERE is no wind at all to-night
To dash the drops against the pane ;
No sound abroad, nor any light,
And sadly falls the autumn rain ;

There is no color in the world,
No lovely tint on hill or plain ;
The summer's golden sails are furled,
And sadly falls the autumn rain.

The earth lies tacitly beneath
As it were dead to joy or pain :
It does not move, it does not breathe,
And sadly falls the autumn rain. -

And all my heart is patient too,
I wait till it shall wake again ;
The songs of springs shall sound anew,
Though sadly falls the autumn rain. .

MRS. CELIA [LAUGHTON] THAXTER.

INDIAN SUMMER.

As when the flame beneath is spent and dead,
The grey smoke, curling, paints the upper air, —
As when bright flowers have bloomed, and leaves are shed,

Remembered summer gilds the atmosphere, —
So gathers round the face a mocking haze,
Once bud, once blossom, and now withered there,
And flatters it to bloom with rosy days
In love's æstival castle in the air.

AUGUSTUS RADCLIFFE GROTE.

INDIAN SUMMER.

THE air is warm, warm as in June, the sky
As blue as June's and yet I hear no song,
Nor even the chirp of birds; and far along,
Stirred by the light wind, or the passer-by,
The crimson leaves are crackling; and the cry
Of hunter's hounds sweeps o'er the yellow hill.
Choked in its bed, in silence sleeps the rill;
The rabbit leaves his form; and far on high,
On the tall hickory, the squirrel springs
From limb to limb, and yet the woods are bare;
And though the air is June's, the forests wear
A wintry aspect, while the silence brings
My thoughts to times when I, if living, sere,
May yearn for hours as bright, when all around is dear.

HENRY B. HIRST.

NOVEMBER.

WHEN October's day is past,
Charging down the hurrying blast,
With his helm and spear and shield,
Stern November drives afield,
And his trainband bugle's call
Sweeps the forest's airy hall ;
All his bannered hosts of air
Charge across the meadows bare,
Hurrying in their angered mood
Over many a barren rood,
Past the sere and shadowed dell,
Lonely save by clank of bell.
Now the farmer o'er the plain
Shouts unto his oxen twain ;
And the lone crow on his perch,
Of a bended, bearded birch,
Caws and guards his sooty band,
The pirate chieftains of the land.
In the distance, lone and chill,
Where the sheepwalk climbs the hill,
And the silent, windswept wold
Shows the bare old oak tree cold,
And the dark clouds droop their shade,
And the brown quail flits the glade,
From his swamp of woodland ground
Comes the deep bay of the hound ;
And the startled partridge brood
Whirring break the solitude.

Now the clear-cut "dee-dee-dee"
Comes from snowbird on the tree;
And the crow's deserted nest
Hides the squirrel's furry vest;
The late robin, flitting lone,
All his redbreast brethren flown,
Hears the bluejay's angered scream
From his maple o'er the stream.
Down the roadway of the skies,
Coursing south, the wild goose hies
To return when golden spring
Brings to him a brighter wing.

Where of late in glory brief
Came the song that binds the sheaf,
Sad-voiced silent Nature sees
Scattered barren withered leas;
All her couriers, clad in gold,
Have fled before the giant bold,
Who, on cloud-capped steed of ire,
Born of heaven's own sacred fire,
With his legioned lines in charge
Sweeps the cold black river's marge.
He has fled from fields afar,
Underneath the polar star,
Where red Boreas's banners fly
High upon old winter's sky,
And his red artillery's war
Thunders down from Labrador.

JAMES RILEY.

INDIAN SUMMER.

LIGHT as love's smiles the silvery mist at morn
Floats in loose flakes along the limpid river ;
The bluebird's notes upon the soft breeze borne,
As high in air he carols, faintly quiver ;
The weeping birch, like banners idly waving,
Bends to the stream, its spicy branches laving ;
Beaded with dew the witch-elm's tassels shiver ;
The timid rabbit from the furze is peeping,
And from the springy spray the squirrel's gayly leaping.

.

CHARLES FENNO HOFFMAN.

AN INDIAN SUMMER ROSE.

THE soft November days are here,
The aftermath of blossom's year ;
When all the verdant leaves are dead,
And crimson banners float instead ;

When summer, sorry she has gone,
Turns sadly back to look upon
Her fading kingdom, smiles and throws
Into earth's lap a brilliant rose.

.

MRS. SARA LOUISA [VICKERS] OBERHOLTZER.

INDIAN SUMMER.

It is the season when the light of dreams
Around the year in golden glory lies ;
The heavens are full of floating mysteries,
And down the lake the veiled splendor beams.
Like hidden poets lie the hazy streams,
Mantled with mysteries of their own romance,
While scarce a breath disturbs their drowsy trance.
The yellow leaf which down the soft air gleams,
Glides, wavers, falls, and skims the unruffled lake.
Here the frail maples and the faithful firs
By twisted vines are wed. The russet brake
Skirts the low pool ; and starred with open burrs
The chestnut stands, — but when the north wind stirs,
How, like an armed host, the summoned scene shall wake !

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

IN THE WOODS.

I WALKED alone in depths of autumn woods ;
The ruthless winds had left the maple bare ;
The fern was withered, and the sweetbrier's breath
No longer gave its fragrance to the air.

The barberry strung its coral beads no more ;
The thistledown on gauzy wings had flown ;
And myriad leaves, on which the summer wrote
Her blushing farewell, at my feet were strown.

A loneliness pervaded every spot ;
A gloom of which my musing soul partook ;
"All nature mourns," I said ; "November wild Hath torn the fairest pages from her book."

But suddenly a wild bird overhead
Poured forth a strain so strangely clear and sweet,
It seemed to bring me back the skies of May,
And wake the sleeping violets at my feet.

Then long I pondered o'er the poet's words,
" The loss of beauty is not always loss,"
Till like the voice of love they soothed my pain,
And gave me strength to bear again my cross.

O murmuring heart ! thy pleasures may decay,
Thy faith grow cold, thy golden dreams take wing ;
Still in the realm of faded youth and joy,
Heaven kindly leaves some bird of hope to sing.

ALBERT LAIGHTON.

INDIAN SUMMER.

WEEP, weep, November rain :
White mists, fall like a shroud
Upon the dead earth's ended joy and pain ;
Wild blasts, lift up your voices, cry aloud,
Dash down the last leaves from the quivering boughs,
And wail about the house,
O melancholy wind,
Like one that seeketh and can never find.

But come not, O sweet days,
Out of yon cloudless blue,
Ghosts of so many dear remembered Mays,
With faces like dead lovers, who died true.
Come not, lest we go seek with eyes all wet,
Primrose and violet,
Forgetting that they lie
Deep in the mould till winter has gone by.

Till winter has gone by !
Come then, days bright and strange,
Quiet, while this mad world whirls reckless by,
Restful, amidst this life of restless change.
Shine on, sweet Indian Summer, tender, calm,
The year's last thankful psalm
To God you smiling bring.
We too will smile : and wait the eternal spring.

MRS. DINAH MARIA [MULOCK] CRAIK.

KYRIELLE.

IN spring Love came, a welcome guest,
And tarried long at my behest ;
Now autumn wanes, the skies are grey,
But loyal Love flees not away.

I charmed him with melodious lays
Through long rose-scented summer days ;
My songs no more are clear and gay,
But loyal Love flees not away.

We plucked and twined the myrtle flowers,
Made joyance in the sylvan bowers ;
The blooms have died, wild winds hold sway,
But loyal Love flees not away.

Gone are the piping crickets, gone
The feathered harbingers of dawn,
And gone the woodland's bright display,
But loyal Love flees not away.

With intermingled light and shade
The shifting seasons come and fade ;
Our fond hopes fail, false friends betray,
But loyal Love flees not away !

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

INDIAN SUMMER.

'Tis Indian Summer's richest, latest day ;
The skies are bending down, serenely blue ;
And, to the south wind's sigh, the branches sway
With answering music as they lightly strew
Upon the ground beneath, the gorgeous leaves
Of russet-green and ruby-red and gold,
So bright, my heart, sad as the south wind, grieves
To see their glories sinking in the mold.
And every gay and gladsome thing seems taking
A lingering leave of grove and field and sky ;
Birds, all the glens and forest aisles forsaking,
In croft and orchard sweet lament are making
For roses dead and loveless winter nigh.
The bees are hovering o'er the lonely flowers,
The gift of mild September's sunny hours,—
Pale asters that have lived through frosty eves,
And still in languid beauty tint their leaves
Amid the mountain fern, that yet retains
Its fragrant breath through all the autumnal rains,
And meek immortelles that, till snows appear,
Will mourn the buried splendors of the year ;
While squirrels haste with nuts and acorns brown
That every waft above the wood brings down ;
And, on the wing, a golden butterfly,
The last, the loveliest, is flitting by.

So calm ! so fair ! yet well I know at morn
Wild winds will blow till all the groves are shorn,
And soft mists vanish and the mountains rise
Cold and severe in melancholy skies.
Now fades the sun from hill and stream and dell,
O mellow Indian Summer ! fare thee well !

EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

THE DEPARTURE OF SUMMER.

SUMMER is gone on swallows' wings,
And earth has buried all her flowers :
No more the lark, the linnet sings,
But silence sits in faded bowers.
There is a shadow on the plain
Of Winter ere he comes again,
Of hollow warnings whispered round,
As Echo in her deep recess
For once had turned a prophetess.
Shuddering Autumn stops to list,
And breathes his fear in sudden sighs,
With clouded face, and hazel eyes
That quench themselves, and hide in mist.

.

THOMAS HOOD.

IN NOVEMBER.

HERE is the watershed of all the year,
Where, by a thought's space, thoughts do start anear
That fare most widely forth ; some to the mouth
Of Arctic rivers, some to the mellow south.

The gaunt and wrinkled orchard shivers 'neath
The blast, like Lear upon the English heath,
And mossy boughs blow wild, that, undistressed,
Another spring shall hide the cheerful nest.

All things are nearer from this chilly crown,
The solitude, the white and huddling town ;
And next the russet fields, of harvest shorn,
Shines the new wheat that freshens all the morn.

From out the bursting milkweed, dry and grey,
The silken argosies are launched away,
To mount the gust, or drift from hill to hill,
And plant new colonies by road and rill.

Ah, wife of mine, whose clinging hand I hold,
Shrink you before the New, or at the Old ?
And those far eyes that hold the silence fast, —
Look they upon the Future, or the Past ?

ROBERT UNDERWOOD JOHNSON.

NOVEMBER.

NEXT, November, limping, battered,
Blinded in a whirl of leaf ;
Worn of want, and travel-tattered,
Next, November, limping, battered ;
Now the goodly ships are shattered,
Far at sea, on rock and reef.

HENRY AUSTIN DOBSON.

The Masque of the Months.

THE FALL OF LEAVES.

DOWN in the hollow courtyard,
High-walled, and paved with stone,
The dead-brown leaves came fluttering,
In drifts, but each alone.

They shiver in the sunshine,
They rustle in the dust,
And stagger into crack and chink,
Or perish in the gust.

Within myself I've wondered,
Without, I've stilled my eyes,
And watched the world grow sombre
Beneath more sombre skies.

GEORGE WASHINGTON WRIGHT HOUGHTON.

FALLEN LEAVES.

THE dying summer had spilled its blood,
 O the beautiful weather !
On all the oak leaves in the wood
 As we went out together.

The partridge sprang from the yellowing corn,
 O the beautiful weather !
And sang the song of a bridal morn
 As we went out together.

The wind came gathering up his bands,
 O the changeful weather !
And a shadow settled on all the lands
 As we went out together.

The red leaves tumbled among the rocks,
 The cruel, cruel weather !
Like birds shot bleeding out of flocks,
 As we went out together.

I made your bed beneath the pines
 Where we had walked together :
I hid you under the sheltering vines
 From the cruel, cruel weather.

But a cold rain sobbing on all the leaves,
And the dry grass on the heather,
The silent heart that aches and grieves,
Know it is wintry weather.

WILL WALLACE HARNEY.

IN NOVEMBER.

SOFT, sweet and sad in its pathetic glory,
The pale November sunshine floods the earth,
Like a bright ending to a mournful story,
Or, in a minor tune, a chord of mirth.

Before the wet west wind forever drifting,
The falling leaves fly o'er the garden walks ;
The wet west wind the bare gaunt branches lifting,
And bowing to black mold the withered stalks.

The blackbird whistles to the lingering thrushes,
The wren chirps welcome to the hardy tit,
While the brave robin, 'neath the holly-bushes,
Sees what of berried store still gleams for it.

And the heart, sad for vanished hopes, in turning
Back to lost summers from the winter's chill,
Sees the rich promise through the weary yearning,
That heaven and spring will each our trust fulfil.

MRS. SUSAN KELLY [HOLDSWORTH] PHILLIPS.

THE DEATH OF THE FLOWERS.

THE melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year,
Of wailing winds, and naked woods, and meadows
brown and sere.
Heaped in the hollows of the grove, the autumn
leaves lie dead;
They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rabbit's
tread;
The robin and the wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay,
And from the woodtop calls the crow through all the gloomy day.

Where are the flowers, the fair young flowers, that lately sprang and stood
In brighter light and softer airs, a beauteous sisterhood?
Alas! they all are in their graves, the gentle race of flowers
Are lying in their lowly beds, with the fair and good of ours.
The rain is falling where they lie, but the cold
November rain
Calls not from out the gloomy earth the lovely ones again.

The wind-flower and the violet, they perished long ago,
And the brier-rose and the orchis died amid the summer glow;
But on the hill the goldenrod, and the aster in the wood,
And the yellow sunflower by the brook in autumn beauty stood,
Till fell the frost from the clear cold heaven, as falls the plague on men,
And the brightness of their smile was gone, from upland, glade, and glen.

And now, when comes the calm mild day, as still such days will come,
To call the squirrel and the bee from out their winter home;
When the sound of dropping nuts is heard, though
 all the trees are still,
And twinkle in the smoky light the waters of the
 rill,
The south wind searches for the flowers whose fragrance late he bore,
And sighs to find them in the wood and by the stream no more.

And then I think of one who in her youthful beauty died,
The fair meek blossom that grew up and faded by my side.

In the cold moist earth we laid her, when the forests cast the leaf,
And we wept that one so lovely should have a life so brief :
Yet not unmeet it was that one, like that young friend of ours,
So gentle and so beautiful, should perish with the flowers.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

NOVEMBER SUNSHINE AND THE HOUSE-FLIES.

WHEN the dawn struck on Memnon, as they say,
 The child of morning answered ; so the stroke
 Of this warm sunshine on the room, awoke
To song those lesser children of the day,
 The window-flies ; I watched each mazy track,
I saw them deftly treading the smooth pane,
 Or, haply, flitting with prone wings and back,
To the near cornice, to return again.
Ah ! little ones, your joy is brief and vain :
 Full soon the brush shall sweep your tiny forms,
Supine and dumb, into the wind and rain ;
 'Tis sad to be swept out into the storms.
'Twere sadder to revive, and cast about
For foothold, in that roaring world without.

CHARLES TENNYSON-TURNER.

AUTUMN EVEN-SONG.

THE long cloud, edged with streaming grey,
Soars from the west ;
The red leaf mounts with it away,
Showing the nest
A blot among the branches bare :
There is a cry of outcasts in the air.

Swift little breezes, darting chill,
Pant down the lake ;
A crow flies from the yellow hill,
And in its wake
A baffled line of laboring rooks :
Steel-surfaced to the light the river looks.

Pale on the panes of the old hall
Gleams the lone space
Between the sunset and the squall ;
And on its face
Mournfully glimmers to the last :
Great oaks grow mighty minstrels in the blast.

Pale the rain-rutted roadways shine
In the green light
Behind the cedar and the pine :
Come, thundering night !
Blacken broad earth with hoards of storm ;
For me yon valley-cottage beckons warm.

GEORGE MEREDITH.

NOVEMBER.

WITHIN the deep-blue eyes of heaven a haze
Of saddened passion dims their tender light,
For that her fair queen-child, the summer bright,
Lies a wan corse amidst her mouldering bays.
The sullen autumn lifts no voice of praise
To herald winter's cold and cruel might,
But winds foreboding fill the desolate night,
And die at dawning down wild woodland ways.
The sovereign sun at noonday smileth cold,
As through a shroud he hath no power to part,
While huddled flocks crouch listless round their fold ;
The mockbird's dumb ; no more with cheerful dart
Upsoars the lark through morning's quivering gold,
And dumb or dead, methinks, great Nature's heart !

PAUL HAMILTON HAYNE.

AUTUMN SONG.

THE summer days are ended ;
The afterglow is gone ;
The nights grow long and eerie ;
The winds begin to moan ;
The pleasant leaves are fading ;
The bonny swallows flee ;
Yet welcome is the winter
That brings my Love to me.

No voice of bird now ripples
The air; no woodwalk rings;
But in my happy bosom
The soul of music sings.
It sings of clearest heaven
And summers yet to be;
Then welcome is the winter
That brings my Love to me.

A world of gathered sunshine
Is this warm heart of mine,
Where life hath heaped the fruitage,
And love hath hid the wine.
And though there's not a flower
In field, nor leaf on tree;
Yet welcome is the winter
That brings my Love to me.

GERALD MASSEY.

NOVEMBER.

WHEN thistleblows do lightly float
About the pasture height,
And shrills the hawk a parting note,
And creeps the frost at night,
Then hilly ho! though singing so,
And whistle as I may,
'There comes again the old heart pain
Through all the livelong day.

In high wind creaks the leafless tree
And nods the fading fern ;
The knolls are dun as snowclouds be,
And cold the sun does burn.
Then ho, hollo ! though calling so,
I cannot keep it down ;
The tears arise unto mine eyes,
And thoughts are chill and brown.

Far in the cedars' dusky stoles,
Where the sere ground-vine weaves,
The partridge drums funereal rolls
Above the fallen leaves.
And hip, hip, ho ! though cheering so,
It stills no whit the pain ;
For drip, drip, drip, from bare branch-tip,
I hear the year's last rain.

So drive the cold cows from the hill,
And call the wet sheep in ;
And let their stamping clatter fill
The barn with warming din.
And ho, folk, ho ! though it is so
That we no more may roam,
We still will find a cheerful mind
Around the fire at home.

C. L. CLEAVELAND.

THE NOVEMBER FOG OF LONDON.

FIRST at the dawn of lingering day,
It rises, of an ashen grey ;
Then deepening with a sordid stain
Of yellow, like a lion's mane.
Vapor importunate and dense,
It wars at once with every sense.
The ears escape not. All around
Returns a dull unwonted sound.
Loath to stand still, afraid to stir,
The chilled and puzzled passenger,
Oft blundering from the pavement, fails
To feel his way along the rails ;
Or at the crossings, in the roll
Of every carriage dreads the pole.
Scarce an eclipse, with pall so dun,
Blots from the face of heaven the sun.
But soon a thicker, darker cloak
Wraps all the town, behold ! in smoke,
Which steam-compelling trade disgorges
From all her furnaces and forges
In pitchy clouds ; too dense to rise,
It drops rejected from the skies ;
Till struggling day, extinguished, quite,
At noon gives place to candle-light.

.

HENRY LUTTRELL.

NOVEMBER.

No sun — no moon !
No morn — no noon —
No dawn — no dust — no proper time of day —
No sky — no earthly view —
No distance looking blue —
No road — no street — no “ t’other side the way ” —
No end to any Row —
No indications where the Crescents go —
No top to any steeple —
No recognitions of familiar people —
No courtesies for showing ’em —
No knowing ’em !
No travelling at all — no locomotion —
No inkling of the way — no notion —
“ No go ” — by land or ocean —
No mail — no post —
No news from any foreign coast —
No park — no ring — no afternoon gentility —
No company — no nobility —
No warmth, no cheerfulness, no healthful ease,
No comfortable feel in any member —
No shade, no shine, no butterflies, no bees,
No fruits, no flowers, no leaves, no birds,
November !

THOMAS HOOD.

AUTUMN IS ENDED.

Down drop the painted leaves ;
The world lies stripped and wounded, cold and bare ;
Piled are the golden sheaves ;
And past is every object sweet and fair.

Now faded are the flowers
And grass on sloping hills and tranquil dales ;
And songless are the bowers
Where lovers came and breathed their secret tales.

The fruits are ripe and gone ;
The fields have lost their wealth and vernal cheer ;
The stars throw smiles upon
The full-armed gleaners of the harvest year.

Winds come with chill'ing breath ;
Rains fall, and brooks from woods begin to rise ;
Gloom fills the realm of death ;
And birds take flight for warmth of southern skies.

There's nothing bright nor fair,
Save fields of wheat that wear their cloaks of green ;
There's nothing in the air
But chill, where rays of gold and love have been.

The seed of change was sown
Through months, by viewless hands, in field and town;
And Autumn, near his throne,
Lets fall his crowded horn and brazen crown.

The skies hang cold and grey;
Among the hills the winds begin to blow;
Herds strike their homeward way,
And earth grows white and strange with flying snow.

J. HAZARD HARTZELL.

NOVEMBER TREES.

LET poets sing of their leafy trees
When the tides of summer fancies swell
And rock their thoughts, as a tropic breeze
Rocks the bee in a lily's bell;
But give me a harp whose ring is sharp,
Tuned for November melodies,
That I may roam the bleak hills alone
And sing of the grey and leafless trees.

Their boughs are bare in the twilight dark,
Cold and bare when the moon is high,
Like the cordage and masts of a stranded bark
That warp and freeze in a polar sky.
There is never a leaf the sky-born thief
Did not hurry away ere its color was gone.
But the boughs, though bare, to me are as fair
As the naked forms of the Parthenon.

Where the branches part in the dusky wood
The golden mist of the sunset streams;
And tracts of starlit solitude
Glimmer at night on a world of dreams.
The wind is chill on the rugged hill,
And the early snow is gathering;
But the winter is naught, for the boughs are fraught
With the flow of sap and the hope of spring.

O patriots whom the tyrant's hate
O'ershadows like the winter drear,
While like the patient trees ye wait,
Freedom, the nation's spring, is near.
Never despair, though the darkening air
Sweep all your summer leaves away;
The wind may rifle your branches bare,
Your leaves will burst anew in May!

CHRISTOPHER PEARSE CRANCH.

A SUNSET IN NOVEMBER.

THE leaden slowness of the prostrate clouds,
The dark preëminence of naked boughs,
The blind compulsion of the uncertain wind,
The helpless rustling of the withered leaves,
The listless movement of the abandoned waves,
I marked them all, I made them all my own,
To help me to the sunset I foresaw,
And longed for fiercely that November day.

It came at last, I know not how it came,
A clouded fire showed smoldering in the west,
Faded and seemed extinguished. Overhead
The massy clouds, like giants out of dreams
Uneasily awaking, rolled apart,
Closed, wavered, opened, with a sudden gleam
Of silvery edges ; and then all was changed.
Upsprang the breeze, the waves, the branches sprang ;
The brown leaves quivered and went by like birds ;
The smoldering clouds about the western hills
Upblown rose huddling, and let me see the sun —
Red, rayless, half-consumed — beyond the earth
Slow drawing backward ; while around his place
And over him increasing, the new light
Burnt red, intense and glowing, here and there
Veiled with a restless vapor that arose
Confused and formless, like a fiery smoke.
Lower he sank ; o'erhead the parted clouds
Lightened and thinned, and stretching them in flight,
Flushed and grew crimson ; while beyond the lake
Joyous with gold and purple, and beyond
The feathery outlines of the purpling hills,
The open west 'neath mingling green and blue
Was one transparent river of bright gold
That northward slowly paling many a mile,
Round crimson islands and past rosy shores,
Streamed silent, waveless, to where side by side
A nestling cluster of round little clouds
Bloomed opalescent in clear amber air.

ROBERT KELLEY WEEKS.

THE DYING YEAR.

THE year is dying, soberly the trees
Are mellowing, — with a dull sad face
They lean against the sadness of the sky ;
The glory of the summer has gone by,
Gone is the smile of gladness from the place.

O sad to see the sun come later up,
And sad to see him pass betimes away,
And sad the pallid glints he throws across
The leaf-strewn garden ; sad the sense of loss,
The all-pervading fragrance of decay.

Yet at the open window, as I sit
With closed eyes, and hear the gentle rain
Fall on the damp green earth like lovers' sighs,
And feel the breath of dying earth arise
From far and near, from hillock and from plain,

And hear the tender cawing of the rooks'
Melodious symphony among the trees,
I am in other places far from here,
I stand upon the threshold of the year,
Among remembered sounds so like to these.

The same soft drip of lightly falling showers,
Upon the moss green growing everywhere,
The same strange stilly warmth in the lift,
The cawing of the rooks, the gentle drift
Of odorous distillings in the air,

Daffodils growing on the field's green breast,
Buds all a-blow, and the enchanted breath
Of violets peeping in the damp hedgerow,
Kindled to being, — O mystery, that so
Death looks like life, and life so like to death!

MRS. CHRISTINA CATHERINE [FRASER-TYTLER] LIDDELL.

AUTUMN IN CORNWALL.

THE year lies fallen and faded
On cliffs by clouds invaded,
With tongues of storms upbraided,
 With wrath of waves bedinned;
And inland, wild with warning,
As in deaf ears or scorning,
The clarion even and morning
 Rings of the southwest wind.

The wild bents wane and wither
In blasts whose breath bows hither
Their grey-grown heads and thither,
 Unblest of rain or sun;
The pale fierce heavens are crowded
With shapes like dreams beclouded,
As though the old year enshrouded
 Lay, long ere life were done.

Full-charged with old-world wonders,
From dusk Tintagel thunders
A note that smites and sunders
 The hard-froze fields of air;

A trumpet stormier sounded
Than once from lists rebounded
Where strong men sense-confounded
Fell thick in tourney there ;

From scarce a duskier dwelling
Such notes of wail rose welling
Through the outer darkness, telling
In the awful singer's ears
What souls the darkness covers,
What love-lost soul of lovers,
Whose cry still hangs and hovers
In each man's born that hears.

For there by Hector's brother
And yet some thousand other
He that had grief to smother
Passed pale from Dante's sight ;
With one fast-linked as fearless,
Perchance, there only tearless ;
Iseulte and Tristram, peerless
And perfect queen and knight.

A shrill-winged sound comes flying
North, as of wild souls crying
The cry of things undying
That know what life must be ;
Or as the old year's heart, stricken
Too sore for hope to quicken
By thoughts like thorns that thicken,
Broke breaking with the sea.

ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE

A NOVEMBER PASTORAL.

WRAPPED in his sad-colored cloak, the Day, like a
 Puritan, standeth
 Stern in the joyless fields, rebuking the lingering color —
 Dying hectic of leaves and the chilly blue of the asters —
 Hearing, perchance, the croak of a crow on the desolate treetop,
 Breathing the reek of withered weeds, or the drifted and sodden
 Splendors of woodland, as whoso piously groaneth in spirit.
 “Vanity, verily ; yea, it is vanity, let me forsake it ;
 Yea, let it fade, for Life is the empty clash of a cymbal,
 Joy a torch in the hands of a fool, and Beauty a pitfall !”

.
 Silent are now the flute of spring and the clarion of summer
 As they had never been blown : the wail of a dull miserere
 Heavily sweeps the woods, and, stifled, dies in the valleys.

BAYARD TAYLOR.

NOVEMBER.

AMID the withered leaves I lie ;
I look upon the sober sky ;
I am not young ; I am not old ;
 I am not rich ; I am not poor ;
I cannot fear what may not be,
 And of what hath been I am sure.

I muse, — I neither laugh nor sigh ;
Of all the faded landscape I
Am part ; I am not tired of life ;
 And yet I would not live anew,
Though woods and wolds forever green
 Should be, and skies forever blue.

JOHN AYLMER DORGAN.

TO THE FRINGED GENTIAN.

THOU blossom, bright with autumn dew,
And colored with the heaven's own blue,
That openest when the quiet light
Succeeds the keen and frosty night ;

Thou comest not when violets lean
O'er wandering brooks and springs unseen,
Or columbines, in purple dressed,
Nod o'er the ground-bird's hidden nest.

Thou waitest late, and com'st alone,
When woods are bare and birds are flown,
And frosts and shortening days portend
The aged Year is near his end.

Then doth thy sweet and quiet eye
Look through its fringes to the sky,
Blue — blue — as if that sky let fall
A flower from its cerulean wall.

I would that thus, when I shall see
The hour of death draw near to me,
Hope, blossoming within my heart,
May look to heaven as I depart.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

ON THE BEACH IN NOVEMBER.

My heart's Ideal, that somewhere out of sight
Art beautiful and gracious and alone,
Haply where blue Saronic waves are blown
On shores that keep some touch of old delight,
How welcome is thy memory, and how bright,
To one who watches over leagues of stone
These chilly northern waters creep and moan
From weary morning unto weary night.
O Shade-form, lovelier than the living crowd,
So kind to votaries, yet thyself unvowed,

So free to human fancies, fancy free,
My vagrant thought goes out to thee, to thee,
As wandering lonelier than the Poet's cloud,
I listen to the wash of this dull sea.

EDWARD CRACROFT LEFROY.

THE PARTING OF SUMMER.

LIKE one who lingers yet upon the sands,
Gazing his last upon the fading sail
That bears his friends afar to other lands,
I watch the bleak November daylight fail,
And, weltering in the pale and watery skies,
The dim stars falter forth, the cold moon rise.

I feel the silence on the hill and plain,
Like that chill hush which haunts an empty room
When, late deserted by a joyous train,
The lights die slowly down and all is gloom :
The cricket shrilling in the darkling wood
Adds but a drearier sense of solitude.

The last frail blossom of the year is dead,
Scentless and sere, beside the frozen rill ;
The last of summer's melodists are fled,
Their nests are tenantless, their songs are still,
And, like the echo of a faint farewell,
I hear the shuddering night-wind sink and swell.

CHARLES LOTIN HILDRETH.

THE LAST WALK IN AUTUMN.

O'ER the bare woods, whose outstretched hands
Plead with the leaden heavens in vain,
I see, beyond the valley lands,
The sea's long level dim with rain.
Around me all things, stark and dumb,
Seem praying for the snows to come,
And, for the summer bloom and greenness gone,
With winter's sunset lights and dazzling morn atone.

Along the river's summer walk,
The withered tufts of asters nod ;
And trembles on its arid stalk
The hoar plume of the goldenrod.
And on a ground of sombre fir,
And azure-studded juniper,
The silver birch its buds of purple shows,
And scarlet berries tell where bloomed the sweet wildrose.

With mingled sound of horns and bells,
A far-heard clang, the wild geese fly,
Storm-sent, from Arctic moors and fells,
Like a great arrow through the sky,
Two dusky lines converged in one,
Chasing the southward-flying sun ;
While the brave snowbird and the hardy jay
Call to them from the pines, as if to bid them stay.

I passed this way a year ago :

The wind blew south ; the noon of day
Was warm as June's ; and save that snow
Flecked the low mountains far away,
And that the vernal-seeming breeze
Mocked faded grass and leafless trees,
I might have dreamed of summer as I lay,
Watching the fallen leaves with the soft wind at play.

Since then, the winter blasts have piled
The white pagodas of the snow
On these rough slopes, and, strong and wild,
Yon river, in its overflow
Of springtime rain and sun, set free,
Crashed with its ices to the sea ;
And over these grey fields, then green and gold,
The summer corn has waved, the thunder's organ rolled.

Rich gift of God ! A year of time !
What pomp of rise and shut of day,
What hues wherewith our northern clime
Makes autumn's dropping woodlands gay,
What airs outblown from ferny dells,
And clover-bloom and sweetbrier smells,
What songs of brooks and birds, what fruits and
flowers,
Green woods and moonlit snows, have in its round
been ours !

.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

NOVEMBER.

YET one smile more, departing, distant sun !
One mellow smile through the soft vapory air,
Ere, o'er the frozen earth, the loud winds run,
Or snows are sifted o'er the meadows bare.
One smile on the brown hills and naked trees,
And the dark rocks whose summer wreaths are cast,
And the blue gentian flower that in the breeze
Nods lonely, of her beauteous race the last.
Yet a few sunny days, in which the bee
Shall murmur by the hedge that skirts the way,
The cricket chirp upon the russet lea,
And man delight to linger in thy ray.
Yet one rich smile, and we will try to bear
The piercing winter frost, and winds, and darkened air.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

NOVEMBER.

FROST comes, and the summer is finished ;
The world lies vacant and still,
To dream through the winter with minished
Dull life in the desolate chill.

Thus we, when the sense of enjoyment
Hath passed from our blood and our brain,
Are left without light or employment
In passionless pain.

JOHN ADDINGTON SYMONDS.

A SONG OF AUTUMN.

My wind is turned to bitter north,
 That was so soft a south before ;
 My sky, that shone so sunny bright,
 With foggy gloom is clouded o'er ;
 My gay green leaves are yellow-black,
 Upon the dank autumnal floor ;
 For love, departed once, comes back -
 No more again, no more.

A roofless ruin lies my home,
 For winds to blow and rains to pour ;
 One frosty night befell, and lo,
 I find my summer days are o'er :
 The heart bereaved, of why and how
 Unknowing, knows that yet before
 It had what e'en to memory now
 Returns no more, no more.

ARTHUR HUGH CLOUGH.

THE LAST GENTIAN.

SEE ! I survive because I bowed my head,
 Hearing the snow's first footfall in the air ;
 I felt his cold kiss on my cheek with dread,
 And to my sister said, " Beware !"
 And stooped beneath my bank and let him pass.
 Next morn the brook was glass :
 My simple sister in her pride,
 Disdained to bow her head, so drooped and died.

.

THOMAS WILLIAM PARSONS.

TO THE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

WAN brightener of the fading year,
 Chrysanthemum,
Rough teller of the winter near,
 Chrysanthemum ;
Grey low-hung skies and woodlands sere,
Wet leaf-strown ways with thee appear,
Yet well I love to see thee here,
 Chrysanthemum ;
Yes, well I love to see thee here,
 Chrysanthemum.

Thou comest when the rose is dead,
 Chrysanthemum ;
When pink and lily both have fled,
 Chrysanthemum.
When hollyhocks droop low the head,
And dahlias litter path and bed,
Thou bloomest bright in all their stead,
 Chrysanthemum ;
And back recallest their beauty fled,
 Chrysanthemum.

O loved not for thy sake alone,
 Chrysanthemum ;
Not for a beauty all thine own,
 Chrysanthemum ;

For fair blooms to the springtime known,
For bright hues to the summer shown,
For memories dear of flowerets flown,
 Chrysanthemum,
I love thee, blossomer alone,
 Chrysanthemum.

WILLIAM COX BENNETT.

BELATED.

BLITHE summer blossom, born too late,
 Wilt make my desert garden fair?
Lo Winter's hand is on the gate,
 His breath is in the curdling air.

Still yesterweek, but yesterweek,
 Thou hadst, unfolding in warm light,
Spread ripening to the crimson streak
 And seed to make the next year bright.

But now there fall the bitter rains,
 The chills that brown the ferns are come;
Southward, above the shivering plains,
 The eddying swallows hasten home.

O flower too frail, too late of birth,
 There is no sun for such as thou:
Droop down upon the barren earth;
 What boots it to have blossomed now?

MRS. AUGUSTA [DAVIES] WEBSTER.

AUTUMN'S SIGHING.

AUTUMN's sighing,
Moaning, dying ,
Clouds are flying
 On like steeds ;
While their shadows
O'er the meadows
Walk like widows
 Decked in weeds.

Red leaves trailing,
Fall unfailing,
Dropping, sailing,
 From the wood,
That, unpliant,
Stands defiant,
Like a giant
 Dripping blood.

Winds are swelling
Round our dwelling,
All day telling
 Us their woe ;
And at vesper
Frosts grow crisper
As they whisper
 Of the snow.

NOVEMBER WIND.

From the unseen land
 Frozen inland,
 Down from Greenland
 Winter glides,
 Shedding lightness
 Like the brightness
 When moon-whiteness
 Fills the tides.

.
 Storms are trailing;
 Winds are wailing,
 Howling, railing
 At each door.
 Midst this trailing,
 Howling, railing
 List the wailing
 Of the poor.

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

NOVEMBER WIND.

TO-NIGHT the winds begin to rise
 And roar from yonder dropping day
 The last red leaf is whirled away,
 The rooks are blown about the skies;

 The forest cracked, the waters curled,
 The cattle huddled on the lea;
 And wildly dashed on tower and tree
 The sunbeam strikes along the world.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

In Memoriam.

NOVEMBER.

ARE thine eyes weary ? is thy heart too sick
To struggle any more with doubt and thought,
Whose formless veil draws darkening now and thick
Across thee, e'en as smoke-tinged mist-wreaths brought

Down a fair dale to make it blind and nought ?
Art thou so weary that no world there seems
Beyond these four walls hung with pain and dreams ?

Look out upon the real world, where the moon,
Halfway 'twixt root and crown of these high trees,
Turns the dead midnight into dreamy noon,
Silent and full of wonders, for the breeze
Died at the sunset, and no images,
No hopes of day, are left in sky or earth, —
Is it not fair, and of most wondrous worth ?

Yea, I have looked and seen November there ;
The changeless seal of change it seemed to be,
Fair death of things that, living once, were fair ;
Bright sign of loneliness too great for me,
Strange image of the dread eternity,
In whose void patience how can these have part,
These outstretched feverish hands, this restless heart ?

WILLIAM MORRIS.

The Earthly Paradise.

SUMMER'S VISIT TO AUTUMN.

I SAW fair Summer worn and sad
Upon an evening drear,
Come through the woods in mourning clad
And in her eye a tear.

With hopeless grief her cheek was pale,
A sadder sight, I ween,
In autumn wood or autumn dale
Was scarcely ever seen.

O'er dying forests and cold ground,
O'er grey and frosty mead,
She turned her sorrowing eyes around,
But nothing gave her heed.

Ah, I can hardly tell the tale,
For sadder sight, I ween,
In autumn wood or autumn dale
Was scarcely ever seen.

Where'er she looked she found no flowers,
She caught no song of bird ;
Nor mavis in her leafy bowers
Or robin's note was heard.

I saw her wander down a brook
That in her time had known her ;
With staring face and chill hard look
It even dared disown her.

With gentle tread as of the dead,
And sad dejected mien,
Down toward the plunging sea she sped,
With broken heart, I ween.

And Autumn, garish harridan,
Did clap her thousand palms,
And all her vulgar painted clan
Did rustle loud alarms.

But Summer only drew her veil,
And stepped out on the waves,
And glided southward in the gale
To where Anapus laves

Her Sicily's bucolic meads,
Theocritean shores,
Where poesy left epic deeds
To sing of Nature's stores.

Ah, Summer's cheeks were thin and pale,
A sadder sight, I ween,
In autumn wood or autumn dale
Was scarcely ever seen.

WILLIAM MORTON FULLERTON.

FALLEN LEAVES.

I LOVE to steal my way
Through the bright woods, when autumn's work is done
And through the hilltops all the dreamlike day
Breathes the soft golden sun ;

When all is hushed and still,
Only a few last leaves, fluttering slow
Down the warm air with ne'er a breeze's will, —
A ghost of sound below ;

When naught of song is heard,
Save the jay laughing while all Nature grieves,
Or the lone chirp of some forgotten bird
Among the fallen leaves.

Around me everywhere
Lie leaves that trembled green the summer long,
Holding the rainbow's tears in sunny air,
And roofed the summer's song.

Why shun my steps to tread
These silent hosts that everywhere are strown,
As if my feet were walking 'mong the dead,
And I alive alone ?

Hast no bright trees, O Past !
Through whose bare boughs, once green, the sunshine grieves ?
No hopes that flutter'd in the autumnal blast,
No memories, — Fallen Leaves ?

JOHN JAMES PIATT.

NOVEMBER.

DRY leaves upon the wall,
Which flap like rustling wings and seek escape,
A single frosted cluster on the grape
Still hangs, — and that is all.

It hangs, forgotten quite,
Forgotten in the purple vintage-day,
Left for the sharp and cruel frosts to slay,
The daggers of the night.

It knew the thrill of spring ;
It had its blossomtime, its perfumed noons ;
Its pale-green spheres were rounded to soft runes
Of summer's whispering.

Through balmy morns of May,
Through fragrances of June and bright July
And August, hot and still, it hung on high,
And purpled day by day.

Of fair and mantling shapes,
No braver, sweeter cluster on the tree ;
And what then is this thing has come to thee
Among the other grapes,

Thou lonely tenant of the leafless vine,
Granted the right to grow thy mates beside,
To ripen thy sweet juices, but denied
Thy place among the wine ?

Ah ! we are dull and blind.
The riddle is too hard for us to guess,
The why of joy or of unhappiness,
Chosen, or left behind !

But everywhere a host
Of lonely lives shall read their type in thine ;
Grapes which may never swell the tale of wine,
Left out to meet the frost.

SARAH CHAUNCEY WOOLSEY.

A SONG FOR NOVEMBER.

WIDE o'er the wold,
Through field and fold,
The wind moans cold,
And sighs in sadness ;
The dreamy days
Have gone their ways,
Like flitting fays
That dance in gladness.

Dead are the leaves
And stored the sheaves ;
Lone are the eaves
Where sang the swallow ;
In robes of black
The cloudy rack
Obscures the track
Where shone Apollo.

No more the wain
From fertile plain
Doth bear the grain
Of golden reaping ;
The meads are sere,
The woods are drear,
And dead, the year
Will soon be sleeping.

Not now, alas !
In bending grass,
A merry mass
The thrush is trilling ;
The lark no more
Doth sing and soar ;
On southern shore
The wren is billing.

No blossoms bright
Of red and white
Set sweet delight
Of fragrance floating ;

A SONG FOR NOVEMBER.

All that was fair
Is bleak and bare ;
The gardens wear
A russet coating.

At dreary dawn
On lea and lawn,
Where, in days gone,
Was gay adorning,
No Jacqueminot
Doth bud and blow,
Or, face aglow,
Turn east at morning.

The wary sprite,
At noon of night,
In wan moonlight
Doth shake and shiver ;
The nymphs have fled
And Pan is dead ;
No boatmen thread
The narrow river.

But why repine,
O heart of mine ?
Joy still is thine,
Though days grow colder ;
And snows will bring,
In fragrant spring,
Fresh blossoming
From flowers that molder !

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

THE AUTUMN IS OLD.

THE autumn is old,
The sere leaves are flying ;
He hath gathered up gold,
And now he is dying ;
Old age, begin sighing !

The vintage is ripe,
The harvest is heaping ;
But some that have sowed
Have no riches for reaping ;
Poor wretch, fall a-weeping !

The year's in the wane,
There is nothing adorning,
The night has no eve,
And the day has no morning ;
Cold winter gives warning.

The rivers run chill,
The red sun is sinking,
And I am grown old,
And life is fast shrinking ;
Here's enow for sad thinking !

THOMAS HOOD.

NOVEMBER.

THE drifting clouds are dark and drear,
The blossoms die of cold and fear,
The wild wind mourns the fading year,
And winter threatens near.

O love, our sky is overcast,
Our sweet hopes fall before the blast,
The future darkens, dim and vast,
And life is wearing fast.

Yet sunshine brightens after rain,
The darkness comes and goes again,
So solace follows bitter pain
As seasons wax and wane.

Then clasp my hand with closer hold,
True hearts are never unconsold,
They fear not care, nor cloud, nor cold,
And smile at growing old.

MRS. ELIZABETH ANN [CHASE] [AKERS] ALLEN.

WINTER TO AUTUMN.

THE year is late, yet by the gate
Of your demesne I hover.
Forget the summer's roseate glow,
His kisses warm forget, and know
I am your frosty lover.

From these dull skies the glory dies;
So let your early fancies
Of warm days and a gentle breeze
Rocking the leaflets on the trees,
Of nights, and firefly dances.

Joy is away . your happy day
Is far beyend recalling.
And, ere departing birds bemoan
The sun's flight ere they take their own,
Your last dead leaves are falling.

Wherefore I wait, and soon or late
The haggard earth I cover
With many a trackless mile of snow,
My heart for you doth grieve me so ;
I am your frosty lover.

ANDREW BICE SAXTON.

RAIN IN NOVEMBER.

SUMMER breezes, wet and chilled,
Wanderers flying from the rain,
Hide their faces in the pines,
And sob and wail like little ones in pain,
Day ends early, and the night
Drops and shivers like a pall;
Dead the wind, but through waste fields
The rain sweeps desolate, and buries all.

GEORGE WASHINGTON WRIGHT HOUGHTON.

IN LATE AUTUMN.

PRIMROSE and cowslip have I gathered here,
Anemone and hiding violet,
When April sang the spring song of the year.
Now all is changed; the autumn day is wet
With clouds blown from the west, and vapors fold
Over the dropping woods and vacant wold;
The latest flower of the field is dead;
The birds that sang to me are mute or fled,
Save one that like a larger berry clings
On the green hollybush, and sings and sings
A farewell to the sun that, low and pale,
Lightens a wild sky like a distant fire;
The wind beats on the treetops like a flail,
And strews the red leaves in the pools and mire.

CHARLES DENYS CONWAY.

Cornhill Magazine, 1870.

NOVEMBER.

THERE is no blossom in the field ;
The fierce winds lash the naked wood ;
Barren and cold, the grey hills yield
Their hearts to winter solitude ;
Night folds its dusk across the sheen of day,
And black November sows the seed of May.

Wild storms and ghostly echoes wake
The sullen silence. Nature's smile
Plays on a frozen face, to break,
Despairingly, the gloom, awhile,
Then dips behind its snowy veil of cloud,
That sifts adown to earth an ermine shroud.

November sows the seed of May ;
But ere the germ shall feel the spell,
The touch that pulses into play,
Death lays it in a narrow cell ;
Death holds it fast in winter's icy breath,
In winter's tomb, till life is born of death.

O Hope, exiled to hopelessness,
Pierced by the chill, the ghost of May,
Smitten where once thou felt a kiss,
Night-blinded where was glorious day,
Thou, too, must die of frost, and press the tomb
A while, ere yet thy life may come to bloom.

STEPHEN HENRY THAYER.

THE RAINY DAY.

THE day is cold, and dark, and dreary ;
It rains, and the wind is never weary ;
The vine still clings to the moldering wall,
And at every gust the dead leaves fall,
And the day is dark and dreary.

.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

HAZEL BLOSSOMS.

THE summer warmth has left the sky,
The summer songs have died away ;
And, withered, in the footpaths lie
The fallen leaves, but yesterday
With ruby and with topaz gay.

The grass is browning on the hills ;
No pale, belated flowers recall
The astral fringes of the rills,
And drearily the dead vines fall,
Frost-blackened, from the roadside wall.

Yet through the grey and sombre wood,
Against the dusk of fir and pine,
Last of their floral sisterhood,
The hazel's yellow blossoms shine,
The tawny gold of Afric's mine !

Small beauty hath my unsung flower,
For spring to own or summer hail ;
But, in the season's saddest hour,
To skies that weep and winds that wail
Its glad surprisals never fail.

O days grown cold ! O life grown cold !
No rose of June may bloom again ;
But, like the hazel's twisted gold,
Through early frost and latter rain
Shall hints of summertime remain.

And as within the hazel's bough
A gift of mystic virtue dwells,
That points to golden ores below,
And in dry desert places tells
Where flow unseen the cool, sweet wells,

So, in the wise Diviner's hand,
Be mine the hazel's grateful part,
To feel, beneath a thirsty land,
The living waters thrill and start,
The beating of the rivulet's heart !

Sufficeth me the gift to light
With latest bloom the dark, cold days ;
To call some hidden spring to sight
That, in these dry and dusty ways,
Shall sing its pleasant song of praise.

O Love! the hazel-wand may fail,
But thou canst lend the surer spell,
That, passing over Baca's vale,
Repeats the oldtime miracle,
And makes the desert land a well.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

NOVEMBER.

O how withered and dead
The face of the bare earth lies
Under the leafless trees
And the frown of the drooping skies!
O how silent and sad
She sleeps in her gloomy rest,
With never the song of a bird
And never a flower on her breast,
And yet from the gloom and the silence
The far-off spring shall arise!

Nay! in the hidden life
Of the pretty things sleeping below,
Waiting the moment of waking,
Ready to bourgeon and grow,
Who shall say but the touch
Of this cool dark quiet to-day,
Is full of as saving grace
As the strong warm kisses of May;
And which is the dearest and kindest,
No soul upon earth may know!

MRS. MARY ELIZABETH [MCGRATH] BLAKE.

IN NOVEMBER.

A HARD grey day it was, yet scarce forlorn,
Since scarcely aught of tender or of sweet
Was left the year, its ruggedness to meet.
Bare was the countryside of work and folk :
There from the hillside-stead straight out the smoke,
Over the climbing row of cornricks, sailed ;
And few folk stirred ; a blue-clad horseman hailed
A shepherd from the white way, little heard
'Twixt ridge and hollow by November seared ;
The ferryman stared long adown the road
That led unto his tottering thatched abode,
Ere the dark speck into a goodwife turned ;
The smoldering weed-heap by the garden burned ;
Sidelong the plow beside the field-gate lay,
With no one nigh to scare the birds away,
That twittered mid the scanty wisps of straw.
So round the fire the ancient folk did draw,
And, mid the daydreams, that hung round about,
Rather beheld the wildwood dim with doubt,
And twilight of the cloudy leafless tide,
Than the scant-peopled fallow countryside,
Whose fields the woods hemmed in ; the world grew old
Unto their eyes, and lacked house, field and fold.

WILLIAM MORRIS.
The Earthly Paradise.

THE LATE AUTUMN IS DYING.

THE late autumn is dying,
Dead leaves strew the land ;
Signs of sorrow now lying
On every hand ;
While I walk full of sadness
In a garden once fair,
Where before all was gladness,
I find trouble there.

In a hedgerow wind-shaken
To wildest unrest,
Forlorn and forsaken,
I see a bird's nest,
Its soft down decaying,
Its fledglings all flown,
Naught save the shell staying
Deserted and lone.

Then the thought cometh cleaving
The depths of my mind,
Soon we too must be leaving
Our loved homes behind ;
The drear tomb will enclose us,
Life's pilgrimage o'er,
" And the place that now knows us Shall know us no more."

H. T. MACKENZIE BELL.

AUTUMN—A DIRGE.

THE warm sun is failing; the bleak wind is wailing;
The bare boughs are sighing; the pale flowers are dying;

And the year
On the earth, her deathbed, in shroud of leaves dead,
Is lying.

Come, months, come away,
From November to May;
In your saddest array
Follow the bier
Of the dead, cold year,
And like dim shadows watch by her sepulchre.

The chill rain is falling, the nipt worm is crawling;
The rivers are swelling; the thunder is knelling
For the year;

The blithe swallows are flown, and the lizards each gone

To his dwelling;
Come, months, come away;
Put on white, black, and grey;
Let your light sisters play;
Ye, follow the bier
Of the dead, cold year,
And make her grave green with tear on tear.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

NOVEMBER.

THAT time of year thou may'st in me behold
When yellow leaves, or none, or few, do hang
Upon those boughs which shake against the cold,
Bare ruined choirs, where late the sweet birds sang.
In me thou seest the twilight of such day
As after sunset fadeth in the west,
Which by and by black night doth take away,
Death's second self, that seals up all in rest.
In me thou seest the glowing of such fire
That on the ashes of his youth doth lie,
As the deathbed whereon it must expire,
Consumed with that which it was nourished by.

This thou perceiv'st, which makes thy love more strong,

To love that well which thou must leave ere long.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.

A DIRGE.

WITH pallid cheeks and wringing hands
And dusky garments sad and sere,
The dreary winds from northern lands
Have come to sob at Autumn's bier;
Upon her robe of brilliant dyes,
Behold, in chilly splendor, lies
The tribute of a frozen tear.

Come, Winter, come and drop the pall
That only thou know'st how to spread ;
In tender silence let it fall
In flawless folds from foot to head ;
Within our hearts' most sacred shrine,
And guarded by a love divine,
Shall live the memory of the dead.

SAMUEL MINTURN PECK.

WHERE THE ROSES GREW.

THIS is where the roses grew,
In the summer that is gone ;
Fairer bloom or richer hue
Never summer shone upon :
O the glories vanished hence !
O the sad imperfect tense !

This is where the roses grew
When the July days were long,
When the garden all day through
Echoed with delight and song ;
Hark ! the dead and broken stalks
Eddying down the windy walks !

Never was a desert waste,
Where no blossom-life is born,
Half so dreary and unblest,
Half so lonesome and forlorn,
Since in this we dimly see
All the bliss that used to be !

Where the roses used to grow,
And the west wind's wailing words
Tell in whispers faint and low
Of the famished humming-birds,
Of the bees which search in vain
For the honey-cells again.

This is where the roses grew,
Till the ground was all perfume,
And whenever zephyrs blew,
Carpeted with crimson bloom.
Now the chill and scentless air
Sweeps the flower-plats brown and bare.

Hearts have gardens sad as this,
Where the roses bloom no more,
Gardens where no summer bliss
Can the summer bloom restore,
Where the snow melts not away
At the warming kiss of May ;

Gardens where the vernal morns
Never shed their sunshine down,
Where are only stems and thorns,
Veiled in dead leaves, curled and brown, —
Gardens where we only see
Where the roses used to be !

MRS. ELIZABETH ANN [CHASE] [AKERS] ALLEN.

NOVEMBER ROSES.

YE Roses of November,
Ye are no joy to me ;
The roses I remember
Are other than ye be !
Your cordial kindred summer
Has gone by long before,
And winter, the newcomer,
Is a lover fierce and frore.

At sight of ye I tremble,
As ye in this bleak air ;
I read a fearful symbol
In what ye are and were ;
How all that's best and fairest,
When past a petty reign,
To those who hold them dearest,
Are pain and only pain.

Beauty is always beauty,
Her essences divine
The poet, in his duty,
May labor to combine ;
But beauty wed to sorrow
Is sad, whate'er we say, —
Sad thinking for to-morrow,
Sad presence for to-day !

RICHARD MONCKTON MILNES.

SO LATE IN AUTUMN.

So late in autumn half the world's asleep,
And half the wakeful world looks pinched and pale ;
For dampness now, not freshness, rides the gale ;
And cold and colorless comes ashore the deep
With tides that bluster or with tides that creep ;
Now veiled uncouthness wears an uncouth veil
Of fog, not sultry haze ; and blight and bale
Have done their worst, and leaves rot on the heap.
So late in autumn one forgets the spring,
Forgets the summer with its opulence,
The callow birds that long have found a wing,
The swallows that more lately gat them hence ;
Will anything like spring, will anything
Like summer, rouse one day the slumbering sense ?

CHRISTINA GEORGINA ROSSETTI.

IN NOVEMBER.

FROM my hill-circled home, this eve, I heard
The tempest singing on the windy height —
The first wild storm of winter in its flight
Seaward — as though some mighty Arctic bird
Had left its snowy nest, and on the firred,
Steep mountain summit paused one boisterous
night
To fill the valleys with its fierce delight.
Ah me, I thought, how every pine is stirred,

Till all its deep storm-music is unbound ;
How every warring bough gives forth its roar,
And the first shout, as though some harper hoar
Laid his great hand upon the hills around,
And drew a loud hymn forth, a voice to sound
Far, far away, beyond the world's dull shore.

WILLIAM PRESCOTT FOSTER.

In the Century Magazine.

WHEN SUN AND FROST HAVE WROUGHT THEIR SPELL.

WHEN sun and frost have wrought their spell,
And earth reveals her fairest charm,
Then beauty breathes her sad farewell
And sinks to rest on winter's arm ;
Her pure, glad smile, so bright, so calm,
Fades with the falling of the leaves,
And Nature stands with outstretched palm,
As one, who asking, naught receives,
And through the gathering darkness roams and grieves.

ERNEST WARBURTON SHURTLEFF.

Autumn Colors.

A FROZEN NOVEMBER ROSE.

ALAS, poor, chill, belated rose !
What whim could lead thee to suppose
That these strange days, as brief as bright,
Proclaimed the summer's full delight ?

Through all the fields no daisy dares
To brave these blandly treacherous airs ;
Nor waterfly, where millstreams run,
Flashes his gem-hues in the sun.

Gone are thy gay, proud sisters all,
And e'en the bee, thy lover small,
Is drowsy in his winter cell,
And gads no more by mead and dell.

A flush of summer, then a frost !
Beauty no sooner prized than lost !
Mutation swift of strange extremes,
Like phantom rainbows seen in dreams.

Ah, what could lead thee to unfold
Thy crimson bosom to the cold ?
What fatal folly so entice,
And turn thy ruined heart to ice ?

HENRY SYLVESTER CORNWELL.

IN NOVEMBER.

Now that the roadside paths are plashed with mire
I love to dream before the cheery fire
Of golden August days we passed together,
And moonlit nights when crickets tuned their choir.

Without, the meadows and the woodlands lie
In ashen sameness 'neath a hueless sky ;
And biting gusts, foretelling wilder weather,
From out the north go hurrying madly by.

The withered leaves from off the boughs are torn
And through the watches of the night are borne
 Across the heaven's dark deserted spaces,
While piteously the barren branches mourn.

No song of bird makes glad the morn or night,
No flower looks skyward for a gleam of light,
 But everywhere are seen the ruthless traces
Of pallid frost, whose fingers blanch and blight.

Yet potent Memory sets Time at naught ;
Wide leagues I traverse on the wings of thought,
 And once again with you I mark the glory
With which unclouded summer eves are fraught.

Again with you I stroll cool country lanes
Fresh with the moisture of abundant rains,
 Or con the pages of a sweet love story,
Or read some merry poet's blithe refrains.

Rare happy moments do I spend, until
The blast's rude fingers tap upon the sill
 And startle me ; I find the firelight dying,
The house in slumber, and the air grown chill.

And so I marvel, much as dreamers do,
Now that the nights are long and drear, if you
 Before the fire, while winds without are sighing,
Have visions of the vanished summer too ?

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

IN LATE AUTUMN.

THEN autumn fired the woods, and crimson glowed
Fringed bole and feathered bough, and topmost spray,
Which, as fell in the shriveled foliage, showed
Roofless and bare, that late shut out the day :
While hurrying winter's drifting storm-showers flowed
From hissing heavens, and slowly died away
The color from drenched Nature's face. And then ?
Black trunks, and dirgeful winds, and dripping fen.

ALFRED AUSTIN.
The Human Tragedy.

IN NOVEMBER.

NOVEMBER's sky is chill and drear,
November's leaf is red and sear :
Late, gazing down the steepy linn
That hems our little garden in,
Low in its dark and narrow glen,
You scarce the rivulet might ken,
So thick the tangled greenwood grew,
So feeble trilled the streamlet through ;
Now, murmuring hoarse, and frequent seen
Through bush and brier, no longer green,
An angry brook, it sweeps the glade,
Brawls over rock and wild cascade,
And, foaming brown with double speed,
Hurries its waters to the Tweed.

No longer autumn's glowing red
Upon our Forest hills is shed ;
No more, beneath the evening beam,
Fair Tweed reflects their purple gleam.
Away hath passed the heather-bell
That bloomed so rich on Needpath Fell ;
Sallow his brow, and russet bare
Are now the sister heights of Yair.
The sheep, before the pinching heaven,
To sheltered dale and down are driven,
Where yet some faded herbage pines,
And yet a watery sunbeam shines ;
In meek despondency they eye
The withered sward and wintry sky,
And far beneath their summer hill
Stray sadly by Glenkinnon's rill.
The shepherd shifts his mantle's fold,
And wraps him closer from the cold :
His dogs no merry circles wheel,
But shivering follow at his heel ;
A cowering glance they often cast,
As deeper moans the gathering blast.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

Marmion.

A NOVEMBER GOODNIGHT.

GOODNIGHT, little shivering grasses !

'Tis idle to struggle and fight
With tempest and cruel frost-fingers ;
Lie down, little grasses, to-night.

The roses have gone from the garden,
And hidden their faces so fair ;
The lilies have never uplifted
Since frost found them bending in prayer.

The aster and dahlia fought bravely,
Till Ice, with his glittering crest,
A diamond dagger laid over
The bloom of each velvety breast.

The leaves of the forest lie faded,
Dry stubble is left after grain ;
Yet you, little grasses, still struggle,
Still hope for the soft summer rain.

Nay, nay, even now there is weaving
Above you the fleece of the snow,
The star-pattern tracks the white shuttle
Through the loom of the storm to and fro,

Until over the moor and the mountain
'Twill lie like a thrice-blessèd stole,
And the beggarly rays of November
Be made in the day-dawning whole.

Fear not for the springtime awaking ;
'Tis sure as the path of a star ;
The Watcher unsleeping is ready
The doorway of sleep to unbar

In time for that stir in the forest
For the ears of a mortal too fine,
When rootlets commence their spring-plowing,
And maple trees call up their wine.

Goodnight, little shivering grasses !
Lie down 'neath the coverlet white,
And rest till the cuckoo is singing ;
Goodnight, little grasses, goodnight !

MRS. ETHELINDA [ELLIOTT] BEERS.

NOVEMBER.

THE Centaur, Sagittarius, am I,
Born of Ixion's and the cloud's embrace ;
With sounding hoofs across the earth I fly,
A steed Thessalian with a human face.
Sharp winds the arrows are with which I chase
The leaves, half dead already with affright ;
I shroud myself in gloom ; and to the race
Of mortals bring nor comfort nor delight.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

The Poet's Calendar.

A NOVEMBER DAY.

A GULL on the grey of the dull sky flying,
The dark surf whitening along the shore,
And over the ocean a chill breeze sighing
Like straying souls in the Nevermore.

The grasses are curled in a matted tangle,
The leaves are withered, and damp, and brown ;
Aloft in the wet air bare branches wrangle,
And answer the dark sky frown for frown.

And the bird comes down from its fitful flying,
The blue sky shows through the shifting grey ;
But still like a dirge for some loved one dying
The wind is moaning across the bay.

.

JAMES BERRY BENSEL.

A NOVEMBER EVE.

It was a soft November eve, and a faint yellow dye,
Pale as a winter primrose, tinged the margin of the sky,
While leaves, like brown-winged butterflies, came eddyng from the oak,
And spiral shafts of purest blue curled up of cottage smoke.

EDWARD CAPERN.

A November Scene.

AN OLD YEAR SONG.

As through the forest, disarrayed
By chill November, late I strayed,
A lonely minstrel of the wood
Was singing to the solitude :
I loved thy music, thus I said,
When o'er thy perch the leaves were spread ;
Sweet was thy song, but sweeter now
Thy carol on the leafless bough.

Sing, little bird ! thy note shall cheer
The sadness of the dying year.

When violets pranked the turf with blue
And morning filled their cups with dew,
Thy slender voice with rippling trill
The budding April bowers would fill,
Nor passed its joyous tones away
When April rounded into May.

Thy life shall hail no second dawn, —
Sing, little bird ! the spring is gone.

And I remember, well-a-day !
Thy full-blown summer roundelay,
As when behind a brodered screen
Some holy maiden sings unseen :
With answering notes the woodland rung,
And every treetop found a tongue.

How deep the shade ! the groves how fair !
Sing, little bird ! the woods are bare.

The summer's throbbing chant is done
And mute the choral antiphon ;
The birds have left the shivering pines
To flit among the trellised vines,
Or fan the air with scented plumes
Amid the love-sick orange-blooms,
And thou art here alone, — alone,
Sing, little bird ! the rest have flown.

The snow has capped yon distant hill,
At morn the running brook was still,
From driven herds the clouds that rise
Are like the smoke of sacrifice ;
Erelong the frozen sod shall mock
The plowshare, changed to stubborn rock ;
The brawling streams shall soon be dumb, —
Sing, little bird ! the frosts have come.

Fast, fast the lengthening shadows creep,
The songless fowls are half asleep,
The air grows chill, the setting sun
May leave thee ere thy song is done,
The pulse that warms thy breast grow cold,
Thy secret die with thee, untold :
The lingering sunset still is bright, —
Sing, little bird ! 'twill soon be night.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

IN NOVEMBER.

(Huitain.)

WITH apple-bloom and scented buds of May
And sweet winds born, how should the summer know,
When sweeps of leafless hills are desolate grey,
The soft ethereal beauty of the snow?
But we came through the spring, and still, below
The passion for all sensuous loveliness,
Remember a white eternity aglow
With silent dawn, still-aired and passionless.

BLISS CARMAN.

A SQUARE IN NOVEMBER.

DOWN the street the wind looks black ;
Underfoot the leaves are shed,
Spoiled and dead ; overhead
All the sky is dark with rack.

Winter-ruined leaves exhale
Chilly vapors thin and blue.
Looming through, lurk a few
Trees that look unreal and frail.

How they reach their branches out !
Groping in the lifeless air
Blind and bare, for some fair
Long-since-vanished May, no doubt.

So my life, as bare and blind,
Towards some beauty unattained,
Lost or waned, stretches strained
Helpless aims that never find.

AGNES MARY FRANCES ROBINSON.

London Studies.

AT AUTUMN'S END.

CALM autumn died, and in that garden fair
The last flowers withered in the treacherous air.
The little stream with mournful murmurs rolled,
And the trees doffed their robes of bronze and gold,
And fading blue and green, and glowing red ;
And all the outside lands lay damp and dead,
Wrapped in a cheerless shroud of foggy haze,
Voiceless for lengths of dreary days on days,
Save now and then through the dull gloom was heard

The weird-like warning of the drummer-bird,
The bittern, from the flat isles of the mere,
Or curlew's calling, now remote, now near,
Or the wild plover from the upland springs,
Or mighty whirr of multitudinous wings
Of rooks and noisy starlings spreading o'er
The cattle pastures by the river shore.
And sometimes, too, the ruffian winds would come
To chase the dying leaves from their last home

In the forlorn grove, or with dread sound
The Thunder God would rise from underground
And roar amid the gaps of distant hills,
And the thick rain would pour and swell the rills
To rivers, and the rivers into seas,
Till all at once would rise a southern breeze,
Born mid the bowers of some more genial clime,
And make a mimic summer for a time.

ROBERT DWYER JOYCE.

Deirdre.

NOVEMBER.

THERE is strange music in the stirring wind,
When lowers the autumnal eve, and all alone
To the dark wood's cold covert thou art gone,
Whose ancient trees on the rough slope reclined,
Rock, and at times scatter their tresses sere.
If in such shades, beneath their murmuring,
Thou late hast passed the happier hours of spring,
With sadness thou wilt mark the fading year;
Chiefly if one, with whom such sweets a morn
Or evening thou hast shared, far off shall stray.
O spring, return: return, auspicious May.
But sad will be thy coming, and forlorn,
If she return not with thy cheering ray,
Who from these shades is gone, gone far away.

WILLIAM LISLE BOWLES.

THE PLEASANT TIME IS WELL-NIGH DONE.

. . . THOSE days of later autumntide,
When he who in some town may chance to bide
Opens the window for the balmy air,
And seeing the golden hazy sky so fair,
And from some city garden hearing still
The wheeling rooks the air with music fill,
Sweet hopeful music, thinketh, "Is this spring,
Surely the year can scarce be perishing?"
But then he leaves the clamor of the town,
And sees the withered scanty leaves fall down,
The half-plowed field, the flowerless garden-plot,
The dark full stream by summer long forgot,
The tangled hedges where, relaxed and dead,
The twining plants their withered berries shed,
And feels therewith the treachery of the sun,
And knows the pleasant time is well-nigh done.

WILLIAM MORRIS.

The Earthly Paradise.

NEAR AUTUMN'S END.

It was the dawn of winter: sword in sheath,
Change, veiled and mild, came down the gradual air
With cold slow smiles that hid the doom beneath.
Five days to die in yet were autumn's, ere
The last leaf withered from his flowerless wreath.

ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE.

A New Year's Ode.

HERBSTLIED.

WHAT song when sheaf
Is shut in byre,
When woodland leaf
Lies drowned in mire,
With rain and ruin on everything
That bends to the breeze,
Can I sing?

What voice may rise
To music, now,
Above the sighs
In branch, in bough?
The days of summer are perished
They are numbered, these
With the dead.

No song! the throat
Of autumn wind
Shall sound the note
Of grief I find
In all, as ever my pleasant years
Give room to remorse
And to tears.

PERCY E. PINKERTON.

NOVEMBER VIOLETS.

THROUGH amber air the sunlight, slanting pale,
With mildness fills the southward-sloping dale
Where bleached ferns stand like phantoms as I pass,
My footfalls rustling in the crisp brown grass.
The long procession of belovèd flowers
Has wound its way through spring and summer hours,
And only the witch-hazel's flickering light
Now waits to usher in the winter's night.
All else are gone, — save, smiling at my feet,
Some clustered violets look up and greet
My gaze. They speak: "From our fair army's head
Turned back have we with message from the dead,
Or seeming dead; farewell, and ease thy pain!
They all send word, 'Next year we come again!'"

SYLVESTER BAXTER.

NOVEMBER.

DEEP lie the shadows on the russet slopes,
Loud blows the wind and shrilly falls the hail;
The tangled sedge-grass closes o'er the quail,
And on the withered hill the woodchuck mopes,
A dusky image of disastered hopes,
Against whose roof the ruthless storms prevail.
November! and the farmer hunts the flail,
And puny autumn poets seek for tropes.

Alack-a-day ! that Nature e'er should robe her
Glorious form in gloomy garbs like these ;
Alas ! the faded splendor of October,
The summer gone, and its Arcadian ease ;
The lengthened year is glimmering to its close,
Loud pipes the tempest, — coldly fly the snows.

JAMES NEWTON MATTHEWS.

A NOVEMBER PICTURE.

FROM hour to hour we only looked to find
The once bright empire of our woodland world
In one huge, snake-like mist malignly furled ;
It frowned, unbreathed on of the healthful wind,
Like venom'd misery round an abject mind,
All landmarks now outblotted and o'errolled
By serpent-darkness, gathering fold on fold,
Till the whole strangled scene grew blank and blind.
Hour after hour we drew half-stifled breath,
While the chill Horror grew more weird and wild ;
Earth glimmered vaguely through her wan despair,
And Heaven ! ah, me ! could heaven be radiant
there,
Beyond the grimness of that mist defiled,
That silent curse, that creeping, ambushed Death !

PAUL HAMILTON HAYNE.

A NOVEMBER GRAVE.

THE grey clouds gather, fold on fold,
Above the blurred and dripping wold ;
The light is growing pale and cold,
And ghostly mists steal o'er the plain.
A robin in the elm is crying ;
About the eaves the wind is sighing ;
O dismal day ! my heart is lying
In yon fresh grave drenched with the rain.

JAMES BENJAMIN KENYON.

"AUTOMNE."

O GLAD and free was Love until the fall ;
Then came a spirit on the frosty air
To chill with icy breath the summer's bloom,
And Love lies with the blossoms blighted there.

He throve so kindly all the summer through ;
Not warmer was the rose's crimson heart ;
Dews fell to bless him, and the soft winds blew,
And gentle rains shed tears to ease his smart.

Through long June days and burning August noons
The flowers and Love stole sweetness from the sun ;
Then summer went, — the days grew brief and cold,
The short, sweet lives of summer things were done.

No butterfly flits through November's gloom,
No bird note quivers on its frosty air.
Sweet Love had wings and would have flown away,
But autumn chilled him with the blossoms there.

MRS. LOUISE [CHANDLER] MOULTON.

NOVEMBER.

COME in the veil of ashen cloud,
With mists around thee like a shroud,
And wan face colored with no light
Of sun and moon, by day or night;
I would not see thee glad or gay,
Dark month! that called my Love away!

I would not see thee otherwise,
Grey month! that hast the dying eyes:
Cold month! that comest with icy hands,
Chaining the waters and the lands.
So didst thou chill two hearts at play,
Dark month! that called my Love away!

And yet, I know, behind thy mists,
The bright sun shines, Love's star subsists.
If we could lift thy veil, may be,
Thy hidden face were good to see.
Come as thou wilt, — I say not nay,
Dark month! that called my Love away!

EDWIN ARNOLD.

AUTUMN DAYS.

THE winds are out with loud increasing shout,
Where late before them walked the biting frost,
Whirling the leaves in their wild sport about,
And twig and limb athwart our path are tost.
But still the sun looks kindly on the year,
And days of summer warmth will linger yet ;
And still the birds amid the fields we hear,
For the ripe grain and scattered seeds they get.
The shortening days grow slowly less and less,
And winter comes with many a warning on ;
And still some day with kindly smile will bless,
Till the last hope's deceit is fledged and gone,
Before the deepening snows block up the way,
And the sweet fields are made of howling blasts the prey.

JONES VERY.

THE MIDNIGHT OF THE YEAR.

THE goldenrod that glowed afar
Has lost its sunset light,
The aster's purple evenstar
Has sunk in autumn's night.

Not yet has fallen soft and white
The snow's deep moonlight clear,
Only red stars of sumach light
The midnight of the year.

ERNEST WHITNEY.

AT THE END OF AUTUMN.

Lost! all the flush of roses and of skies
That change at morning to the red of eve,
O'er clover-waves that in soft meadows heave
In foam of blossoms with white-fringed eyes, —
The changing glamour that the sun-fays leave,
The snow of summer that on greensward lies
When roses faint and all their spells unweave
In vale and coppice, ere the autumn flies.
Ah, naught is left to me but winter days,
For all my summer has been lost to me
Amid dull drudging in the toil of trade.
Lost gold of grainfields, green of country ways —
A dream! — my dream! for one whole day of ye
I'd risk all gold of men, and be well paid!

MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN.

THE CLOSING SCENE.

WITHIN his sober realm of leafless trees
The russet year inhaled the dreamy air;
Like some tanned reaper in his hour of ease,
When all the fields are lying brown and bare.

The grey barns looking from their hazy hills
O'er the dim waters widening in the vales,
Sent down the air a greeting to the mills,
On the dull thunder of alternate flails.

All sights were mellowed and all sounds subdued,
The hills seemed farther and the streams sang low ;
As in a dream the distant woodman hewed
His winter log with many a muffled blow.

The embattled forests, erewhile armed in gold,
Their banners bright with every martial hue,
Now stood, like some sad beaten host of old,
Withdrawn afar in Time's remotest blue.

On slumbrous wings the vulture held his flight ;
The dove scarce heard its sighing mate's complaint ;
And like a star slow drowning in the light,
The village church-vane seemed to pale and faint.

The sentinel-cock upon the hillside crew,
Crew thrice, and all was stiller than before, —
Silent till some replying warder blew
His alien horn, and then was heard no more.

Where erst the jay, within the elm's tall crest,
Made garrulous trouble round her unfledged young,
And where the oriole hung her swaying nest,
By every light wind like a censer swung ; —

Where sang the noisy masons of the eaves,
The busy swallows circling ever near,
Foreboding, as the rustic mind believes,
An early harvest and a plenteous year ; —

Where every bird which charmed the vernal feast,
Shook the sweet slumber from its wings at morn,
To warn the reaper of the rosy east, —
All now was songless, empty and forlorn.

Alone from out the stubble piped the quail,
And croaked the crow through all the dreamy
gloom ;
Alone the pheasant, drumming in the vale,
Made echo to the distant cottage loom.

There was no bud, no bloom upon the bowers ;
The spiders wove their thin shrouds night by
night ;
The thistle down, the only ghost of flowers,
Sailed slowly by, passed noiseless out of sight.

Amid all this, in this most cheerless air,
And where the woodbine shed upon the porch
Its crimson leaves as if the Year stood there
Firing the floor with his inverted torch ;

Amid all this, the centre of the scene,
The white-haired matron, with monotonous tread,
Plied the swift wheel, and with her joyless mien,
Sat, like a Fate, and watched the flying thread.

She had known Sorrow, — he had walked with her,
Oft supped and broke the bitter ashen crust ;
And in the dead leaves still she heard the stir
Of his black mantle trailing in the dust.

While yet her cheek was bright with summer bloom,
Her country summoned and she gave her all ;
And twice War bowed to her his sable plume, —
Regave the swords to rust upon her wall.

Regave the swords, — but not the hand that drew
And struck for liberty its dying blow,
Nor him who, to his sire and country true,
Fell mid the ranks of the invading foe.

Long, but not loud, the droning wheel went on,
Like the low murmur of a hive at noon ;
Long, but not loud, the memory of the gone
Breathed through her lips a sad and tremulous tune.

At last the thread was snapped: her head was bowed ;
Life dropped the distaff through his hands serene ;
And loving neighbors smoothed her careful shroud,
While death and winter closed the autumn scene.

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

INDEX OF FIRST LINES.

	PAGE
Across the billowy meadow grasses	15
Across the valley where the wood.	24
A dreamy haze of light; a fair deceiver	20
After October's biting frosts it seems	45
Again the leaves come fluttering down	43
A gull on the grey of the dull sky flying	132
A hard grey day it was, yet scarce forlorn	117
A hint of slumber in the wind	4
Alas, poor, chill, belated rose	125
Amid the withered leaves I lie	90
Are thine eyes weary? is thy heart too sick	101
As some decrepit citizen reviews	47
As through the forest, disarrayed	133
As when the flame beneath is spent and dead	59
At last the toil-encumbered days are over.	53
Autumn's sighing	99
 Blithe summer blossom, born too late	 98
Bright wanderer from the court of spring	57
 Calm autumn died, and in that garden fair	 136
Come in the veil of ashen cloud	143

Days of the dying year	52
Deep lie the shadows on the russet slopes	140
Down drop the painted leaves	82
Down in the hollow courtyard	70
Down the street the wind looks black	135
Dry leaves across the roadway blown	55
Dry leaves upon the wall	105
Dulled to a drowsy fire, one hardly sees	54
First at the dawn of lingering day	80
For now the wind-beat twigs had lost their hold	Title-page
From gold to grey	48
From hour to hour we only looked to find	141
From my hill-circled home, this eve, I heard	124
Frost comes ; and the summer is finished	95
Goodnight, little shivering grasses	130
Has any one seen a lost summer	2
Here is the watershed of all the year	69
Her harvests gathered and her wines distilled	24
How like a rich and gorgeous picture hung	37
How quietly the year	49
I love to steal my way	104
In slack wind of November	48
In spring Love came, a welcome guest	66
In Spring the Poet is glad	xxxiv
I saw fair Summer, worn and sad	102
It is not winter yet, but that sweet time	34
It is the season when the light of dreams	63
I walked alone in depths of autumn woods	63
It was a soft November eve, and a faint yellow dye	132
It was the dawn of winter : sword in sheath	138

Let poets sing of their leafy trees	83
Light as love's smiles the silvery mist at morn	62
Like a young novice forced the world to shun	44
Like one who lingers yet upon the sands	92
Linger, O Day	10
Lost! all the flush of roses and of skies	145

Much have I spoken of the faded leaf	1
My heart's ideal, that somewhere out of sight	91
My wind is turned to bitter north	96

Next, November, limping, battered	70
Next was November; he full gross and fat	26
No sun — no moon	81
November, month of mornings misty-bright	9
November's sky is chill and drear	128
Now, after hoping long and vain	7
Now that the roadside paths are plashed with mire . .	126

October turned my maple's leaves to gold	3
O'er the bare woods, whose outstretched hands	93
O glad and free was Love until the fall	142
O how withered and dead	116
Old Frost, the silversmith, has come	37

Primrose and cowslip have I gathered here	112
---	-----

Red o'er the forest peers the setting sun	27
---	----

Said Fading-Leaf to Fallen-Leaf	3
See! I survive because I bowed my head.	96
Soft, sweet, and sad in its pathetic glory	72
So late in autumn half the world's asleep	124
Summer breezes, wet and chilled	112

Summer is gone ; but summer days return	39
Summer is gone on swallows' wings	68
That soft autumnal time	32
That time of year thou may'st in me behold . . .	120
The air is warm, warm as in June, the sky . . .	59
The autumn is old	109
The autumn skies are flushed with gold	29
The bracken withers day by day	13
The Centaur, Sagittarius, am I	131
The crimson, and the russet, and the gold . . .	6
The day is cold, and dark, and dreary	114
The drifting clouds are dark and drear	110
The dying summer had spilled its blood	71
The fitful flaws sail over the river	29
The goldenrod that glowed afar	144
The grey clouds gather, fold on fold	142
The hills are bright with maples yet	42
The late autumn is dying	118
The leaden slowness of the prostrate clouds . . .	84
The long cloud, edged with streaming grey . . .	76
The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year .	73
The mellow year is hasting to its close	13
Then autumn fired the woods, and crimson glowed . .	128
Then past the yellow regiments of corn	4
There is a golden season in our year	45
There is no blossom in the field	113
There is no wind at all to-night	58
There is strange music in the stirring wind . . .	137
The rooks are calling, calling, calling	31
These days of balmy breathings say	28
These few pale autumn flowers	40
The soft November days are here	62
The summer days are ended	77
The summer warmth has left the sky	114
The touch of chill November	50

The warm sun is failing; the bleak wind is wailing	119
The wild November comes at last	46
The winds are out with loud increasing shout	144
The wondrous fairness of the day	22
The year is dying, soberly the trees	86
The year is late, yet by the gate	111
The year lies fallen and faded	87
This is the year's despair: some wind, last night	34
This is where the roses grew	121
This sunlight shames November where he grieves	2
Those days of later autumntide	138
Thou blossom, bright with autumn dew	90
Through amber air the sunlight, slanting pale	140
'Tis Indian Summer's richest, latest day	67
'Tis the time	35
To-night the winds begin to rise	100
Wan brightener of the fading year	97
Weep, weep, November rain	65
What have rustling leaves to say	55
What heights of rest are in these silences	41
What is there saddening in the autumn leaves	30
What song when sheaf	139
What visionary tints the year puts on	14
When October's day is past	60
When sun and frost have wrought their spell	125
When the dawn struck on Memnon, as they say	75
When the hunter's moon is waning	5
When thistleblows do lightly float	78
When was the red man's summer	16
Who said November's face was grim	18
Wide o'er the wold	106
With apple-bloom and scented buds of May	135
Within his sober realm of leafless trees	145
Within the deep blue eyes of heaven a haze	77

With pallid cheeks and wringing hands	120
Wrapped in his sad-colored cloak, the Day, like a Puritan, standeth	89
Ye roses of November	123
Yet one smile more, departing, distant sun	95

INDEX OF SUBJECTS.

	PAGE
A Dirge	120
A Frozen November Rose	125
A June Day in November	22
A Lost Summer	2
A Morning of Late Autumn	34
An Indian Summer Reverie	14
An Indian Summer Rose	62
An Old Year Song.	133
A November Dandelion	57
A November Day	132
A November Eve	132
A November Goodnight	130
A November Grave	142
A November Landscape	37
A November Pastoral	89
A November Picture	141
A Song of Autumn	96
A Song for November	106
A Square in November	135
A Sunset in November.	84
At Autumn's End	136
At the End of Autumn	145
"Automne"	142
Autumn	29, 31
Autumn — A Dirge	119

Autumn Days	144
Autumn Even-Song	76
Autumn Flowers	40
Autumn Hours	52
Autumn Idleness	2
Autumn in Cornwall	87
Autumn Is Ended	82
Autumn Peace	45
Autumn's Sighing	99
Autumn Song	xxxiv, 55, 77
Belated	98
Faded Leaves	42
Fading-Leaf and Fallen-Leaf	3
Fallen Leaves	71, 104
Forest Leaves in Autumn	27
Hazel Blossoms	114
Herbstlied	139
Indian Summer	4, 5, 10, 15, 20, 24, 28, 32, 39, 41, 43, 45, 47, 49, 53, 54, 59, 59, 62, 63, 65, 67.
Indian Summer, The,	7, 16, 30, 35
In Late Autumn	112, 128
In November	13, 55, 69, 72, 117, 124, 126, 128, 135
In the Woods	63
June Day in November, A	22
Kyrielle	66
Maple Leaves	3
Near Autumn's End	138
Not Winter Yet	34

November	1, 4, 6, 9, 13, 18, 26, 29, 44, 46, 50, 58, 60, 70, 77, 78, 81, 90, 95, 95, 101, 105, 110, 113, 116, 120, 131, 137, 140, 143.
November Fog of London, 'The	80
November in the Marshes.	37
November Roses	123
November Sunshine and the House-flies	75
November Trees	83
November Violets	140
November Wind	48, 100
On the Beach in November	91
Rain in November.	112
So Late in Autumn	124
Song for November, A	106
Song of Autumn, A	96
Summer's Visit to Autumn	102
Sunset in November, A	84
The Autumn is Old	109
The Change	24
The Closing Scene	145
The Death of the Flowers	73
The Departure of Summer	68
The Dying Year	86
The Fall of Leaves	70
The Hunter's Moon	48
The Last Gentian	96
The Last Walk in Autumn	93
The Late Autumn is Dying	118
The Midnight of the Year	144
The November Fog of London	80
The Parting of Summer	92
The Pleasant Time is Well-Nigh Done	138

The Rainy Day	114
To the Chrysanthemum	97
To the Fringed Gentian	90
When Sun and Frost have Wrought their Spell . . .	125
Where the Roses Grew	121
Winter to Autumn	111

A COMPLETE INDEX
OF
AUTHORS AND CONTENTS
OF
THROUGH THE YEAR WITH THE POETS.

	VOL.	PAGE
ABBEY, HENRY.
May in Kingston	May	62
AÏDÉ, HAMILTON.
The Danube River	June	117
AIRD, THOMAS.
In Summer Noon	July	80
March	March	9
The Goldspink and Thistle	October	35
AKENSIDE, MARK.
The Winter Solstice, MDCCXL	December	89
ALBEE, JOHN.
Dandelions	May	96
The Arbutus	May	16
ALDRICH, THOMAS BAILEY.
April in New England	April	1
A Winter Piece	January	30
Barberries	September	45
December	December	51
Frost-Work	January	75
Maple Leaves	November	3
May	May	111
The Bluebird	April	34

ALFORD, HENRY.

Christmas Eve	December	93
-------------------------	--------------------	----

ALGER, GERTRUDE.

Midsummer	July	47
---------------------	----------------	----

ALLEN, MRS. AKERS ("FLORENCE PERCY").

An Autumn Violet	October	65
April	April	84
April Rain	April	61
April Snow	April	8
A Spring Love Song	May	139
In April	April	112
June	June	20
March	March	36
November	November	110
Snow	December	42
The Earliest Breath of June	June	26
Thistles	August	18
Vine Life	June	58
Where the Roses Grew	November	121

ALLEN, WILLIS BOYD.

Goldenrod	September	43
* May	May	79

ALLERTON, MRS. ELLEN.

Indian Summer	November	43
October Days	October	105
September	September	76

ALLINGHAM, WILLIAM.

Autumn Landscape	October	120
Autumnal Sonnet	October	27
Primroses	March	42
Robin Redbreast	October	37
The Fields in May	May	117

AMES, CHARLES GORDON.

One October Day	October	76
The Falling Snow	January	14

APPLETON, THOMAS GOLD.

An August Sunrise	August	8
A Snow Storm	December	47
Beverly Shore in Winter	January	16
May in the Swan Woods	May	49

* Written for the series.

ARNOLD, EDWIN.

Almond Blossom	April	37
August	August	116
"Autumna"	October	16
December	December	36
February	February	68
January	January	20
June	June	108
July	July	90
March	March	28
May	May	69
November	November	143
The Coming of Winter	December	47

ARNOLD, GEORGE.

Farewell to Summer	September	102
Fireflies	June	85
Meadow-Sweet	July	78
New Year's Eve	December	124
October	October	116
September	September	40
September Days	September	3

ARNOLD, MATTHEW.

A Summer Night	August	41
East London	August	32
Haytime	June	13
In the August Fields	August	28
Raised are the Dripping Oars	June	121
Summer Gloaming	August	124
The Departure of the Cuckoo	June	5
The Evening Comes	June	107

AURINGER, O. C.

April	April	58
Fading Days	September	142
Whippoorwill	June	100
Winter	February	4

AUSTIN, ALFRED.

An Autumn-Blooming Rose	October	39
A Night in June	June	98
Come, Let us Go into the Lane	October	43
Farewell to Spring	May	136
In a June Garden	June	97
In Autumn's Shining Haze	September	15

AUSTIN, ALFRED (continued).

In Late Autumn	November	128
Mid-autumn	October	40
My Winter Rose	December	22
Primroses	March	105
The Autumn, O the Autumn	October	73
The Return to England in March,	March	28
The Springtime, O the Springtime,	April	88
The Summer, O the Summer	July	21
The Winter, O the Winter	December	21
Unseasonable Snows	October	130
What is it Haunts the Summer Air?	July	137

AUSTIN, MRS. JANE GOODWIN.

* April	April	86
Cedros	July	66
* February	February	39
* January	January	27
* March	March	16
* May	May	61
* Love-in-Idleness	August	62
One September	September	109
* The Dance of Death	June	76

AVERILL, ANNA BOYNTON.

Winter Twilight	February	19
---------------------------	--------------------	----

"B."

December and June	December	79
-----------------------------	--------------------	----

BAILEY, WILLIAM WHITMAN.

Epigæa Asleep	December	90
-------------------------	--------------------	----

BAKER, GEORGE PIERCE.

Now Winter Comes	December	50
----------------------------	--------------------	----

BALDWIN, ASTLEY HENRY.

Snow	January	30
Snow on the Moors	February	17

BARNES, WILLIAM.

The Clote	July	123
Zummer Evemen Dānce	July	118

BARNFIELD, RICHARD.

As it Fell upon a Day	May	73
---------------------------------	---------------	----

BARTON, BERNARD.

Winter	January	13
------------------	-------------------	----

* Written for the series.

BASSETT, ANTOINETTE ALCOTT.

On the Edge of the Marsh	June	16
------------------------------------	----------------	----

BATES, CHARLOTTE FISKE.

A Summer Fancy	August	136
Autumn	October	98
Before a Spike of Lilies	August	19
In May	May	141
* June Love Song	June	77
Spring in Winter	February	xxvi
The Mystery of Spring	April	51
The Old Year and the New	January	1
Woodbines in October	October	38

BATES, KATHARINE LEE.

Flight	September	127
Rainy Days	April	46
Under the Snows	February	105
Vacation Song	July	10

BAXTER, SYLVESTER.

October Days	October	111
November Violets	November	140

BEATTY, PAKENHAM THOMAS.

Song	July	115
----------------	----------------	-----

BEERS, MRS. ETHELINDA ("ETHEL LYNN.")

A Lost Summer	November	2
A November Goodnight	November	130

BEERS, HENRY AUGUSTIN.

Bumble-Bee	June	50
Water Lilies at Sunset	August	23

BELL, H. T. MACKENZIE.

December Daisies and December Days	December	20
The Late Autumn is Dying	November	118

BELROSE, LOUIS.

Midsummer	July	130
---------------------	----------------	-----

BENJAMIN, PARK.

Frost	October	89
-----------------	-------------------	----

BENNETT, WILLIAM COX.

An Autumn Song	October	58
A Spring Song	April	31
A Spring Song	May	133

* Written for the series.

BENNETT, WILLIAM COX (continued).

A Summer Thought	July	61
Autumntime	October	135
A Winter Song	December	81
May Day Song	May	8
Ope, Folded Rose	June	6
The Falling Rose	September	144
To a Cricket	January	32
To the Chrysanthemum	November	97

BENNOCH, FRANCIS.

April Cruel	April	28
April Kind	April	29

BENSEL, JAMES BERRY.

A November Day	November	132
A Rhyme of Summer	July	105
A September Day	September	20
A Sudden Shower	June	105
At Evening	July	134
February	February	8
Goldenrod and Asters	August	90
In June	June	73
In November	November	55
One Day	August	37
The Passing of Summer	September	92
We Like the Winter and its Snows,	January	15

BENTON, JOEL.

The June Cricket	June	118
--------------------------	--------------	-----

BETHAM-EDWARDS, MATILDA.

Dying Summer	September	86
Two Summer Days	July	59

BIGELOW, MELVILLE MADISON.

Count not Gold Gain in Hot July,	July	55
Rondeau	May	142

BLACKIE, JOHN STUART.

Cuckoo, Cuckoo	May	3
October	October	106

BLAKE, MRS. MARY ELIZABETH ("M. E. B.").

April	April	122
December	December	10
In Autumn	October	87
July	July	83
June	June	29

BLAKE, MRS. MARY ELIZABETH ("M. E. B.") (continued).

L'Envoi	February	120
May	May	32
November	November	116
October	October	10
One Swallow	May	12
Spring	March	10
* The Equinoctial	September	80
* The Pulse of May	May	Title-page
To June	June	123

BLAKE, WILLIAM.

To Winter	January	12
---------------------	-------------------	----

BLOOMFIELD, ROBERT.

In Spring	April	112
---------------------	-----------------	-----

BLUNT, WILFRED SCAWEN ("PROTEUS").

A Disappointment	March	87
----------------------------	-----------------	----

BOKER, GEORGE HENRY.

In Early Spring	March	48
In October	October	28
Sorrow in Winter	January	54
Summer Morning	July	3
The Primrose in the Valley Blooms,	March	46
The Yearly Miracle of Spring	April	74
Winter Winds	February	21

BOLTON, MRS. SARAH KNOWLES.

A Picture	June	66
---------------------	----------------	----

BOTTA, MRS. ANNE C.

The Dying Sycamores	June	47
-------------------------------	----------------	----

BOURDILLON, FRANCIS WILLIAM.

An April Shower	April	90
A Spring Evening	April	81
Decay	October	114
Drought	August	87
Gathered Roses	July	33
Idle Days	May	xxviii
In April on the Sussex Downs	April	43
Old and New	December	109
River Lilies	July	109
Sing Me a Song of Idle Days	August	2
Spring is Coming	April	26

* Written for the series.

BOURDILLON, FRANCIS WILLIAM (continued).

Spring Longings	April	34
The Closing Year	December	104
The Farewell of the Old Year . .	December	105
The Piper	August	42
To a Water Lily at Evening . .	August	73
Under the Limes	April	127
Valentine Verses	February	46

BOWLES, WILLIAM LISLE.

November	November	137
--------------------	------------------	-----

BOYLE, MRS. SARAH ROBERTS.

The Voice of the Grass . . .	May	14
------------------------------	-------------	----

BRADSTREET, MRS. ANNE.

September	September	58
---------------------	-------------------	----

BRAINARD, JOHN G. C.

Jack Frost and the Katydid . .	October	85
Stanzas	December	23
The Indian Summer	November	30
The Sweetbrier	September	26

BRETON, NICHOLAS.

Phillida and Corydon	May	29
------------------------------	-------------	----

BRIDGES, ROBERT.

A Seaside Poppy	August	131
Early Autumn	September	2
Late Spring Evening	May	134

BROTHERTON, MRS. ALICE WILLIAMS.

* September	September	28
-----------------------	-------------------	----

BROWN, FLORENCE SCOLLARD.

A June Evening	June	54
--------------------------	--------------	----

BROWN, KATHARINE LOUISE.

Phebe	August	5
-----------------	----------------	---

BROWNELL, D. W.

A Midsummer Idyl	July	51
--------------------------	--------------	----

BROWNELL, HENRY HOWARD.

Occidente	December	110
---------------------	------------------	-----

BROWNING, ROBERT.

Another Way of Love	June	112
May and Death	May	140

* Written for the series.

BROWNING, ROBERT (continued).

Oh Which Were Best	July	86
On an Autumn Morning	September	78
O to Be in England	April	71
The Year's at the Spring	April	xxviii
When May Follows	May	48

BRYANT, JOHN HOWARD.

In Autumn	October	117
Indian Summer	November	32
October	October	73

BRYANT, WILLIAM CULLEN.

A Winter Piece	February	60
June	June	38
March	March	14
May Evening	May	37
Midsummer	July	112
November	November	95
October	October	113
The Death of the Flowers	November	73
The Little People of the Snow . .	December	33
The Little People of the Snow . .	March	25
The Return of the Birds	February	101
The Snow Shower	February	24
To the Fringed Gentian	November	90

BRYDGES, SAMUEL EGERTON.

The Approach of Cold Weather . .	October	142
----------------------------------	-----------------	-----

BUCHANAN, ROBERT.

April Rain	April	129
Drowsietown	July	46
In Springtime	April	46
Spring Song	April	53
Summer Twilight	August	40
Sunday in Drowsietown	August	33
The Great Snow	December	71
The Melting of the Snow	February	106
Who Will Worship the Great God Pan?	July	119

BULWER-LYTTON, EDWARD ("OWEN MEREDITH.").

Autumn	October	102
Leafless Hours	February	37
Longer Waxed the Days	March	73

BULWER-LYTTON, EDWARD (continued).

There is War in the Skies	August	130
The Snow is Gone	April	109
The Summer into the Autumn
Waned	September	80
The Swallow	April	98
The Violets Meet	April	76
'Tis the White Anemone . . .	March	43

BUNNER, HENRY CUYLER.

September	September	91
---------------------	-------------------	----

BURBIDGE, THOMAS.

To a Cuckoo in Autumn . . .	October	125
To the Cuckoo in Spring . . .	April	41

BURLEIGH, WILLIAM HENRY.

Autumn	October	120
------------------	-----------------	-----

BURNS, ROBERT.

Gloomy December	December	15
The Lazy Mist	December	3

BUTTERWORTH, HEZEKIAH.

The Snow Bird	February	79
-------------------------	------------------	----

BUTTS, MRS. MARY F.

A Quest	June	82
August	August	81

BYRON, LORD.

Summer Night on Lake Geneva .	July	98
-------------------------------	--------------	----

CALVERLY, CHARLES STUART.

Dirge	January	24
Lines for the 14th of February .	February	48

CANTON, WILLIAM.

Fairy Heavens	August	56
Flower Fancies	March	113
The Robin	January	20
The Winter Sleep	February	1
The Woodwale in May . . .	May	119

CAPERN, EDWARD.

A May Memory	May	18
A November Eve	November	132
April	April	64
The Spirit of the Spring . . .	April	113
When the Cuckoo Comes . . .	March	91

CAREW, THOMAS.

The Airs of Spring . . . March . . . 109

CARMAN, BLISS.

* An October Hush . . . October . . . 67

* In November . . . November . . . 135

CARY, ALICE.

A July Serenade . . . July . . . 22

An August Serenade . . . August . . . 13

April . . . April . . . 18

A September Serenade . . . September . . . 22

Faded Leaves . . . November . . . 42

In Autumntide . . . October . . . 136

In October . . . October . . . Title-page

October . . . October . . . 99

CARY, PHÆBE.

An April Welcome . . . April . . . 9

March Crocuses . . . March . . . 24

CHADWICK, JOHN WHITE.

In June . . . June . . . 14

CHARLES, MRS. EMILY THORNTON.

Summer Solstice . . . June . . . 69

CHAUCER, GEOFFREY.

In April . . . April . . . 11

The Daisy . . . May . . . 28

CHENEY, JOHN VANCE.

Evening . . . August . . . 123

Snowflakes . . . December . . . 34

Song of the Gloaming . . . June . . . 52

Spring Song . . . March . . . 132

The Monarch of the North . . . January . . . 19

When Beeches Brighten Early May, May . . . 11

CHINN, GEORGE.

A Midsummer Night . . . July . . . 6

CLARE, JOHN.

Address to a Lark . . . January . . . 21

July . . . July . . . 56

Summer . . . June . . . 46

The Primrose . . . April . . . 23

The Thrush's Nest . . . June . . . 103

To an April Daisy . . . April . . . 36

* Written for the series.

CLEAVELAND, C. L.

November	November	78
--------------------	--------------------	----

CLOUGH, ARTHUR HUGH.

A Song of Autumn	November	96
In a London Square	April	70
In October	October	115

COLE, ELIZABETH.

In September	September	126
------------------------	---------------------	-----

COLERIDGE, HARTLEY.

November	November	13
September	September	97
Summer Rain	July	109

COLERIDGE, SAMUEL TAYLOR.

On Observing a Blossom on the 1st of February	February	2
The Autumnal Moon	October	67

COLLIER, THOMAS STEPHENS.

In Harvest-Time	August	46
In Summertime	August	127
* October	October	18

COLLINS, MORTIMER.

A July Fern Leaf	July	14
Amid the Limes	June	104
A September Rhyme	September	53
First of April	April	6
November	November	9
October	October	107
Rain in September	September	38
Snow and Sun	January	29

CONE, HELEN GRAY.

* A July Noon	July	27
At Whitsuntide	May	138
* August	August	Title-page
A Yellow Pansy	June	124
Evening Primroses	June	89
Long Summer Days	July	77
The Dandelions	June	49

CONWAY, CHARLES DENYS.

In Late Autumn	November	112
--------------------------	--------------------	-----

* Written for the series.

COOK, ELIZA.

Nae Star was Glintin' out Aboon .	December . . .	69
Sweet Green Leaves . . .	July . . .	128

COOK, MARC.

March . . .	March . . .	32
-------------	-------------	----

COOKE, JOHN ESTEN.

Autumn is Sweet . . .	September . . .	119
-----------------------	-----------------	-----

COOKE, MRS. ROSE TERRY.

Fall . . .	October . . .	42
October . . .	October . . .	6
Rêve du Midi . . .	August . . .	104
September . . .	September . . .	115
Song . . .	July . . .	122

COOLBRITH, INA D.

After the Winter Rain . . .	February . . .	111
A Song of the Summer Wind .	July . . .	113
In Blossom Time . . .	May . . .	65
October . . .	October . . .	86
December . . .	December . . .	5

CORNWELL, HENRY SYLVESTER.

A Coast Scene in August . .	August . . .	126
A Frozen November Rose . .	November . . .	125
April . . .	April . . .	41
Fireflies . . .	September . . .	42
Noon in August . . .	August . . .	93
October . . .	October . . .	81
September . . .	September . . .	55
The Spider . . .	August . . .	96
To the Katydid . . .	September . . .	113

COWAN, SAMUEL KENNEDY.

In the Vale of Chamouni . .	January . . .	39
-----------------------------	---------------	----

COWDEN-CLARKE, MRS.

Autumn . . .	September . . .	59
--------------	-----------------	----

COWPER, WILLIAM.

Pairing Time Anticipated . .	January . . .	97
The Cricket . . .	February . . .	73
The Winter Walk at Noon . .	February . . .	30
Where now the Vital Energy .	February . . .	80
Winter . . .	December . . .	104

CRABBE, GEORGE.

On an Autumn Morning . . .	October	72
The Winter Storm	January	35

CRAIK, MRS. MULOCK.

April	April	20
A September Robin	September	72
A Winter Walk	January	27
Buried To-day	March	42
Indian Summer	November	65
October	October	70
Summer Gone	October	78
The Green Things Growing .	May	25
The Path Through the Corn .	July	62
The Path Through the Snow .	February	14
Thoughts in a Wheatfield . .	September	12
Winter Moonlight	January	46

CRANCH, CHRISTOPHER PEARSE.

A Battle of the Elements . . .	March	21
A Spring Growl	March	3
December	December	39
October	October	69
November Trees	November	83

CROSS, MRS. MARIAN ("GEORGE ELIOT").

In the Prime of Spring . . .	May	107
------------------------------	---------------	-----

DARLEY, GEORGE.

The Queen of the May . . .	May	15
----------------------------	---------------	----

DAVIES, SIR JOHN.

Acrostic to the Spring . . .	April	114
To the Month of May	May	122
To the Month of September .	September	62

DAWSON, J.

An August Twilight	August	12
----------------------------	------------------	----

DAZEY, CHARLES TURNER.

February Rain	February	67
October	October	15
The Snowstorm	February	77

DE KAY, CHARLES.

Know You How Spring Ascends?	March	77
Peace	January	52
Robber Blueback	February	103

DE KAY, CHARLES (continued).

Song	January	108
Song for Spring	March	122
Swallow Fledge	August	105
The Moth	February	38
The Wintry Alphabet	January	50

DENNIS, JOHN.

April	April	2
In April	April	121
In the Summertime	June	36

DENT, ANNIE.

October	October	80
-------------------	-------------------	----

DE VERE, AUBREY THOMAS.

Spring Song	May	23
-----------------------	---------------	----

DIXON, RICHARD WATSON.

Song	October	25
----------------	-------------------	----

DOBELL, SYDNEY.

Desolate	February	66
Snowdrops	March	17
Summer Rain	June	21
The Snowdrop in the Snow	February	75
Wind	January	113

DOBSON, AUSTIN.

An April Pastoral	April	89
April	April	38
January	January	xxiv
July	July	20
Last of all the Shrunk December,	December	Title-page
Love in Winter	January	96
March	March	23
The Milkmaid	March	121
November	November	70
To a June Rose	June	95

DODGE, MRS. MARY BARKER.

December	December	92
February	February	56
Heliotrope	July	83
March	March	29
The Red Planet	March	72
The Weavers	January	12

DODGE, MRS. MARY MAPES.

A Song of May	May	101
March	March	124
Now the Noisy Winds Are Still .	March	134
The Grass World	July	49
The Grass World Dies in the Au- tumn Days	October	63
Whippoorwill	August	129

DOMETT, ALFRED.

A Christmas Hymn	December	94
A Glee for Winter	February	5

DONNE, JOHN.

A Nocturnal upon St. Lucie's Day,	December	88
-----------------------------------	--------------------	----

DORGAN, JOHN AYLMER.

November	November	90
--------------------	--------------------	----

DORR, MRS. JULIA C.

Foreshadowings	February	51
The Doves at Mendon	July	40
Winter	February	7

DOUDNEY, SARAH.

A Time of Peace	October	30
Christmas Guests	December	101
Farewell to the Old Year	December	108
In Early Autumn	September	4
Pansies	February	59
Snowdrops	February	102
The Last Snow of Winter	February	113

DOWDEN, EDWARD.

A Morning of Late Autumn	November	34
An Autumn Morning	October	18
An Autumn Song	September	134
A Summer Moon	June	53
Early Autumn	September	10
In July	July	121
In September	September	76
In the Window	October	85

DRAKE, JOSEPH RODMAN.

Summer Night on the Hudson . .	June	108
--------------------------------	----------------	-----

DRAYTON, MICHAEL.

When Phœbus Lifts His Head . .	April	48
--------------------------------	-----------------	----

DRUMMOND, WILLIAM.

Look How in May May 44

EASTMAN, CHARLES GAMAGE.

Song in Autumn September 33

EDMONDS, MRS. ELIZABETH MAYHEW.

Kentish Hedgerows in Autumn . . October 19

EGAN, MAURICE.

A Legend of the Snowdrop . . February 75

At the End of Autumn November 145

November November 6

EMERSON, RALPH WALDO.

April April 128

Berrying September 4

Heat May 57

In April April 27

The Entering May May 10

The Humble-Bee July 29

The Rhodora May 76

The Snowstorm December 38

FANE, MILDMAY.

To New Year's Day January 3

FAWCETT, EDGAR.

A Bat August 59

A Humming-Bird June 127

An Autumn Landscape October 33

An Autumn Song September 117

An October Day October 38

Asters September 140

A Toad August 120

Clover June 24

Cricket-Cries October 55

Fantasie de Printemps May 58

February February 4

Grapes September 30

Heat-Lightning July 58

Indian Summer November 54

In Late August August 114

In October October 93

January January 11

June June 75

March March 6

FAWCETT, EDGAR (continued).

The Maytime Rapture	May	122
Thistle Down	October	29
To an Oriole	June	130
Wild Roses	July	93

FIELDS, MRS. ANNIE ADAMS.

April	April	55
The First Breath of Autumn .	August	112

FOTHERGILL, MRS. JENNETTE.

July	July	108
--------------	--------------	-----

FOSTER, WILLIAM PRESCOTT.

April	April	89
In November	November	124

FULLERTON, WILLIAM MORTON.

* Dreaming in Living	August	94
* Summer's Visit to Autumn .	November	102

GALLAGHER, WILLIAM D.

May	May	48
-------------	-------------	----

GANNETT, WILLIAM CHANNING.

Summer Chemistry	July	88
Where Did It Go?	September	18

GARNETT, RICHARD.

Fading-Leaf and Fallen-Leaf .	November	3
-------------------------------	------------------	---

GILDER, RICHARD WATSON.

A Midsummer Song	July	17
An Autumn Meditation	September	114
A Song of Early Autumn	September	16
On the Wild Rose 'Tree	June	103
O Sweet Wild Roses that Bud and Blow	July	120
Summer's Rain and Winter's Snow,	June	78
Summer Twilights	June	123
Thistle Down	August	117

GILLINGTON, MARY CLARISSA.

Spring's the Time	May	97
---------------------------	-------------	----

GOODALE, DORA READ.

A June Day	June	83
April, April, Are You Here? .	April	72
A Twilight Fancy	January	49

* Written for the series.

GOODALE, DORA READ (continued).

In May	May	139
March	March	65

GOODALE, ELAINE.

At Peace	August	130
October	October	12
The Last Harebell	October	102

GOSSE, EDMUND.

April Once More	April	104
August	August	4
Expectation	February	108
February in Rome	February	34
Lying in the Grass	July	85
Sunshine in March	March	108
The Death of Arnkel	January	121
The Loss of the Eurydice	March	98
The Return of the Swallows	April	13

GRAVES, ALFRED PERCEVAL.

A March Song from Somerset	March	126
A Sunday Morning in March	March	119
Beltane	May	4
In May	May	64
Spring's Summons	April	66
The Cliffs of Glendore	April	49
The First Rose	May	118
The May of the Year	May	123
The White Blossom's off the Bog,	December	37
Windermere in Mid-May	May	91

GRAY, DAVID.

A Winter Day	February	11
Die Down, O Dismal Day	February	90
First Night of May	May	5
In March	March	116
In May	May	69
O Winter, Wilt Thou Never Go?	February	33

GRAY, THOMAS.

On the Spring	May	130
-------------------------	---------------	-----

GREENWELL, DORA.

Spring from Thy Root	March	100
The Sunflower	July	11

GREY, SYDNEY.

An April Shower	April	123
---------------------------	-----------------	-----

GRIFFIN, MARTIN J.

A Winter Thought . . .	February . . .	82
------------------------	----------------	----

GRISWOLD, MRS. HATTIE TYNG.

An Autumn Day . . .	September . . .	56
---------------------	-----------------	----

In the Clover . . .	June . . .	57
---------------------	------------	----

GROSER, HORACE GEORGE.

A March Midnight . . .	March . . .	45
------------------------	-------------	----

April . . .	April . . .	71
-------------	-------------	----

GROTE, AUGUSTUS RADCLIFFE.

Autumn Song . . .	September . . .	65
-------------------	-----------------	----

Indian Summer . . .	November . . .	59
---------------------	----------------	----

The Marguerite . . .	August . . .	38
----------------------	--------------	----

The Turn of Summer . . .	August . . .	111
--------------------------	--------------	-----

GUILD, EDWARD PAYSON.

Equinoctial . . .	September . . .	81
-------------------	-----------------	----

GUINEY, LOUISE IMOGEN.

Evanescence . . .	February . . .	91
-------------------	----------------	----

In a Winter Storm . . .	February . . .	69
-------------------------	----------------	----

On the Choice of Weather . . .	February . . .	30
--------------------------------	----------------	----

Spring . . .	March . . .	23
--------------	-------------	----

The Red and Yellow Leaf . . .	September . . .	130
-------------------------------	-----------------	-----

GUNNISON, ELISHA NORMAN.

An Autumn Song . . .	October . . .	90
----------------------	---------------	----

November . . .	November . . .	50
----------------	----------------	----

Waiting for June . . .	May . . .	129
------------------------	-----------	-----

GUSTAFSON, MRS. ZADEL.

Mother's Winter-Night Song . . .	January . . .	120
----------------------------------	---------------	-----

HAGEMAN, SAMUEL MILLER.

Evening in Venice . . .	August . . .	88
-------------------------	--------------	----

HAKE, THOMAS GORDON.

Summer has Done Her Work . . .	August . . .	132
--------------------------------	--------------	-----

HALPINE, CHARLES G. ("MILES O'REILLY").

The Old Bachelor's New Year . . .	January . . .	8
-----------------------------------	---------------	---

HAMILTON, EUGENE LEE.

Spring . . .	April . . .	128
--------------	-------------	-----

HARNEY, WILL WALLACE.

Adonais . . .	September . . .	122
---------------	-----------------	-----

Fallen Leaves . . .	November . . .	71
---------------------	----------------	----

September . . .	September . . .	31
-----------------	-----------------	----

HARTSHORNE, HENRY.

Snow Shadows	February	37
------------------------	--------------------	----

HARTZELL, J. HAZARD.

Autumn	October	101
Autumn is Ended	November	82
A Winter Evening	February	7
The Drought in June	June	104
The Snowstorm	January	36

HAVERGAL, FRANCES RIDLEY.

August on the Mountains	August	107
-----------------------------------	------------------	-----

HAY, JOHN.

A Winter Night	January	56
--------------------------	-------------------	----

HAYNE, PAUL HAMILTON.

A Dream of the South Winds in
June	June	41
A November Picture	November	141
August	August	106
Autumn Peace	November	45
A Winter Hymn	February	9
June	June	xxviii
May	May	54
Midsummer in the South	July	69
Night Winds in Winter	February	54
November	November	77
October	October	19
Skating	February	18
Sylvan Musings	May	95
The Arctic Visitation	January	33
The Last of the Roses	October	121
The Winds of the Winter	January	111
Welcome to Winter	January	48

HAYNE, WILLIAM HAMILTON.

From Wood and Field	July	96
* May	May	45

HEMANS, MRS. FELICIA.

Willow Song	July	19
-----------------------	----------------	----

HENDERSON, WILLIAM JAMES.

A Song in October	October	36
-----------------------------	-------------------	----

HERRICK, ROBERT.

Corinna's Going a-Maying	May	5
------------------------------------	---------------	---

* Written for the series.

HERRICK, ROBERT (continued).

Fled are the Frosts	May	60
The Succession of the Four Sweet Months	July	xxx
To Blossoms	June	19
To Carnations	June	120
To Daffodils	April	74
To Violets	April	126

HEWLETT, HENRY GAY.

April	April	44
August	August	36
December	December	19
February	February	6
January	January	55
July	July	19
June	June	65
March	March	41
May	May	17
November	November	44
October	October	82
September	September	140
When Springtide Comes	February	92

HICKEY, EMILY HENRIETTA.

One Swallow	February	100
-----------------------	------------------	-----

HIGGINSON, SUSAN LOUISA.

Development	July	9
June	June	68
The Frozen Cascade	February	13

HIGGINSON, THOMAS WENTWORTH.

December	December	13
November	November	29
† The February Hush	February	28

HILDRETH, CHARLES LOTIN.

Autumnal Twilight	September	68
A Winter Elegy	December	27
Frost	December	67
June Days	June	114
Nocturne	August	75
Summer Midnight	July	25
The Awakening	March	40
The Parting of Summer	November	92

† First published in this series.

HILDRETH, CHARLES LOTIN (continued).

The Prophecy	January	76
The Wood Thrush	June	120
Winter	December	32

HILL, THOMAS.

The Winter is Past	April	56
------------------------------	-----------------	----

HILLARD, KATE.

In April.	April	39
-------------------	-----------------	----

HIRST, HENRY B.

Indian Summer	November	59
-------------------------	--------------------	----

HOBBS, MRS. MARY ELIZABETH.

June	June	51
----------------	----------------	----

HOBBS, RICHARD GEAR.

In Late October	October	106
---------------------------	-------------------	-----

HOFFMAN, CHARLES FENNO.

Indian Summer	November	62
To an Autumn Rose	September	120

HOLLAND, JOSIAH GILBERT.

In Winter	December	80
---------------------	--------------------	----

HOLMES, OLIVER WENDELL.

An Old Year Song	November	133
April Ever Frail and Fair	April	137
Midsummer	July	117
Spring Has Come	April	25
The Birds in Early June	June	3

HOOD, THOMAS.

Autumn	November	29
November	November	81
The Autumn is Old	November	109
The Departure of Summer	November	68

HOOPER, MRS. LUCY HAMILTON.

Winter	February	72
------------------	--------------------	----

HOPKINS, MRS. LOUISA PARSONS.

Apple Blossoms	May	78
December	December	82
Morning Glories	June	44
The Christmas Snow	December	100

HORNE, RICHARD HENGIST.

The Breath of Spring	March	111
Summer Noon	August	40

HOUGHTON, ALANSON BIGELOW.

* A Ballade of April Days	April	77
* A Ballade of a Windy Day	June	74
A Winter Sunset	January	83

HOUGHTON, GEORGE.

A Quiet Nook for Summer Hours,	August	92
Ice	February	105
Rain in November	November	112
Say	August	66
Snow Birds	February	29
The Fall of Leaves	November	70
The March Winds	March	3
The Summer Storm	July	36

HOVELL-THURLOW, EDWARD.

Song to May	May	80
To a Bird in Winter	February	64

HOWARD, HENRY, EARL OF SURREY.

Spring	May	53
------------------	-------------	----

HOWDEN, MRS. JESSIE C.

Delay	August	131
Fading into Change	August	112
The Violet Bank	April	96

HOWE, MRS. JULIA WARD.

Summer Night	August	128
------------------------	----------------	-----

HOWELLS, WILLIAM DEAN.

A Springtime	May	105
In August	August	38
In Earliest Spring	March	1
In March I Sing	March	78
That Time of Year You Know	September	87
The First Cricket	July	37
The Long Days	June	93

HOWITT, WILLIAM.

Autumn Days	October	140
Hoar-Frost	March	90
The Departure of the Swallow	October	81

HUDSON, MRS. MARY CLEMMER.

Goldenrod	August	97
---------------------	----------------	----

HUME, ALEXANDER.

Thanks for a Summer's Day	July	13
-----------------------------------	--------------	----

* Written for the series.

HUNT, LEIGH.

A Hymn to Bishop St. Valentine,	February	44
The Grasshopper and the Cricket,	January	62
To June	June	9
To May	May	97

INGELOW, JEAN.

A Morn of May	May	30
April in the Isle of Wight . .	April	90
A Winter Song	January	60
Daisies and Buttercups . . .	April	108
In a May Day Hush	May	95
In Summer Night	July	101
Sea Mews in Winter Time . .	January	63
Sledge Bells	February	58
The Snow Lies White	February	53
The Warbling of Blackbirds .	April	120

IRONS, GENEVIEVE MARY.

A May Song	May	35
----------------------	---------------	----

IRVINE, JAMES POWER.

A December Morning	December	41
Indian Summer	November	53

IRWIN, THOMAS CAULFIELD.

September Woods	September	59
-------------------------	---------------------	----

JACKSON, MRS. HELEN HUNT ("H. H.").

April	April	82
April	April	130
August	August	15
A Wild Rose in September . .	September	88
February	February	88
July	July	67
March	March	2
May	May	58
October	October	xxviii
October	October	40
Poppies on the Wheat	August	89
September	September	131
September Woods	September	95

JENNER, EDWARD.

Signs of Rain	June	17
-------------------------	----------------	----

JOHNSON, SAMUEL.

Midsummer	July	110
---------------------	----------------	-----

JOHNSON, ROBERT UNDERWOOD.

In November	November	69
---------------------	------------------	----

JOHNSON, ROSSITER.

Zero in the Sun	February	56
-------------------------	------------------	----

JONES, MRS. ROSALINE E.

The First Cricket	June	118
---------------------------	--------------	-----

JORDAN, MRS. D. M.

September	September	60
-------------------	-------------------	----

JOYCE, ROBERT DWYER.

At Autumn's End	November	136
-------------------------	------------------	-----

JUDD, MRS. ABBIE FISKE.

Early Goldenrod	August	24
-------------------------	----------------	----

October	October	26
-----------------	-----------------	----

KEATS, JOHN.

In a Drear Nighted December . .	December	49
---------------------------------	------------------	----

The Eve of St. Agnes	January	90
------------------------------	-----------------	----

The Eve of St. Mark	April	124
-----------------------------	---------------	-----

The Grasshopper and the Cricket,	February	113
----------------------------------	------------------	-----

To Autumn	September	74
-------------------	-------------------	----

KEBLE, JOHN.

Forest Leaves in Autumn	November	27
---------------------------------	------------------	----

To a Thrush Singing in January . .	January	53
------------------------------------	-----------------	----

The Redbreast in September . . .	September	49
----------------------------------	-------------------	----

When Nature Tries Her Finest Touch	May	91
---	-------------	----

KEMBLE, MRS. FRANCES ANNE.

At the Summer's End	September	82
-----------------------------	-------------------	----

KENYON, JAMES BENJAMIN.

An Autumn Morning	September	48
---------------------------	-------------------	----

An Autumn Song	October	63
------------------------	-----------------	----

An Incomplete Angler	July	63
------------------------------	--------------	----

* A November Grave	November	142
----------------------------	------------------	-----

A Summer Day	July	43
----------------------	--------------	----

A Winter Hope	January	56
-----------------------	-----------------	----

Song of the North Wind	December	63
--------------------------------	------------------	----

Song of the Spring	May	89
----------------------------	-------------	----

* The Belated Daffodils	April	32
---------------------------------	---------------	----

The Re-Awakening	March	101
--------------------------	---------------	-----

When Clover Blooms	June	94
----------------------------	--------------	----

* Written for the series.

KIMBALL, HARRIET MCEWEN.

The Flight of the Birds October 52

KING, MRS. HARRIET ELEANOR.

North Winds March 68

The Indian Summer November 7

KINGSLEY, CHARLES.

The Starlings March 66

Valentine's Day February 50

KINNEY, MRS. ELIZABETH.

A Winter Night February 65

To a Violet Found in December December 34

LAIGHTON, ALBERT.

Autumn October 119

In the Woods November 63

LANDOR, WALTER SAVAGE.

To Midsummer Day July 132

The First Snow December 30

What Garden but Glows June 14

LANG, ANDREW.

Ballade of Autumn September 14

Ballade to Theocritus in Winter December 78

Before the Snow December 14

Christmas Violets December 99

Spring April 117

Valentine in Form of Ballade February 49

LARCOM, LUCY.

Apple Blossoms May 77

A Song Sparrow, in March March 112

Goldenrod September 37

In Young July July 1

November November 18

October October 74

Snow-Bloom February 115

The Death of June June 132

The Indian Summer November 35

The Wind Flower March 44

Winter Midnight January 79

LARNED, AUGUSTA.

Summer Noon July 23

LATHROP, GEORGE PARSONS.

An April Aria	April	42
Before the Snow	December	16
Chant for Autumn	October	13
Days and Voices	October	111
June Longings	June	48
* O June, Sweet June	June	101

LAZARUS, EMMA.

A June Night	June	91
A March Violet	March	34
Expectation	February	110
Expectation	May	24
Harvest	September	34
Spring Joy	April	22
Winter Night	January	65

LEARNED, WALTER.

Indian Summer	November	47
-----------------------	------------------	----

LEFROY, EDWARD CRACROFT.

An Autumn Thought	October	89
On the Beach in November	November	91

LEIFCHILD, SARA A.

In a Cornfield	August	61
------------------------	----------------	----

LEIGHTON, WILLIAM.

The Death of the Year	December	119
The Poet's Month	April	131

LEWIS, MRS. HANNAH JANE.

Autumn Hours	November	52
Early Winter	December	9

LIDDELL, MRS. ("C. C. FRASER-TYTLER").

A Day in June	June	33
A Word for the Plains	August	121
In Summer Fields	July	71
The Dying Year	November	86
To the Spring	April	19

LINTON, WILLIAM JAMES.

Midwinter	January	84
-------------------	-----------------	----

LISTER, THOMAS.

The First Found Flower	March	31
--------------------------------	---------------	----

LOCKER, FREDERICK.

A Winter Fantasy	December	43
--------------------------	------------------	----

* Written for the series.

LODGE, THOMAS.

Love in Summertime	June	35
----------------------------	--------------	----

LOGAN, JOHN,

Ode to the Cuckoo	April	107
---------------------------	---------------	-----

LONGFELLOW, HENRY WADSWORTH.

Aftermath	October	143
Afternoon in February	February	71
An April Day	April	105
April	April	29
A Summer Day by the Sea	June	63
August	August	55
Autumn	October	46
Autumn	September	125
December	December	xxvi
February	February	2
In September	September	118
January	January	1
July	July	100
June	June	3
March	March	10
May	May	38
Midnight Mass for the Dying Year,	December	6
November	November	131
October	October	6
Sea-Weed	March	93
September	September	112
The Rainy Day	November	114
Winter	December	44
Woods in Winter	January	42

LONGFELLOW, SAMUEL.

* Indian Summer	November	39
November-April	April	12

LORD, AUGUSTUS MENDON.

Boating	June	22
Hampton Beach	August	134

LOTHROP, MRS. HARRIET ("MARGARET SIDNEY").

Midwinter in the Public Garden . .	January	73
The Little Brown Seed	March	39

LOVELACE, RICHARD.

The Grasshopper	July	129
---------------------------	----------------	-----

* Written for the series.

LOWE, MRS. MARTHA PERRY.

Spring	April	16
------------------	-----------------	----

LOWELL, JAMES RUSSELL.

An Indian Summer Reverie	November	14
In April	April	24
In June	June	122
In the August Woods	August	74
January	January	59
July	July	65
June	June	1
May	May	56
Maytide	May	111
Now is the High Tide of the Year,	June	43
Out of Doors in June	June	Title-page
Summer Storm	August	49
The Bobolink	June	37
The First Snowfall	December	30
The Winter Wind	February	83
'Tis a Woodland Enchanted	September	55
To the Dandelion	May	51
What is so Rare?	June	56

LÜDERS, CHARLES HENRY.

The Flight of the Hadjis	April	118
To an Autumn Leaf	September	4

LUNT, MRS. ADELIN TREADWELL.

April	April	17
December	December	3

LUNT, GEORGE.

The Old Year	December	126
------------------------	--------------------	-----

LUTTRELL, HENRY.

The November Fog of London	November	80
--------------------------------------	--------------------	----

MCCARTHY, DENIS FLORENCE.

Sunny Days in Winter	February	22
--------------------------------	--------------------	----

MACAULAY, THOMAS BABINGTON.

In the Nights of Winter	January	62
-----------------------------------	-------------------	----

MACDONALD, GEORGE.

Spring Song	March	38
-----------------------	-----------------	----

MACE, MRS. FRANCES LAUGHTON.

Indian Summer	November	5
Midnight	February	104
October	October	59

MACKELLAR, THOMAS.

Indian Summer	November	28
September's Face	September	5
October's Coming	September	145
Rainy April	April	69

MACLEAN, MRS. LETITIA LONDON ("L. E. L.").

Farewell to April	April	136
---------------------------	-----------------	-----

MACLELLAN, ISAAC.

The Thaw Spirit	March	37
-------------------------	-----------------	----

MAC REATH, J.

A Quiet Eve in Spring	May	81
-------------------------------	---------------	----

MAITLAND, E. FULLER.

The Flowering Almond	March	120
------------------------------	-----------------	-----

MALLOCK, WILLIAM HURRELL.

How First We Met, Do You Still Remember	September	11
--	---------------------	----

MARSTON, PHILIP BOURKE.

A Grey Day	September	79
A July Day	July	21
A June Day	June	79
Arrested Spring	March	30
A Summer Dream	August	133
Autumn Quiet	September	124
June	June	121
Past Summer	September	92
Spring Sadness	April	67
Summer's Return	June	65
The Wind's Message	March	113
Void Spring	February	117

MARTIN, WILLIAM WILSEY.

Apple Blossoms	May	70
Blow, Wild March Wind	March	16
Daffodils	March	57
Sleep, Baby Mine	February	26
Sweet Laggard, Come	May	47
Twit, Twit, Twit, Twit	April	67

MARTINEAU, HARRIET.

Song for August	August	54
---------------------------	------------------	----

MARZIALS, THEOPHILE.

Carpe Diem	December	63
Spring	April	125
The Grafters' Task is Ended	June	15
The Ripe Corn Waits the Reaping,	September	19
The Time of Fruit	September	Title-page

MASON, MRS. CAROLINE.

June	June	43
May	May	24
Pictures of Spring	May	83

MASSEY, GERALD.

Autumn Song	November	77
-----------------------	--------------------	----

MATTHEWS, JAMES NEWTON.

In Winter	February	5
* July in the West	July	84
November	November	140
October	October	99

MEREDITH, GEORGE.

Autumn Even-Song	November	76
The Star Sirius	August	41
The Thrush in February	February	40

MERIVALE, HERMAN CHARLES.

A December Rose	December	12
A Lost Morning	July	34
Horatian Ode	January	77

METEYARD, MRS. MARION.

* May Day	May	8
September	September	107

MILLER, ABRAHAM PERRY.

A Summer Afternoon	July	137
------------------------------	----------------	-----

MILNER, GEORGE.

A March Evening	March	119
Lengthening Days	March	83
Too Soon	July	133

MILNES, RICHARD M., LORD HOUGHTON.

November Roses	November	123
--------------------------	--------------------	-----

MILTON, JOHN.

Song on May Morning	May	13
-------------------------------	---------------	----

* Written for the series.

MITCHELL, SAMUEL WEIR.

Summer Noon in the Woods	July	4
------------------------------------	----------------	---

MONTGOMERY, JAMES.

The Wild Rose in October	October	23
------------------------------------	-------------------	----

MORRIS, GEORGE PERKINS.

Come to Me in Cherry Time	June	123
-------------------------------------	----------------	-----

MORRIS, LEWIS.

A Spring Picture	May	138
Ere Winter Come	October	143
High Midsummer Has Come	July	Title-page
Seasons	February	68
The Bud on the Bough	April	85
The Sweet June Night	June	55
What is the Charm?	March	102

MORRIS, WILLIAM.

A Night in June	June	56
April	April	47
A Summer Night	July	50
August	August	32
December	December	114
Drag on, Long Night of Winter	January	43
February	February	20
February Thaw	February	114
In Late August	August	137
In Late Autumn	November	Title-page
In Late Summer Nights	August	124
In March	March	78
In November	November	117
In September	September	17
In Winter	January	80
Is not the Maytime now on Earth?	May	2
January	January	69
July	July	30
June	June	99
June Drew Unto its End	June	132
Late February	February	116
March	March	25
May	May	82
May Grown a-Cold	May	68
Meeting in Winter	January	57

MORRIS, WILLIAM (continued).

Near Summer's End	August	135
November	November	101
October	October	122
September	September	103
September Afternoon	September	22
Shall not July Bring Fresh Delight?	July	3
Summer Dawn	August	39
Summer Storm	August	3
The Birds in May	May	128
The Frost Increased	February	98
The Pleasant Time is Well-Nigh Done	November	138
The Summer Storm	August	110
The Sweet Valley of Deep Grass	July	102
The Wind Dealt with the Autumn Haze	September	45
The Year Has Changed its Name, When August Comes	January	11
When the Year is Young	August	6
	March	101

MORSE, JAMES HERBERT.

An August Noon	August	11
Morning in August	August	10

MOTHERWELL, WILLIAM.

May Morn Song	May	86
-------------------------	---------------	----

MOULTON, MRS. LOUISE CHANDLER.

A Summer's Growth	September	43
"Automne"	November	142
* By March Wind Led	March	32
Eros	August	79
In Winter	December	70
Mayflowers	May	19
Midsummer in New England	July	87
Morning Glory	June	64
She Was Won in an Idle Day	June	103
The Late Spring	April	117

MOULTRIE, JOHN.

Violets	April	116
-------------------	-----------------	-----

MUNBY, ARTHUR JOSEPH.

Autumn	September	54
Now was the Autumn Come	September	111

* Written for the series.

AND HOW THEY GREW.

ret Sidney.

delightful story for young people.

FIVE LITTLE PEPPERS AND HOW THEY GREW is a delightful story; it cultivates a large spirit of home love, and beautifies and ennobles every-day life even with the surroundings of poverty. It especially excels in its descriptions of home scenes, in which the little Peppers are the actors, and marks wisely and well the fact that wealth is not an essential to happiness. It is a good book to place in the hands of every boy and girl. Its beautiful lessons, never overdrawn, cannot fail to make an impression for good. — Chicago Inter-Ocean.

It is a charming and healthful story. . . . The lessons it teaches on every page, though never obtruded as a "moral," are healthful. — Cleveland Morning Herald.

It is skillfully told, yet is natural and deeply affecting. It is not distinctively religious, but the moral tone is elevated and decided. — United Presbyterian (Pittsburgh, Pa.).

y, Publishers, Boston, Mass.

FIVE LITTLE PEPPER

By M^r

Read what the critics say of

It is one of the best told tales given to the child for some time. There is nothing strained or in the least sensational in it, but the reproduction of life, in its minutest phases, catches one's attention once. — The Christian Advocate (Pittsburgh, Pa.).

It ought, for the lesson it teaches, to be put in the hands of every boy and girl in the country. — Methodist (New York).

The prettiest thing in the book is the plan for the brother and sister to make out a Christmas from their own scanty resources. — The New Nation.

This bright and sunny child-book cannot but be highly praised. — The Presbyterian Journal (Philadelphia, Pa.).

The author has given us in her story a series of charming pictures, full of life and unusually natural. — The Churchman.

D. LOTHROP and Company

MUNKITTRICK, RICHARD KENDALL.

A Book of Nature	February	70
A Cup of Nature	October	12
* A June Lily	June	122
An Orchard Fancy	May	96
A Sycamore in October	October	51
Deserted	December	50
Ghosts	December	29
Here	June	11
In Midsummer	July	72
June in January	January	78
Music in Nature	August	25

MYERS, ERNEST.

A Winter Song	January	103
First of March	March	5
Stay Me No More	October	66

MYERS, FREDERIC.

When Summer Even Softly Dies	July	18
--------------------------------------	--------------	----

NASH, THOMAS.

Spring	May	46
Summer	August	88

NICHOLSON, HORACE L.

An Autumn Song	October	68
------------------------	-----------------	----

NOEL, RODEN.

April Gleams	April	99
Dark Spring	May	59
Harvest	August	71
Song of Summer	August	125
Winter	January	66

NORRIS, ALFRED.

Autumn	October	123
Summer	June	6

NOYES, CHARLES HENRY ("CHARLES QUIET").

A Summer Night	August	119
The Bumble-Bee	June	80

R. I. O.

Christmas Roses	December	98
-------------------------	------------------	----

OBERHOLTZER, MRS. SARA.

An Indian Summer Rose	November	62
Come for Arbutus	April	40

* Written for the series.

OBERHOLTZER, MRS. SARA (continued).

March	March	91
The Vernal Dawn	March	81

O'CONNOR, JOSEPH.

We Brought the Summer with Us,	April	52
--	-----------------	----

O'SHAUGHNESSY, ARTHUR.

Prophetic Birds	May	127
Prophetic Spring	March	30

J. A. P.

On Hearing a Lark in January	January	106
--	-------------------	-----

PALGRAVE, FRANCIS TURNER.

In Spring	April	115
---------------------	-----------------	-----

PARSONS, THOMAS WILLIAM.

A Song for September	September	63
In May	May	22
The Last Gentian	November	96

PATMORE, COVENTRY.

In Summer	July	68
The Year	December	88

PATON, JOSEPH NOEL.

Autumn	October	112
------------------	-------------------	-----

PAYN, HARRIET FRANCES.

My Sweetheart	September	108
-------------------------	---------------------	-----

PAYNE, JOHN

A Bacchic of Spring	March	127
May Memories	May	33
The Air is White	February	27

PECK, SAMUEL MINTURN.

A Dirge	November	120
Goodbye to Summer	September	99
Noontide	June	126
Puck	June	130

* The Year Hath Reached its Afternoon

ternoon	August	1
When the Cricket Sings	September	73

PERCIVAL, JAMES GATES.

May	May	99
---------------	---------------	----

PERRY, NORA.

An Autumn Bouquet	September	46
-----------------------------	---------------------	----

* Written for the series.

PERRY, NORA (continued).

In June	June	39
It is the Time of the Lilies	August	2
Song of the Princess May	May	41
Summer's Decay	September	83
What May Be	February	53

PFEIFFER, MRS. EMILY.

A Song of Spring	May	107
A Song of Winter	January	109
Councillors	September	47
In the Spring	May	42
O Summertime	August	19
Rose Song	June	33
Song	December	77
Villanelle	June	45

PHILLIPS, MRS. SUSAN KELLY.

Autumn Hedges	September	132
In November	November	72
In October	October	108

PIATT, JOHN JAMES.

A December Night	December	76
Fallen Leaves	November	104
In March	March	99
In October	October	48
September	September	135
Torchlight in Fall-Time	October	33
White Frost	December	2

PIATT, MRS. S. M. B.

A Child's First Sight of Snow	December	35
September	September	2
Summer's Great Last Heat	September	29

PINKERTON, PERCY E.

Herbstlied	November	139
Venice in Autumn	October	31

POE, EDGAR ALLAN.

The Bells	February	69
---------------------	--------------------	----

POWERS, HORATIO NELSON.

Apple Blossoms	May	63
Fireflies	July	48
* The Tulip Tree in Blossom	June	12
The New Year	December	130

* Written for the series.

PRENTICE, GEORGE DENNISON.

On a Warm Day near the Close of

Winter	February	109
The Closing Year	December	121

PRESTON, HARRIET WATERS.

Midsummer Dawn	July	52
--------------------------	----------------	----

PROBYN, MAY.

Swinging	June	71
--------------------	----------------	----

PROCTER, ADELAIDE ANNE.

A Doubting Heart	December	45
A Lament for the Summer	October	49
A Remembrance of Autumn	October	34

PROCTER, BRYAN W. ("BARRY CORNWALL").

A Song for the New Year	January	4
A Storm in Autumn	September	129
Autumn	October	114
Farewell to December	December	113
In Praise of Spring	April	45
In the August Woods	August	48
In Winter	December	86
The Approach of Winter	December	25

PROCTOR, EDNA DEAN.

Heaven, O Lord, I Cannot Lose	June	61
Indian Summer	November	67

PROWETT, CHARLES GIPPS.

Miniver to the Fairies	October	53
Winter	January	119

READ, THOMAS BUCHANAN.

Autumn's Sighing	November	99
Frost	October	142
Indian Summer	November	63
It is the Springtime	April	27
May Has Come In	May	2
October	October	88
The Awakening Year	March	115
The Closing Scene	November	145
The Dawn of Spring	March	11
The Summer Shower	August	80
Winter	January	99

REXFORD, EBEN EUGENE.

A July Day	July	7
A Summer Song	August	91
In April	April	78
In June	June	83
* In October	October	94
The Bluebird	April	94
Wooring	June	60

RICH, HIRAM.

A Summer Mood	August	76
-------------------------	------------------	----

RICHARDS, WILLIAM CAREY.

March Winds	March	95
Ne Festina	September	121

RIGG, JAMES.

The Bugle Notes of Spring	March	117
-------------------------------------	-----------------	-----

RILEY, JAMES.

November	November	60
--------------------	--------------------	----

RILEY, JAMES WHITCOMB.

In Swimming Time	August	43
The Beetle	August	82
The Orchard Lands of Long Ago,	September	27

ROBERTS, CHARLES GEORGE DOUGLAS.

Before the Hush of Storm	October	112
September	September	94
* The Potato Harvest	October	137

ROBERTSON, DUNCAN JOHN.

An Autumn Night in Orkney	October	24
-------------------------------------	-------------------	----

ROBERTSON, HARRISON.

"Aprille"	April	119
---------------------	-----------------	-----

ROBERTSON, J. LOGIE.

Winter	February	29
------------------	--------------------	----

ROBINSON, AGNES MARY FRANCES.

After the Storm in March	March	133
A Square in November	November	135
Fireflies	July	92
In November	November	13
Spring Song	April	127
Spring under Cypressess	March	74
Winter and Spring	March	11

* Written for the series.

ROBINSON, MRS. ANNIE ("MARIAN DOUGLAS").

Midsummer	July	136
---------------------	----------------	-----

ROCHE, JAMES JEFFREY.

* Summer is Past	September	100
----------------------------	---------------------	-----

ROGERS, SAMUEL.

The Firefly	September	29
-----------------------	---------------------	----

ROLLINS, MRS. ALICE WELLINGTON.

A Song of Summer	June	34
----------------------------	----------------	----

Indian Summer	November	10
-------------------------	--------------------	----

* In July	July	45
---------------------	----------------	----

October	October	44
-------------------	-------------------	----

ROPES, ARTHUR REED.

A Hot Day	August	45
---------------------	------------------	----

A Song in Autumn	September	89
----------------------------	---------------------	----

In the Hammock	July	50
--------------------------	----------------	----

Morning in Spring	March	130
-----------------------------	-----------------	-----

On the Bridge	June	26
-------------------------	----------------	----

ROSSETTI, CHRISTINA GEORGINA.

An October Garden	October	77
-----------------------------	-------------------	----

Autumn Violets	October	88
--------------------------	-------------------	----

A Wintry Sonnet	January	119
---------------------------	-------------------	-----

November Wind	November	48
-------------------------	--------------------	----

On the Wind in February	February	65
-----------------------------------	--------------------	----

On the Wind of January	January	112
----------------------------------	-------------------	-----

So Late in Autumn	November	124
-----------------------------	--------------------	-----

Spring	March	82
------------------	-----------------	----

Summer	July	131
------------------	----------------	-----

Summer is Ended	September	101
---------------------------	---------------------	-----

Tempus Fugit	January	10
------------------------	-------------------	----

The August Wind	August	98
---------------------------	------------------	----

Where are the Songs I Used to
-------------------------------	--	--

Know?	January	115
-----------------	-------------------	-----

Winter Rain	February	89
-----------------------	--------------------	----

ROSSETTI, DANTE GABRIEL.

Autumn Idleness	November	2
---------------------------	--------------------	---

Barren Spring	March	73
-------------------------	-----------------	----

Faltering Spring	March	Title-page
----------------------------	-----------------	-------------------

Spring	March	102
------------------	-----------------	-----

Winter	December	77
------------------	--------------------	----

* Written for the series.

SANBORN, THOMAS PARKER.

The Cardinal Flower . . . September . . . 24

SARGENT, EPES.

Midsummer in the City . . . July . . . 94

SAVAGE, MINOT JUDSON.

Life from Death . . . December . . . 68

Only a Leaf . . . October . . . 137

SAXTON, ANDREW BICE.

Indian Summer . . . November . . . 45

Midsummer . . . July . . . 123

* Winter to Autumn . . . November . . . 111

SCOLLARD, CLINTON.

Across the Crimson Clover Seas . . . June . . . 106

A June Garden Carol . . . June . . . 84

* A June Harmony . . . June . . . 31

* A Masque of March . . . March . . . 61

Amid the Wheat . . . July . . . 42

An Autumn Firefly . . . September . . . 128

An Autumn Scene . . . October . . . 134

A November Dandelion . . . November . . . 57

A Snowflake in May . . . May . . . 78

A Song for November . . . November . . . 106

Aurora Borealis . . . January . . . 61

A Winter Roundelay . . . February . . . 34

Ballade of the Maytime . . . May . . . 118

Beside the Sea . . . May . . . 106

December . . . December . . . 16

* Dizain . . . December . . . 125

* Dying Winter . . . February . . . Title-page

Elder Bloom . . . August . . . 65

Farewell and Hail . . . February . . . 119

Farewell Song for September . . . September . . . 146

Grass . . . July . . . 73

In August . . . August . . . 107

In Greenwood Glen . . . July . . . 90

In November . . . November . . . 126

King Boreas . . . January . . . 84

Kyrielle . . . November . . . 66

* Now August Comes . . . August . . . xxviii

On Receiving a Plaque of Apple

Blooms . . . February . . . 97

* Written for the series.

SCOLLARD, CLINTON (continued).

Spring Knocks at Winter's Frosty

Door	March	51
The Coming of the Goddess	April	12
The Crocus	March	88
The Portent	January	126
Villanelle to the Daffodil	April	110
When Sirius Shines	August	118
When the Arbutus Blooms	April	54
Wild Coreopsis	September	66

SCOTT, JOHN.

On a July Morning	July	91
-----------------------------	----------------	----

SCOTT, SIR WALTER.

Christmas Tide	December	96
In December	December	61
In November	November	128
Summer Dawn on Loch Katrine	July	97
The Storm Hush	August	3
The Woods in May	May	102

SEARING, MRS. LAURA ("HOWARD GLYNDON").

Lake Cayuga in Winter	February	96
---------------------------------	--------------------	----

SEYMOUR, CAROLINE.

Midsummer	July	99
---------------------	----------------	----

SHAIRP, JOHN CAMPBELL.

October in the Highlands	October	21
------------------------------------	-------------------	----

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM.

Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind	December	103
Flowers of Middle Summer	July	12
November	November	120
Proud-Pied April	April	10
The Flowers of Early Spring	March	69
The Spring of Love	April	126
Winter	January	115

SHANLY, CHARLES DAWSON.

November in the Marshes	November	37
The Walker of the Snow	December	83

SHARP, WILLIAM.

A Summer Idyl	June	111
-------------------------	----------------	-----

SHELLEY, PERCY BYSSHE.

A Bitter Winter	February	55
Autumn — A Dirge	November	119

SHELLEY, PERCY BYSSHE (continued).

Dirge for the Year	December	117
Evening at Ponte al Mare, Pisa	August	86
In Joyous June	June	125
In Spring	May	83
June	June	81
Ode to the West Wind	October	103
The Widow Bird	February	13

SHEPHERD, NATHAN G.

Midsummer	July	81
October	October	54

SHERMAN, FRANK DEMPSTER.

Apple Blossoms	May	99
* As Any Child	April	Title-page
A Valentine	February	43
Bacchus	July	28
From Dawn to Dusk	July	53
* Indian Summer	November	15
* In February	February	47
Re-awakening	May	38
Rose Secrets	June	127
Summer	June	2

SHERWOOD, MRS. KATE BROWNLEE.

A New Year's Wish	December	3
Indian Summer	November	24
In October	October	71
October	October	46
The First Crocus	March	52

SHURTLEFF, ERNEST WARBURTON.

A Winter Scene	February	31
A Winter Scene in New Hampshire,	February	10
By the Fireside	January	117
* June	June	32
October	October	109
Proud Winter Cometh	January	47
Summer in Winter	January	118
The Snowstorm	February	94
When Sun and Frost Have Wrought Their Spell	November	125

SIGOURNEY, MRS. LYDIA HUNTLEY.

The Indian Summer	November	16
-----------------------------	--------------------	----

* Written for the series.

SIMMS, WILLIAM GILMORE.

Give the Heart Freedom . . .	March	103
Song in March	March	50

SINGLETON, MRS. MARY ("VIOLET FANE").

A May Song	May	100
A Rainy Summer	July	45
To a Country Daffodil	March	110

SMEDLEY, MENELLA BUTE.

April Shadows	April	101
I Went to Look for Roses . . .	February	18
Windy and Grey the Morning . .	January	107

SMITH, ALEXANDER.

Autumn	September	104
In December	December	91
In September	September	xxviii
May Gladness	May	68
'Twas Prime of May	May	90

SMITH, ANNIE LEUTHAL.

May	May	44
---------------	---------------	----

SMITH, MRS. CHARLOTTE.

At the Close of Spring	May	135
The First Swallow	April	94
The Return of the Nightingale .	May	30

SMITH, GEORGE BARNETT.

Autumn	November	31
------------------	--------------------	----

SMITH, HORACE.

The First of March	March	12
Winter	December	117

SMITH, MINNA CAROLINE.

June	June	88
----------------	----------------	----

SOUTHEY, MRS. CAROLINE BOWLES.

Autumn Flowers	November	40
--------------------------	--------------------	----

SOUTHEY, ROBERT.

Stanzas on 1st of December, 1793,	December	1
-----------------------------------	--------------------	---

SPENSER, EDMUND.

April	April	11
August	August	22
Autumn	September	134
February	February	16

SPENSER, EDMUND (continued).

In May	May	112
January	January	26
July	July	80
June	June	15
March	March	49
May	May	67
November	November	26
October	October	9
September	September	11
Summer	June	30
Winter's Wrath Begins to Quell .	March	53

SPOFFORD, MRS. HARRIET PRESCOTT.

An April Madrigal	April	84
A Four-O'clock	June	67
A Snowdrop	March	49
At Dawn	April	123
Ballad	June	131
Candlemas	February	3
Maytime	May	132
* Mid-August Midnight	August	99
September	September	86
Under the Snowdrift	February	91
Witchwork	March	85

STEDMAN, EDMUND CLARENCE.

Autumn Song	October	41
Country Sleighing	January	91
Seeking the Mayflower	May	20
Summer Rain	July	126
The Flight of the Birds	October	64
Wild Winds Whistle	January	44

STEVENSON, ROBERT LOUIS.

Autumn Fires	October	123
Bed in Summer	July	101
Summer Sun	August	109
Winter Time	February	57

STEVENSON, ROBERT MACAULAY.

Daffodils	March	104
---------------------	-----------------	-----

STODDARD, MRS. ELIZABETH.

November	November	1
--------------------	--------------------	---

* Written for the series.

STODDARD, RICHARD HENRY.

Autumn	September	136
It is a Winter Night	December	62
November	November	46
Spring	April	9
Summer	June	16
The Flower of Love Lies Bleeding,	May	114
The Sunset of the Year	October	104

STORY, WILLIAM WETMORE.

Autumn in Tuscany	October	131
The Autumn Cyclamen	October	62
The Locust	August	100

STREET, ALFRED BILLINGS.

An August Day	August	83
An Autumn Landscape	October	8
In August	August	119
Indian Summer	November	49
In June	June	97
The Canadian Spring	May	113

STRICKLAND, AGNES.

The Snowdrop	February	94
------------------------	--------------------	----

SWETT, SUSAN HARTLEY.

July	July	2
----------------	----------------	---

SWINBURNE, ALGERNON CHARLES.

A Double Ballade of August	August	20
August	August	26
Autumn in Cornwall	November	87
A Vision of Spring in Winter	February	84
First of All the Sphered Signs	January	52
Gold-Eyed as the Shore-Flower	February	15
In Fierce March Weather	March	xxviii
Love in a Mist	July	135
Marzo Pazzo	March	97
Near Autumn's End	November	138
On a Country Road	May	66
Spring in Tuscany	May	84
Summer in Auvergne	August	67
The Star of March	March	60
When the Hounds of Spring	April	58
Winter in Northumberland	December	53
Why should May Remember	May	54

SYMONDS, JOHN ADDINGTON.

An Autumn Day	September	90
At Clifton	April	80
Disappointment	January	94
Harvest	September	98
In February	February	87
In March	March	53
New Life, New Love	April	5
November	November	95
On the Downs	May	116
On the Hillside	September	44
On the Thames	May	18
Spring	March	58
Summer	June	116
The Chorister	January	125
The Coming of Spring	March	54
The Crocus and the Soldanella	March	70
Vintage	September	67
Waiting	February	112
Winter Nights in the High Alps	January	126

TABB, JOHN BANISTER.

Easter Lilies	April	83
-------------------------	-----------------	----

TAYLOR, BAYARD.

A Day in March	March	47
An August Pastoral	August	16
A November Pastoral	November	89
December	December	87
March	March	31
Marigold	August	78
Maytime	May	39
Peach Blossom	April	62

TAYLOR, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

August Lilies	August	6
Indian Summer	November	4
Thistle Sermon	September	64

TENNYSON, ALFRED.

A Day in February	February	12
April	April	75
Autumnal Calm	October	101
Christmas Bells	December	93
Early Spring	March	55
In Autumn Night	September	68

TENNYSON, ALFRED (continued).

In Joyous Spring	May	1
In May	May	110
In Middle May	May	98
In Summer Night	July	111
Is it Regret?	April	28
Longing for Spring	February	78
Mid-Spring	April	83
November Wind	November	100
Over	September	93
Ring out, Wild Bells	December	128
Saint Agnes's Eve	January	89
Song	October	110
Spring	May	26
Sweet after Showers	July	107
The Blackbird	July	116
The Days that Are No More . .	September	77
The Death of the Old Year . .	December	115
The Grasshopper	July	125
The May Queen	April	134
The Time is Pleasant	April	95
'Tis the World's Winter	February	99
Winter	December	36
With the Coming of Spring . .	March	114

TENNYSON, FREDERICK.

Autumn Joys	September	113
The First of March	March	7

TENNYSON-TURNER, CHARLES.

A Summer Twilight	June	56
An April Day	April	69
Autumn	October	20
Harvest Home	September	36
In Summer Eve	July	54
November Sunshine and the Houseflies	November	75
The Charming of the East Wind .	April	115
The First Week in October . .	October	11
The Last Sweep of the Scythe .	August	135
The Thaw-Wind	January	105
To a Starved Hare	January	95

THACKERAY, WILLIAM MAKEPEACE.

The Mahogany Tree	December	97
---------------------------	------------------	----

THAXTER, MRS. CELIA.

April Days	April	93
A Summer Day	August	29
August	August	89
In May	May	72
March	March	96
May Morning	May	55
Midsummer Midnight	July	74
November	November	58
Seaside Goldenrod	September	52

THAYER, STEPHEN HENRY.

Indian Summer	November	20
March	March	76
November	November	113
September	September	24

THAYER, WILLIAM ROSCOE ("PAUL HERMES").

Midsummer	July	121
---------------------	----------------	-----

THOMAS, EDITH MATILDA.

* August	August	63
Delay	June	4
Ephemera	August	134
Equinox	March	94
Frost	December	19
Poppies in our Wheat	August	35
Solstice	December	90
Solstice	June	69
The Breathing Earth	April	30
The Grasshopper	August	115
The Turning of the Leaf	October	1

THOMPSON, CHARLES MINER.

In the Winter no Birds Sing	February	35
* Moonrise in June	June	124
* The Gift of Spring	March	134

THOMPSON, JAMES LANE.

Midwinter	January	81
---------------------	-------------------	----

THOMPSON, MAURICE.

November	November	4
The Humming-Bird	August	95

* Written for the series.

THOMSON, JAMES.

Autumn Evening	October	17
From Aries Rolls the Bounteous Sun	April	4
Invocation to Spring	March	26
In Winter	January	37
In the Library in Winter	January	121
On May	May	27
Short is the Doubtful Empire of the Night	July	5
Summer Comes	June	4
The Departure of the Storks	October	76

THOREAU, HENRY DAVID.

Haze	July	119
Smoke in Winter	January	106

THORNBURY, GEORGE WALTER.

February	February	115
March	March	57
May	May	90

TIMROD, HENRY.

Not Winter Yet	November	34
Spring in Carolina	March	79

TODHUNTER, JOHN.

A July Night	July	79
A June Day	June	81
A Summer Night	July	82
In August	August	52
In September	September	69
Madrigal	March	125
The First Spring Day	April	103

TOLLEMACHE, BEATRIX L.

Spring in August	August	60
----------------------------	------------------	----

TOOKER, L. FRANK.

April	April	68
A Winter Morning	December	52
Indian Summer	November	41

TOWNLEY, MARY.

The Rose in October	October	97
-------------------------------	-------------------	----

TOWNSHEND, CHAUNCEY HARE.

August	August	125
July	July	39

TOWNSHEND CHAUNCEY HARE (continued).

Summer's Over	September
The Bindweed and the Corn	September

TRENCH, RICHARD CHENEVIX.

Autumn	October	138
Spring	March	89
To a Robin Redbreast	December	17
Winter	January	102

TROWBRIDGE, JOHN TOWNSEND.

Midsummer	July	31
Midwinter	January	71

TURNER, MRS. ELIZA SPROAT.

A Child's Early Lessons	September	50
An Old Butterfly	August	122

TUSSEY, THOMAS.

June's Husbandry	June	88
October's Husbandry	October	45
September's Short Remembrances,	September	121

TYRRELL, HENRY.

August Noonday	August	98
* Autumn in Cayuga Valley	September	142

UMSTEAD, J. S. H.

A Ballade of Summer	June	86
-------------------------------	----------------	----

VANNAH, LETITIA CATHARINE.

A June Day in November	November	22
----------------------------------	--------------------	----

VAN RENNELAER, MRS. MARIANA.

Como in May	May	108
-----------------------	---------------	-----

VEITCH, JOHN.

October in the Scottish Lowlands,	October	23
---	-------------------	----

VELEY, MARGARET.

October	October	68
-------------------	-------------------	----

VERY, JONES.

Autumn Days	November	144
The April Snow	April	57
The Frost	October	59
The Leafless Tree	January	114
The Winter Rain	February	111

R. S. W.

December	December	28
--------------------	--------------------	----

* Written for the series.

WARREN, JOHN LEICESTER.

A Frosty Day	December	24
------------------------	--------------------	----

WARTON, THOMAS.

The First of April	April	2
------------------------------	-----------------	---

WASSON, DAVID ATWOOD.

Joy Month	June	8
---------------------	----------------	---

WATKINS, MORGAN GEORGE.

Charlton Thrushes	March	94
-----------------------------	-----------------	----

WEBSTER, MRS. AUGUSTA.

A March Night	March	67
-------------------------	-----------------	----

A Song of a Springtime	March	103
----------------------------------	-----------------	-----

Autumn Warnings	August	113
---------------------------	------------------	-----

Belated	November	98
-------------------	--------------------	----

Oh the Merry Lay of June	June	87
------------------------------------	----------------	----

Safe	February	95
----------------	--------------------	----

Sunlight	April	87
--------------------	-----------------	----

The Butterfly	August	90
-------------------------	------------------	----

The Flowers to Come	February	99
-------------------------------	--------------------	----

The Frozen River	February	88
----------------------------	--------------------	----

The Holly	January	32
---------------------	-------------------	----

The Old Year Out and the New
------------------------------	--	--

Year In	January	2
-------------------	-------------------	---

The Primrose	April	15
------------------------	-----------------	----

The Snows	January	116
---------------------	-------------------	-----

Too Soon so Fair	August	108
----------------------------	------------------	-----

WEEKS, ROBERT KELLEY.

An Early Spring	March	84
---------------------------	-----------------	----

A Snow Shower in April	April	16
----------------------------------	-----------------	----

A Sunset in November	November	84
--------------------------------	--------------------	----

Autumn Song	November	55
-----------------------	--------------------	----

A Winter Afternoon	February	70
------------------------------	--------------------	----

Before the Snow	December	21
---------------------------	--------------------	----

Calm and Cold	January	97
-------------------------	-------------------	----

In May	May	79
------------------	---------------	----

In September	September	1
------------------------	---------------------	---

Moonlight in May	May	39
----------------------------	---------------	----

Spring Song	May	103
-----------------------	---------------	-----

The Katydid	September	5
-----------------------	---------------------	---

Vita Vitalis	May	92
------------------------	---------------	----

Winter Sunrise	January	112
--------------------------	-------------------	-----

Winter Sunset	February	16
-------------------------	--------------------	----

WHITE, HENRY KIRKE.

April	April	24
Description of a Summer's Eve	August	57
The Early Primrose	March	69

WHITE, WALTER.

To a Grasshopper	July	103
----------------------------	----------------	-----

WHITMAN, MRS. SARAH HELEN.

After the Summer Storm	July	77
A Night in August	August	14
A November Landscape	November	37
Arcturus in October	October	91
A Still Day in Autumn	October	2
Moonrise in May	May	124
The Last Flowers	October	118

WHITNEY, MRS. ADELINE.

A Violet	April	111
--------------------	-----------------	-----

WHITNEY, ANNE.

In Maytime	May	117
The Cricket to October	October	4

WHITNEY, ERNEST.

The Change	November	24
* The Midnight of the Year	November	144

WHITTIER, JOHN GREENLEAF.

A Dream of Summer	January	70
April	April	6
Hazel Blossoms	November	114
In August	August	64
In December	December	65
Moonlight in December	December	48
My Triumph	September	139
Sweet Fern	August	84
The Hunter's Moon	November	48
The Huskers	October	126
The Last Walk in Autumn	November	93
The Pumpkin	September	116

WILCOX, CARLOS.

A Late Spring	May	74
September	September	110

WILCOX, MRS. ELLA WHEELER.

A March Snow	March	27
------------------------	-----------------	----

* Written for the series.

WILDE, OSCAR.

Full Summer Now . . .	June	78
In Holy Week at Genoa . .	April	82
Long, Listless Summer Hours .	June	123
Magdalen Walks	March	131
Sweet Summertime	July	132

WILLIS, NATHANIEL PARKER.

Despondency in Spring . .	April	104
---------------------------	---------------	-----

WILLSON, BYRON FORCEYTHE.

Autumn Song	November	xxxii
---------------------	------------------	-------

WILSON, ROBERT BURNS.

* In August	August	69
In September	September	6
In the October Fields . . .	October	50
June Days	June	27

WILTON, RICHARD.

The Snowdrop Dies . . .	March	60
-------------------------	---------------	----

WINSLOW, HELEN MARIA.

August	August	77
----------------	----------------	----

WOLLASTON, T. T. BURTON.

The Old Year	December	110
----------------------	------------------	-----

WOOLNER, THOMAS.

Apples	September	129
Before the Summer Shower . .	August	80
In Waning May	May	143

WOOLSEY, SARAH ("SUSAN COOLIDGE").

April	April	35
May	May	103
November	November	105

WOOLSON, MRS. ABBA GOULD.

A Summer's Day	June	115
The Departing Year	December	106
The New Year	January	6

WOOLSON, CONSTANCE FENIMORE.

March	March	19
October's Song	October	91
The Heart of June	June	109

WORDEN, ALONZO TEALL.

Partridges	October	141
--------------------	-----------------	-----

* Written for the series.

WORDEN, ALONZO TEALL (continued).

Sounds from the Fields	September	135
Stubblefields	September	51

WORDSWORTH, WILLIAM.

In March	March	118
On the French Expedition to Russia,	February	38
The Daffodils	April	92
The First Mild Day in March .	March	58
The Longest Day	June	70
The September Chill	September	69
To a Snowdrop	February	74
To the Cuckoo	April	72

THE EDITOR.

* Midsummer Passes	July
* Unto Late Autumntide . . .	October	144

UNKNOWN.

A Flower	February	36
Autumn	September	141
In Snow	December	46
January	January	14
July Dawning	July	15
March	March	54
Midsummer Noon	July	73
Old Year's Night	December	118
September	September	125
The Dead Year	December	111
The Fall of the Year	October	61
Winter Sunrise	January	87
Winter Sunset	January	88

* Written for the series.

